ACCIDENT STUDENTS HELP TSUNAMI VICTIMS
Fifth grade students at Accident Elementary School, pictured above left, recently raised $2,000 to help the survivors of the Dec. 26 tsunami that hit the coastlines of the Indian Ocean. They learned about tsunamis and read a story about the Krakatoa tsunami that hit Java and Sumatra in 1883. According to one teacher, when they learned that bottled water and other basics were so desperately needed by the survivors, they wanted to help. Students started by donating change, often giving up extras at lunch to contribute to the collection jar. Parents also contributed by giving their children extra chores at home so they could earn money. Some parents even challenged their children by agreeing to match what they earned by their extra efforts. Rosemary Rosser, one of the fifth graders and member of Girl Scout Troop 5004, suggested that the troop donate $500 to the fund. Pictured in the middle top photo are Rosser and fifth grade teachers Angie Rush and Maggie Hockman. This troop consists of girls from Yough Glades, Accident, Broad Ford, and Dennett Road elementary schools as well as Northern and Southern high schools. Cody Rodeheaver, another fifth grade student, donated $500 on behalf of Lakeview Auto Parts, which is owned by his parents, Scott and Carissa Rodeheaver. Pictured in the top right photo are Cody and Aaron and fifth grade teacher Amy Anderson. Rush Services also donated $500 to the cause. Pictured below are Morgan Rush and Madison McKenzie, representing Rush Services, with Cheryl Landon, another fifth grade teacher.

Medical Assistance Program Helps GC Residents Access Health Care

The Garrett County Department of Social Services reminds residents that the Medical Assistance Program can provide them access to health care. As of Jan. 1, there are 4,990 low-income individuals receiving some type of medical assistance in Garrett County. Of those, 3,277 are children, according to the department.

At present, there are six general categories of Medical Assistance in Maryland, and Social Services offers the following information about them:

•The Maryland Children's Health Insurance Program (MCHIP) is administered by both the Department of Social Services and the Health Department. Children, and expectant and postpartum mothers may participate in the program. Income guidelines are higher than for some of the other programs, and application can be made by mail.

For example, a household of four can have a monthly income of $1,571 and be eligible to have their children participate in MCHIP. Families with small children and/or an expecting mother may qualify with an even higher income.

•The Families with Adults and Children (FAC) Program is available to families with minor children. If the family qualifies, the adults may also participate. Families of four with a monthly income no larger than $475 and with no more than $3,200 in assets may qualify.

Families may become income eligible through a "spend down" process. The application remains active for a six-month certification period. Medical bills are applied against excess income, and if the excess limit is reached, eligibility is established for the remainder of the certification period.

•The Aged, Blind, and Disabled (ABD) Program is offered to disabled adults. The monthly income limit is $350, and recipients may have no more than $2,500 in assets. There is also a "spend down" process for this program.

At present, there is no Medical Assistance program offered in Maryland for able bodied adults without minor children.

•The Long Term Care (LTC) Program is for people entering a nursing home. The income and asset limit and regulations are quite complicated for this program. Those interested in participating should call the agency for more information. There are currently 207 LTC cases in Garrett County receiving assistance with the cost of care in the facility.

•The Qualified Medicare Beneficiary and Special Low-Income Medicare Beneficiary (QMB/SLMB) Programs provide some help to Medicare participants with low Social Security allotments. The limit for a one-person household for QMB is $776, and for SLMB, $930. Benefits range from covering the Medicare premium, co-payments and deductibles in the QMB program to covering the Medicare Part B-only premium for SLMB.

People receiving Supplemental Security Income (SSI) and Temporary Assistance to Needy Families (TANF) are enrolled in Medical Assistance as a result of qualifying for those programs.

Applying for medical assistance begins with a phone call to Social Services. The staff will discuss residents' situation with them and explain the programs available. Some Medical Assistance programs can be applied for through the mail, while others require an office interview.

Persons with questions about the various programs and how to apply may call the department at 301-533-3000 or 1-800-526-2213.

ARMED SERVICES REVIEW

U.S. Army Staff Sgt. Charles T. Granke participated in the 55th Presidential Inauguration as a member of the Joint Task Force/Armed Forces Inaugural Committee. The event was held last week in Washington, D.C.

The sergeant has eight years of military experience and served as a parade element escort. He is a 1995 graduate of Southern High School and the son of Laura Bowman, Oakland, and Richard Granke, Germantown.

More than 700 people participated in the JTF/AFIC, providing military support during the 10-day inaugural period, Jan. 15 through Jan. 24.

The competitively selected members from the five branches of U.S. military services arrived according to a time-phased plan at the direction of the secretary of defense.

The JTF/AFIC was a joint service organization charged with coordinating all military ceremonial participation and support for the inauguration. The committee established a location from which to operate, retrieve, and review all available historical documentation, and established operating and contracting procedures.

The inaugural team was responsible for a range of planning, operational, communications, logistics, personnel, and public affairs support related to inaugural ceremonies and activities.

Military participation traditionally includes musical units, marching bands, color guards, firing details, and salute batteries, and provides a limited amount of approved logistical support.

Treatment For Gouty Arthritis

Gout is a metabolic condition affecting approximately 5 million American adults, in which there is an accumulation of excess uric acid in the body. This excess is caused by an overproduction or the kidney's inability to eliminate naturally occurring uric acid, an end product of protein metabolism. In the person with gout, the excess uric acid deposits as crystals in body joints, and causes pain in several or only a few joints. The pain of gouty arthritis may be acute or chronic and is described as either throbbing or crushing. The pain is felt especially in the feet and legs. Persons at highest risk for gout and/or gouty arthritis are older men who are overweight and consume high amounts of alcohol, including wine, and eat foods high in purines, such as red meat and seafood.

Treatment of gout and gouty arthritis begins with reducing the pain and inflammation. Nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drugs such as ibuprofen can be effective if taken soon after the pain starts. Colchicine is often prescribed either to decrease the acute pain of a gout attack or to prevent future attacks. Allopurinol blocks an enzyme that is involved in uric acid production and therefore helps to reduce levels of this chemical. Since kidney stones can be a problem, drinking plenty of water is usually recommended.

GBI Warns Residents Of Another Scam

The Garrett Bureau of Investigation is warning residents of another alleged scam "to swindle residents out of their hard earned money," according to investigators.

A company calling itself Premiere Benefits of Orange California is reportedly calling residents advising them that they have won a $200 shopping spree. In order to receive the winnings, a check in the amount of $3.29 must be mailed to the company to cover shipping costs. The caller requests that the resident read the number at the bottom of his/her check to verify the company has the correct individual.

"Obviously, when this number is given, the company now has access to the individual's checking account," said police.

Residents are cautioned to never give out checking account numbers, credit card numbers, or Social Security numbers.

Gov. Ehrlich Proposes $500,000 Increase In Grants For Md. Arts

Governor Robert L. Ehrlich Jr. announced last week that he has proposed a $500,000 increase in grants for Maryland arts organizations. The additional funding, which was included in Ehrlich's fiscal year 2006 budget proposal, would be administered through the Maryland State Arts Council and would increase the amount of grant money made available through the arts council's numerous programs, including the annual Grants for Organizations.

"The arts are not only an important economic generator in Maryland, they are vital to maintaining our outstanding quality of life and educating our children," said Ehrlich. "I am gratified that unlike some other states that have eliminated state arts funding, Maryland is a thriving center for the arts. I am committed to supporting the arts in Maryland and ensuring that our arts organizations and artists have the financial resources they need to grow."

In FY 05, the current fiscal year, the arts council budgeted $10.3 million for its grant programs, with $9 million of that funding being awarded through its largest programs, Grants For Organizations (GFO) and Community Arts Development. The GFO program supports the general operations of arts organizations, ongoing arts programs, and arts projects, as well as community arts development projects. In FY 05, 260 Maryland arts organizations received GFO awards.

"This is great news for artists and arts organizations large and small across the state," said Baltimore Museum of Art director Doreen Bolger. "We are tremendously grateful for Governor Ehrlich's leadership and commitment to supporting the arts for all Marylanders."

The arts are continuing to grow in Maryland, a governor's office spokesperson said. In FY 2003, the most current data available, the arts generated a record-breaking $911 million in economic impact for Maryland, up from $898 million the previous fiscal year, according to a recent study released by the Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development. The study, prepared for the Maryland State Arts Council, also showed that the arts generated an estimated $33.4 million in state and local taxes, up from $32 million, and generated 12,475 full- and part-time jobs.

In addition, for every dollar of direct spending by audiences attending arts events, another $2.30 is generated on other goods and services, according to the study.

The study also showed that more than 11 million visitors attended arts events in FY 2003, remaining steady with FY 2002 figures. Arts organizations reported a total income of $137 million in 2003. About 30 percent, or $42 million, was earned from various program activities, including ticket sales, exhibitor's fees, contracts, and memberships.

Cash contributions and revenues from fundraising events totaled $25.8 million, or 18 percent, of total earnings.

CEDAR CHEST TAKES FIRST PLACE – This cedar chest made by Oakland resident John Michaels (pictured) took first place recently in the woodworking division of the Church of God DelMarVa Region Senior Adult Day Talent Competition. The judging, which took place in Columbia, was open to all Church of God congregations in Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, and Washington, D.C. The win earned Michaels a berth in the upcoming national competition, set for April in Gatlinburg, Tenn. Michaels worked as a carpenter until 1990 when an injury ended his career. He picked up woodworking at that point, and has been turning out a variety of pieces ever since from his home workshop in Pleasant Valley. The cedar chest, which began as rough lumber, represents three weeks of work on Michaels' part.

A MULTICULTURAL JOURNEY — Some 800 students and faculty at Accident Elementary School and Northern Middle School were recently treated to a "World Music Concert" by a trio of musicians known as Nada Brahma. The concert was made possible by an Arts in Education grant to the two schools from the Garrett County Arts Council. The director, Tim Gregory, has traveled extensively around the world, gathering inspiration for his work, discovering and mastering new instruments, and composing original works of music. He is accompanied by musicians Tracey Eldridge and Hoppy Hopkins in performing musical styles from all around the globe, such as the Caribbean, the Andes Mountains, Asia, the Australian Outback, Sub-Saharan Africa, the Middle East, and North America. Instruments include thumb piano, pan flute, didjeridoo, and steel pan. The performance was arranged through Class Acts of Silver Spring, and was also supported, in part, by the Maryland State Arts Council, the Accident Elementary PTO, and Northern Middle School. Accommodations were donated by Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty as arranged by Debbie Friend, rental manager.

The BookWorm

Hero Mama* by Karen Spears Zacharias

Back in the winter of 1968, there was a snowstorm in the town where we were living, one of the biggest in decades. My brother and I were at an aunt's house then, and the next morning, my father walked through knee-deep snow to bring us home. That afternoon, he and Mom pulled our beds and theirs into the dining room, to conserve fuel. It was fun for a few days, playing on our blankets so near the kitchen, while Dad watched Walter Cronkite on the television brought in from the living room.

That is my first memory of the Vietnam War: seeing footage of battles on TV while my mother made dinner a few feet away.

Because I was a child myself, it never occurred to me that other kids had daddies who were overseas. I'm not really sure I ever knew anyone whose father was in Vietnam, because kids didn't talk about that. I'm glad Karen Spears Zacharias has, though. Her new memoir Hero Mama (c. 2005, William Morrow) is about her soldier father and her mother's heroism in the aftermath of loss.

In July of 1966, Staff Sergeant David Spears was killed in Vietnam. He was survived by his wife Shelby and his children, Frankie, Karen, and Linda. Only a few weeks before his death, Shelby had moved her family from Hawaii to a mobile home in Tennessee, in anticipation of Spears' return. There was family in the South; both David and Shelby grew up there. That was where they might raise their children. Instead, that's where Shelby buried her husband.

From that time forward, David Spears' family keenly felt the loss of husband and father. Karen writes of several household moves, where the wheels were put on the house and someone dragged it to the next trailer park. She writes of her brother's brushes with trouble, alcoholism, and drug abuse, and of how her sister taught herself to be quiet and stay out of the way. Zacharias tells how she dealt with the loss that nobody talked about, the support she got from church members, the search for the man her father was, and the realization that he wasn't the only hero in the family.

Shelby Spears had a ninth-grade education when she was widowed. She eventually graduated from college, bought two houses, and raised her children. Hero Mama is a book about growing up without a father, but more than anything, it's a 384-page love letter to family and a mother who did her best, as bewildered by the death of the man she adored as her children were by the loss of the father they remembered. Author Zacharias is a first-class storyteller, and parts of this book will make you laugh. As for the rest of this book, I defy you not to cry when you read it.

A few weeks ago, I opened a blank page on which I will record my list of Best Books of 2005. Hero Mama is the first book on it.

Heroin Charge Nets Area Man Six-Month Term

An Oakland man was handed a six-month jail term after he pleaded guilty to heroin possession during a Garrett County District Court hearing. Judge Ralph Burnett handed down the sentence.

David Spencer Glotfelty, 20, received an 18-month sentence, all but six months of which was suspended, and was placed on two years of supervised probation as a result of the charge, which was filed in September by the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force. An investigation had revealed that Glotfelty was allegedly selling the drug. Additional charges of possession of drug paraphernalia and distribution of a narcotic were not prosecuted by the State Attorney's Office.

In other District Court news, a Berkeley County, W.Va., man was handed a 30-day jail term after he pleaded guilty to cocaine possession.

Ralph Edward Fortune, 55, Martinsburg, was charged by sheriff's deputies after a May traffic stop along Garrett Highway in McHenry. A search undertaken after a K-9 dog alerted to the possible presence of drugs recovered two bags of cocaine from Fortune's vehicle, along with several smoking pipes and tubes bearing suspected burnt marijuana residue, and rolling papers. Additional charges of three counts of possession of marijuana and two counts of drug paraphernalia possession were not prosecuted.

David Allen Rose, 25, and Brandon Louden Alexander, 20, both of Oakland, each entered guilty pleas to charges of felony destruction of property. Each defendant was handed a 60-day sentence, all but 10 days of which was suspended, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to make a restitution payment to their victim of $476. Rose and Alexander were jailed by Oakland police officers in November after they had slashed a neighbor's tires, part of a series of alleged ongoing harassment activities carried out against her.

Joan Kathleen Hoban, 39, Swanton, and Jesse James Getson, 18, Cumberland, both pleaded guilty to marijuana possession. They were each handed a probation before judgment (PBJ) ruling and a 30-day sentence, all but two days of which were suspended, six months' supervised probation, and an order to complete 30 hours of community service. In addition, Hoban was fined $255, while Getson was fined $200. Each defendant faced additional charges of manufacturing marijuana, possession of marijuana with intent to distribute, and maintaining a community nuisance that were not prosecuted.

UNITED WAY OF GARRETT COUNTY WELCOMES INTERIM DIRECTOR – The board of directors for United Way of Garrett County (UWGC) welcomed the interim director of United Way of the Potomac Highlands, Gary Horowitz, at its January meeting. Horowitz stepped into the executive director's position when Harry King announced his retirement effective Jan. 1. "We are so thankful for Gary's willingness to oversee our organization until we find a replacement," said Bob Stephens, vice president of UWGC. "His strong passion for the United Way is illustrated by his offer to serve free of charge, which, in turn, will help us better serve our communities." United Way of Potomac Highlands serves seven counties in this region. Pictured, left to right, are Bob Huebner, Stan Mopsik, Howard Bell, Horowitz, Stephens, Marta Schroyer, and Tom Myers.

Hoban and Getson were arrested in December after a search of Hoban's residence by Narcotics Task Force detectives who discovered several marijuana plants, several bags, plastic containers, and shoeboxes of marijuana, and numerous partially smoked marijuana cigarettes, and a smoking "bong."

Cecilia Marie Magaw, 29, Culpeper, Va., pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a 30-day suspended sentence, a $355 fine, one year of unsupervised probation, and an order to complete 30 hours of community service. Her September arrest by sheriff's deputies stemmed from a traffic stop on Interstate 68 at Friendsville where a K-9 alert led to a search that uncovered a bag of marijuana, a smoking pipe bearing burnt marijuana residue, and a pill bottle. Additional charges of drug paraphernalia possession and illegal possession of a the prescription medication Vicodin were not prosecuted.

Elizabeth Ann Dimon, 21, Alexandria, Va., and Casey James Majeski, 20, Triangle, Va., both pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and each was handed a 30-day suspended sentence, fined $200, placed on one year of unsupervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service. The pair were arrested by sheriff's deputies in August during a traffic stop on I-68 at Amish Road. A vehicle search that followed a K-9 alert uncovered a bag, a jar, and a bottle of marijuana, a quantity of loose marijuana, a marijuana grinder, and two smoking pipes. Additional charges of possession of drug paraphernalia faced by each defendant were not prosecuted.

Cara Lea Diggins, 20, Stafford, Va., pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a PBJ and a 30-day suspended sentence, a $300 fine, one year of unsupervised probation, and 30 hours of community service. The charge stemmed from her August arrest by sheriff's deputies during a traffic stop on I-68 at the Bear Creek crossing. A search carried out after a K-9 alert uncovered suspected marijuana and a smoking pipe in her car. An additional charge of possession of drug paraphernalia was not prosecuted.

Bradley Eugene Collins, 29, Oakland, pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a PBJ and a 30-day sentence, along with a $200 fine, one year of supervised probation, and 30 hours of community service. His October arrest by sheriff's deputies occurred during a traffic stop along Snowy Creek Road. After Collins was arrested on several motor vehicle violations and a bench warrant from Allegany County, a search of his vehicle revealed a smoking pipe and a bong. An additional charge of possession of drug paraphernalia was not prosecuted.

Randy Lee Beeman, 27, and Michael James Mitchell, 25, both of Confluence, Pa., were each handed stet rulings on charges stemming from an attempted burglary of the Grantsville area's Chestnut Ridge gasoline station and liquor store that occurred last April. After reviewing video surveillance tapes, state troopers compiled descriptions of two individuals and their car.

One month later a similar car was observed in Friendsville, and a state trooper spoke with the driver, who turned out to be Mitchell. Further investigation revealed that Mitchell allegedly played a part in the burglary, and he was arrested in June. Beeman was arrested in October after the trooper approached him in Oakland on a suspicion that he matched the description of the other individual. During their conversation Beeman reportedly volunteered that he was involved in the burglary.

During their District Court hearings, Mitchell was handed stet rulings for attempted second-degree burglary and destruction of property. Beeman received stet rulings on charges of conspiracy to commit second-degree burglary and conspiracy to commit destruction of property.

Karla Lawan Austin, 36, College Park, faced numerous charges that were placed onto the stet docket: felony theft and felony bad check writing, both filed by the Garrett Bureau of Investigation after she allegedly bounced a check in paying for a Deep Creek Lake vacation home rental; and uttering, forgery, obstructing and hindering an investigation, and giving a false statement to police, which were filed by the GBI after she allegedly faked her own death to avoid being arrested on those initial felony charges. She was accused of having her mother tell police she had died, and mailing a falsified death certificate to police in an attempt to back up that claim.

Julie Renee Doyel, 37, Vienna, Va., faced charges of possession of Ecstasy, marijuana, and drug paraphernalia, each of which was stetted as she was ordered to forfeit $409 to the state. The charges stemmed from Doyel's August arrest by sheriff's deputies after a traffic stop on I-68 near Friendsville. A K-9 alert led to the discovery of four bags of suspected marijuana and 10 suspected ecstasy pills in her purse.

Jon Matthew Howell, 19, Oakland faced marijuana and drug paraphernalia possession charges that were stetted. Howell's March arrest by sheriff's deputies stemmed from a Deer Park traffic stop, when a K-9 alert led to the discovery of suspected marijuana and a bottle modified for smoking use in his car.

Woodrow Wilson Pase III, 32, Oakland, faced a second-degree assault charge that was placed onto the stet docket. His July arrest stemmed from a fight with another man.

John McEwan, 22, Bayard, W.Va., was handed a stet ruling after being deemed not criminally responsible for a possession of marijuana charge. He was arrested in March when sheriff's deputies serving an unrelated arrest warrant discovered loose marijuana in his car. Arrested at the same time was Michael Sean Roy, 24, Oakland, who was not prosecuted on a marijuana possession charge. Roy had been driving the car just prior to the arrests.

Bronco Joseph Detrick, 26, Friendsville, was not prosecuted on a second-degree assault charge that stemmed from a July domestic altercation. State troopers arrested Detrick after he allegedly threw his girlfriend across their driveway.

Gene G. Keister, 77, Cresaptown, was not prosecuted on a violation of ex parte charge, filed by state troopers in November after he allegedly entered a McHenry garage and removed some personal items while a protective order was on file banning him from the property.

Timothy Daniel Wilt, 40, and Bobbie Jean Wilt, 23, both of Kitzmiller, were not prosecuted on charges of second-degree child abuse and contributing to a condition rendering a child in need of assistance. The pair were jailed on those charges in May after sheriff's deputies investigating a domestic altercation at their residence found the home in squalor, and two small children locked in a bedroom in fetid living conditions. Visiting Judge Charles Foos III presided at the trials of the Wilts.

Huskies Put Up Dogfights Against Powerful Alco, BW

The Huskies of the Northern High School boys' varsity basketball program pinned their ears back and went after the two top-ranked teams in the WMIL this week, and despite losing both outings they gave Allegany and Bishop Walsh reason to give NHS due respect. Northern held close with No. 1 ranked Allegany throughout the first half of a 69-51 loss Tuesday night at NHS, then gave Bishop Walsh a real scare last night in LaVale before falling by a single point, 57-56.

Against Alco the Huskies were down just two points, 18-16, after one quarter, and the second stanza ended with the Huskies still nipping at the Camper's heels, down by a slim 33-29 margin. Allegany began pulling away in the third quarter, and was up 50-39 heading into the final eight minutes.

Northern forward Brent Beachy paced the Huskies with a double-double tally of 20 points and 11 rebounds. Guard Chris Speicher netted 11 points and dished out six assists, and forward Blake Walker had nine points.

Allegany standout Donavin Vinson scored 28 points for the Campers (14-1), while teammate David Latimer hit for 10 points.

The NHS junior varsity squad fell hard in a 62-33 defeat. Lucas McMillan scored a team-high nine points for Northern while Tyler Wharton recorded 17 points for Alco.

The Huskies put up a fabulous effort last night at BW, showing they meant business from the outset by running out to a 22-15 first-quarter lead. The Spartans trimmed that lead to one by the half, 32-31, and at the outset of the fourth quarter the score was knotted at 42-all. The final period was a see-saw affair, as the lead changed hands five times over the last five minutes. The deciding points came with just 11 seconds remaining, when a BW lay-up clinched the contest for the hosts.

Walker netted a game-high 17 points for the Huskies, including two buckets that gave the Huskies the lead in the closing minutes. Beachy had 14 points, and Speicher contributed 10 before fouling out. BW (16-4) was led by 13 points apiece from Griffin Detrick and J.B. Neubauer.

The earlier jayvee battle set the tone for the evening as NHS fought hard but dropped a 44-42 contest in the final seconds. The Huskies' McMillan nailed a game-high 25 points, but with four seconds showing a Spartan sank two free throws to give BW the win.

The Huskies are set to visit Southern tomorrow night for a big 7:30 p.m. cross-county match-up, followed by a Tuesday road trip to LaVale for a rematch with BW. Junior varsity starting times are 6 p.m.

A fourth-quarter rally was needed by the Southern High School boys' varsity basketball team Tuesday night to turn back the upset-minded Wildcats of Westmar High in Lonaconing.

The Rams, after trailing at the end of the first three quarters, out-scored their hosts by a 19-13 margin in the final stanza to eke out a 51-48 win. The victory improved the Rams' overall record to 10-3 and their Western Maryland Interscholastic League mark to 5-1.

The Wildcats held leads of 12-10, 23-22, and 35-32 at the conclusion of the first three quarters.

Cory Bosley recorded a game-high 20 points and some key free-throws in the final period to secure the win for the Rams. While as a team Southern connected on a lower-than-average 15 of 25 attempts at the foul line, Bosley finished with an 8-for-10 effort.

The Wildcats had a 17-16 edge in field goals, but scored only nine from the free-throw stripe in 13 tries.

Also reaching double figures for Southern was Corey Tressler with 14 points.

Pacing Westmar offensively was Derek Skidmore who finished with 17 points, while Alex Metz recorded 10.

The Wildcats have lost five games this season by five points or fewer.

The Southern junior varsity, which has been defeated only once this year, coasted to a 46-24 victory in the preliminary game behind a 14-point effort by Ryan DeWitt. Dustin Ridenour led the Westmar jayvees with six points.

The Rams will be back in action at home this Friday evening when they host county rival Northern. Game times are 6 p.m. (jayvees) and 7:30 (varsity).

Southern will travel to Beall next Tuesday and to Keyser on Wednesday, with those contests also tipping off at 6 and 7:30 p.m.

The Rams were scheduled to host Williamsport this past Saturday, but bad weather forced postponement of that contest until Feb. 5.

NHS Downs Union; Falls To BW, Allegany, Southern

The Northern High School girls' varsity basketball team put in a busy slate on the hardwoods this week as the Huskies won one and lost three. Northern is currently 6-10 overall (1-7 WMIL).

The action opened last Thursday, Jan. 20, when NHS demolished Union, 51-24, before falling to Bishop Walsh Saturday by an almost identical margin, 56-25. The Huskies mounted a furious fourth-quarter comeback that fell just short of catching fifth-ranked Allegany Monday in a three-point, 48-45 loss, and last night dropped a 68-36 contest to visiting Southern. (See SHS coverage for game account.)

NHS shredded the nets for 16 points to Union's three in the opening quarter of last Thursday's meeting. By the half the Huskies held a 27-7 lead, and were up by a whopping 42-11 tally as the fourth quarter got under way.

NHS senior guard Jeseca Gibson scored 20 points, including four three-pointers. Center Lakin Weimer and guard Amanda Heacock recorded six points apiece. A total of 10 Huskies made it into the scoring column. Forward Jayme Miller led the squad with nine rebounds, and Gibson snagged five steals. Lindsay Reynolds led Union with 11 points.

The following night Northern became the latest in a string of 12 straight victims to fall to Bishop Walsh, as the Huskies were downed by a 29-point margin.

Gibson had eight points and Weimer seven. The Huskies made only two field goals, and were 21-for-34 from the foul line. Leah Gonzalez and Shanel Arnold scored 12 points each to lead BW's balanced offense.

BW also won the jayvee game by an unreported margin.

NHS refused to cave Monday night at Allegany, despite falling behind 22-13 after the opening stanza and 34-22 at the half. The Huskies were down by ten, 45-35 as the fourth quarter opened, then went on a 10-3 run over the final eight minutes that nearly nabbed the faltering Campers.

Gibson was on fire for Northern, nailing four three-pointers and eight of 11 free throws to lead all scorers with 16 points. Weimer contributed 12 points and dominated the boards by grabbing 18 caroms. Alco's (11-2, 4-2) Erin Wilson had 16 points, and her teammates Jessica Tichnell and Erika Earnest recorded 11 apiece.

NHS was defeated in jayvee play by a 26-20 tally. Sarah Voelkel scored six points for the Huskies, and Elizabeth Getty had seven for Allegany.

Northern will host Beall Monday in a 7:30 p.m. varsity showdown, which follows a 6 p.m. JV meeting. The Huskies will take a long bus ride Monday to take on Union High in Grant County, W.Va.

Games Canceled; To Resume Sunday

Mountaintop Basketball League games slated for this past Sunday were canceled because of weather conditions. The schedule for this Sunday is the same as that for this past Sunday, according to a spokesperson for the league.

Read. Then Recycle.

A BATTLE FOR THE BOARD was captured above from last night's Southern vs. Northern High School girls' varsity basketball meeting in Oakland. The Rams took the contest by a 68-36 margin, as all players in red and in gold put forth maximum effort. A fight for a rebound is shown above as SHS guard Sarah Stephens (#11) stretches her 5-6 frame to snag a carom away from Husky Jayme Miller (#11). Also in on the play, from the left, are NHS's Lakin Weimer (#14), and Southern's Caitlyn Brown (#24), Kayla Nazelrod (#13), and Jasmine Scheffel (#33). Miller is pictured below getting a shot off over Brown's outstretched hand, with NHS teammate Amy Shaffer (#20) and SHS's Stephens in the background. Ram Girls Crush Fort Hill, NHS To Remain Unbeaten In WMIL

The Southern High School girls' varsity basketball team annihilated Fort Hill by a 44-14 margin Monday night in one of the most lopsided contests in memory, then downed the Northern Huskies last night by a 68-36 tally. The third-ranked Rams are a perfect 6-0 in the WMIL and 9-4 overall.

Southern held Fort Hill to its lowest scoring tally of the year by beating, and beating up on, the visitors from the opening tip-off. The rout was on early as the Rams turned an 8-0 first-quarter lead into a 21-5 halftime advantage. Southern was up 37-9 as the fourth quarter opened.

Junior Kendra McLaughlin paced the Rams with 10 points, five rebounds, and five assists. Senior Jasmine Scheffel and junior Caitlyn Brown scored eight points apiece. The high scorer for Fort Hill (5-8) was Lindsay Holliday with four points.

SHS's junior varsity recorded a 32-22 win as Jessica Petrella netted a game-high 15 points.

Last night at Northern the Rams found themselves up against a determined foe, and after one quarter SHS held just a three-point lead at 16-13. Southern began pulling away in the second stanza, and was up 36-15 at the half, and held an insurmountable 56-29 advantage going into the final period.

Brown led all the Rams with 20 points, Nazelrod netted 17, and Scheffel contributed 14 in a balanced SHS offensive scheme. Northern's Gibson led all scorers with 22 points, including five treys.

Southern took the jayvee contest, 44-27, behind a 17-point effort by Brittany Boyce. Kasie Fratz had 10 points for the Huskies.

The Rams open a five-game home stand in Oakland Monday against Allegany, then Beall will pay a Wednesday visit. Tip-off times are 6 p.m. for the jayvees, and 7:30 p.m. for the varsity squads.

A BOOK SIGNING by author and University of Maryland alum Dave Ungrady will be held in the main lobby of the Wisp Resort Hotel, McHenry, on Saturday, Feb. 5, from 1 to 3 p.m. Ungrady's most recent release is titled Legends of Maryland Basketball, the cover of which is pictured above. He is also the author of Tales from the Maryland Terrapins, released in October 2003. He will be signing copies of both books at the Wisp. His latest book features more than two dozen former prominent Maryland players and coaches, including women, who played significant roles in developing one of the most storied college basketball programs in the United States. In the book the players offer insight into the most significant moments of their careers, and some reflect on their most profound memories as a Terp. The foreward in the book is written by former long-time University of Maryland sports information director Jack Zane. Ungrady himself is a former Terp athlete (track and soccer) and is a 1980 graduate.

Two Ram Netters Earn First Team All-Area Volleyball Recognition

Southern High School's volleyball program earned recognition this week as two Ram netters were named to the First Team of the 2004 All-Area Volleyball Team.

Seniors Julia Bosley, who earned First Team kudos for the second straight season, and Kayla Nazelrod, both who helped pace SHS to a program-high 15-2 mark, were both selected to the honorary unit in a poll of area coaches. Joining those two on the First Team were Fort Hill's Traea Guthrie, Frankfort's Jennifer Cessna, Keyser's Aushia Beavers, Beall's Jessica Burkett, Hampshire's Julieanne Buckley, and Area co-Players of the Year Lauren Mouse of Fort Hill and Angie Jenkins of Frankfort.

persons who request it. Those who wish to get the vaccine are asked to call the health department at 301-334-7770 or 301-895-3111 to schedule an appointment. Appointments will be available at both the Oakland and Grantsville locations. The cost of the vaccine is $18.

"The system worked the way it was supposed to," said Health Officer Rodney Glotfelty. "We prioritized people and vaccinated high risk first, then lowered the eligibility to 50 years old, and now we are happy to offer vaccine to everyone."

Cases of influenza or flu-like illnesses have reached the "widespread" designation, according to the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (DHMH). This indicates the state's population is experiencing an increase in influenza-like illnesses.

"Even with the widespread activity, it is not too late to get a vaccination," said DHMH Secretary S. Anthony McCann. "I strongly encourage anyone to contact their health care provider or local health department to arrange for a flu shot or dose of FluMist."

The shortage of vaccine prompted Maryland officials in October to place restrictions on those eligible to receive the vaccine. Before this recent lifting of all restrictions, the eligible list was expanded earlier this month to accommodate a larger percentage of the population.

Although influenza is not a reportable disease in Maryland, DHMH is able to track the illness through voluntary reporting from health care providers and from reports of illness from nursing homes in the state.

Typical flu symptoms include fever, dry cough, sore throat, runny or stuffy nose, headache, muscle aches, and extreme fatigue. Children may experience gastrointestinal problems including nausea, vomiting, and diarrhea.

With or without the vaccination, state health officials say there are steps people can take to lessen their chances of contracting the illness. These include avoiding close contact with people who are sick. And those who are sick should keep their distance from others. Sick individuals should stay home from work, school, and errands, whenever possible. They should cover their mouths and noses with a tissue when coughing or sneezing.

Washing one's hands often helps protect against the spread of illnesses. Germs are often spread when a person touches something that is contaminated with germs and then touches his or her eyes, nose, or mouth.

New Regulations

proved by the Maryland General Assembly's Joint Committee on Administrative, Executive and Legislative Review, went into effect yesterday (Jan. 26), and will remain active for six months. MDE will publish the regulations in the Maryland Register within the next 30 days, and intends to seek their adoption under the normal regulatory process that includes a public hearing and comment period. An unofficial copy of the emergency regulations will be available within the week for viewing on the MDE web site at www.mde.state.md.us.

Pursuant to the federal Clean Air Act, MTBE was added to gasoline in the early 1990s and is used to reduce carbon monoxide emissions from vehicles. MTBE was first added to gasoline in the 1970s to replace lead.

"MTBE makes important environmental and economic contributions by improving Maryland's air quality and keeping gas prices affordable," said state Department of Environment Secretary Kendl Philbrick. "The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has concluded that there is no measurable health effect from low level MTBE exposure. The EPA's health advisory states that levels of contamination at or below 20 parts per billion (ppb) provide a large margin of safety from adverse health effects.

"We are pleased that the emergency regulations were approved. For Maryland families that rely on wells, these new measures provide additional assurance that their water supplies are clean and safe from MTBE and other petroleum products," Philbrick continued. "We have the ability to keep pollutants out of our drinking water and are going to do so. These are tough, but necessary regulations to protect public health."

Salary Review

sioners' annual salary from $30,000 to $32,500.

•Increase the sheriff's annual salary from $60,000 to $75,000.

•Increase the annual salary of all Board of Education members from $3,800 to $4,000.

•Increase the chief judge of the Orphans' Court salary from $2,000 to $4,500 and increase the associate judges' salary from $1,800 to $4,200, but eliminate their $40 per meeting expense payment.

•Establish the salary of the state's attorney, which is currently $75,000, to 80 percent of the prevailing annual salary of the District Court judge.

The committee also recommended that the county introduce legislation to delete the state's attorney from the salary study process and approve a budgetary policy that would establish the salary of the full-time assistant state's attorney at 70 percent of the prevailing salary of the state's attorney.

•Make no changes to the Board of Election supervisors' current compensation level, but add a $50 day stipend for "logic and accuracy testing" for all supervisors. Those compensations currently range between $2,200 and $2,800.

•Make no changes to the Liquor Board members' compensation level, which is currently $2,500.

The committee also recommended that a two-term limit be imposed for those serving on appointed boards established by the commissioners.

County Administrator Monty Pagenhardt said the committee reviewed the salaries of officials in other Maryland counties and Garrett County department heads as basis for comparison for their recommendations. The members also interviewed the local officials whose salaries were being evaluated.

The commissioners have 45 days to either accept or decrease the committee's recommended salary adjustments. The officials, however, cannot increase the salaries more than what the committee recommends.

If approved, the salary changes would not be effective until after the next election, which will take place in 2006.

Pagenhardt said the commissioners would probably review the recommendations next Thursday and possibly announce their decision the following week.

Awarded Grant

is on the Homeland Security Appropriations Subcommittee that funds the grant program.

The Kitzmiller VFD will use its grant to purchase 12 new sets of turnout gear, including new helmets, boots, gloves, pants, and coats. It will also buy new computer and training software for self-guided training exercises so the firefighters do not have to take a day off from work to travel for training at regional training centers.

The department will also use some of the funds to purchase a new ATV vehicle with a trailer, which will be used for both rescue and brush fire work. This is especially important in rural parts of the county where even SUVs have difficulty getting to certain areas, Mikulski noted.

In addition, the Kitzmiller VFD will purchase a backup generator to replace its aging one. Kitzmiller is prone to flooding, and the fire hall is often used as a community center and shelter when there are power outages in the area.

This is the first award for the department, and the third one for a Garrett County fire department this fiscal year. So far this funding cycle, Garrett County fire departments have been awarded a total of $209,236 in federal grants.

Bark 'n Bites

Of Your Garrett County Forest Conservancy Board

By Paul Shogren, Reporter

2006 MARYLAND FORESTRY CENTENNIAL

Most of the Garrett County Forest Conservancy District Board's January meeting was devoted to discussion of participation in the Centennial of Maryland Forestry. Offutt Johnson, a retired Park Service naturalist appeared before the board in a 1933 Ranger uniform and described the uniform to the members. He then described what progress had been made in preparing for the centennial. He emphasized the fact that Garrett County is the "birthplace of Maryland Forestry," so the board has a pivotal role in the 2006 celebration.

State forester Steve Koehn and State Forests and Parks supervisor Rick Barton are heading up the centennial project. Potomac-Garrett State Forest manager John Denning has developed a forestry demonstration on one of the original forest tracts donated to the state by the Garrett brothers. For viewing these tracts, persons may contact the Potomac-Garrett State Forest at 301-334-2038.

The board would like for "old timers" who worked for the Forest and Park Services, or who logged within the county, who would be willing to relate their early experiences and/or photos to contact forester Wade Dorsey at 301-334-3296.

FORESTRY CORRESPONDENCE COURSE

A General Forestry Correspondence course is available to those interested in forestry in general and forest landowners interested in forest management in particular. The cost and content of the course is available from the board and the Forest Service. Information is also available from the Cooperative Extension Service at 301-334-6960.

RED SPRUCE SEEDLINGS

Red spruce seedlings, a species long associated with high elevation forests, have been dug up and heeled in for later out planting at several places in the county. These four-foot high seedlings were originally planted on the Keyser's Ridge Industrial Park site, but needed to be removed to accommodate a new tenant. These seedlings will be made available to the schools in the county for their arboreta. A portion of the seedlings will be planted at the Adventure Sports Complex on Marsh Mountain because the director assisted in their initial removal and heeling in.

TREE PLANTING OPPORTUNITIES

The board is planning to plant a memorial tree on Maryland's Arbor Day, Wednesday, April 6, in memory of Josh Fike, who was killed in a car accident. He attended the 2002 Forestry Week at Hickory Environmental Education Center.

There are Urban and Community Forests program grants available to schools. Board member Carl McIntire is the board's coordinator for these grants, and county forester Ernie Metz can be contacted at 301-334-3296 for details.

MD. FORESTS ASSOCIATION ACTIVITIES

MFA executive director Karin Miller reported that the Logger/Forestry Field Day is scheduled for June 10-11 at the Garrett County Fairgrounds. The board usually participates as an exhibitor, and will do so again.

Miller also announced that the 2005 Annual Meeting will be held Nov. 4-5 at Rocky Gap State Park. The 2006 Forestry Centennial will be emphasized.

TOP 10 BENEFITS OF FORESTRY

The Society of American Foresters has compiled its "Top 10" list of the environmental benefits of forestry. The first two items on the list, "Forestry is Bring Back Forests" and "Forestry Helps Water Quality" have been noted in previous Barks 'n Bites columns.

A third benefit is "Forestry Offsets Air Pollution." Foresters nuture forests, which are sometimes called "the gills of the planet." One mature tree absorbs about 13 pounds of carbon dioxide and replaces it with 1.07 tons of oxygen.

FEBRUARY MEETING SLATED

The February meeting of the Garrett County Forestry Conservancy Board is scheduled for 9 a.m., Monday, Feb. 14, at the Mt. Nebo Department of Natural Resources office. The public is invited, and persons interested in attending are asked to contact board chairman Chuck Hoffeditz at 301-387-5144.

Miss Frantz Weds Mr. Skiles In Double-Ring Ceremony

Melissa S. Frantz and Jeremy C. Skiles were united in marriage on Friday, June 18, 2004, at the Maple Spring Church of the Brethren in Eglon, W.Va. The double-ring ceremony was performed by Rev. J. Rogers Fike and Rev. Mark Hickman.

A musical tribute was performed by the groom, who sang "I Cross My Heart."

The bride is the daughter of Donald and Neva Frantz of Eglon. Melissa is a full-time student at Fairmont State University studying forensic psychology and is currently employed as a phlebotomist at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

The groom is the son of Stan and Tammy Skiles, Oakland, and is employed by Rigidply Rafters, where he is a sawyer.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a sleeveless, two-piece white satin gown trimmed with thousands of lavender beads. Her hair was swept up in curls with a headpiece, made by her mother, with silk roses, pearls, and rhinestones. She carried a bouquet of silk ivy, lavender and white wisteria, lavender roses, and lily of the valley, also made by her mother.

Attendants for the bride were matron of honor Dianna Moats, friend of the bride from Wytheville, Va., and bride's matrons Amy Strawser, friend of the bride, from Aurora, W.Va., Jeannie Lucas, cousin of the bride, from Blaine, W.Va., and Melinda Evans, sister of the groom, from Nashville, Tenn.

They wore identical two-piece gowns of lavender satin and carried bouquets of silk flowers.

Attendants for the groom were best man J.D. Beckman, friend of the groom from Morgantown, W.Va., and groomsmen Jared Beckman, friend of the groom also from Morgantown, Brian Panther, cousin of the groom from Oakland, and Melvin Frantz, brother of the bride, from Misawa Air Force Base, Japan.

They wore black tuxedoes with boutonnieres made from fabric matching the bridal attendants' gowns.

The four flower girls were Hannah and Avery Evans, nieces of the groom, who wore white dresses trimmed in ribbon, and Dakota and Violet Frantz, nieces of the bride, who wore lavender kimonos.

They all wore flower head pieces and carried white baskets decorated with silk flowers and ribbon.

The ring and Bible bearers were Shelton Lucas and Isaac Evans. They were dressed in black pants and vests with white shirts. The acolytes were Tylor Evans and Brandon Lucas.

The church was decorated by Krista Hayes and Sue Corbin, cousins of the bride, with large baskets of live flowers, green ferns and silk flowers. There was a large "peace plant" on the piano in honor of the bride's brothers who are both in the U.S. Air Force.

The organ was decorated with pottery from Japan, Saudi Arabia, and Iceland (where the bride was born). The altar held an arch decorated with white, purple, and lavender tulle; silk wisteria; and ivy. The candelabras, made by Richard Norwish, were adorned with ivy. A table covered with the same fabric as the bridal attendants' dresses held the unity candle and lavender silk flowers.

Lela Paugh served as pianist. The guest book and programs were attended by Lori and Rene Frantz, cousins of the bride, Melissa J. Frantz, sister-in-law of the bride, and Jenny Bishoff, cousin of the groom.

The mothers of the bride and groom wore gowns identical to the bridal attendants but with a jacket. The gown of the bride's mother was in pink linen with embroidered butterflies. The groom's mother was in purple satin.

The reception for more than 150 guests from West Virginia, Maryland, Utah, Ohio, Illinois, Tennessee, and Japan was held at the Mt. Grove pavilion in Horse Shoe Run, W.Va.

The newlyweds rode from the church to the reception in a 1923 Ford T-Bucket convertible owned by Jim Slaubaugh.

The three-tier wedding cake over a water fountain was decorated with lavender wisteria and white roses. A staircase extending on both sides of the cake to heart-shaped cakes held replicas of the bridal attendants and groomsmen. The cake was made by Rose Ina Harsh, grandmother of the bride, and Brenda Hartsell, aunt of the bride. The cake top was a bride and groom with a Harley Davidson moorcycle under a lit, decorated arch.

Photographers were Stanley Harsh, uncle of the bride, and Kelly Junkins. The videographers were Sylvia Beckman and Josh Bishoff. DJ services were provided by Mark Harsh, uncle of the bride.

White carrier pigeons were released at dusk by Rev. Glenn Nissley in honor of the newlyweds.

The couple stayed at Savage River Lodge on their wedding night and honeymooned later in Niagara Falls. They now reside in Oakland.

Friends Celebrate 25th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence (Jake) Friend celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary last summer. The couple were married on July 13, 1979 at the Garrett County courthouse.

Mr. Friend is employed by the town of Oakland, and Mrs. Friend is employed by the dental office of Dr. W.G. Savage.

The Friends are the parents of seven children between the two of them: Victoria Johnson Insley, Roberta Johnson Cvetnick, Deanna Johnson Bishop, and Tim Friend, all of Oakland; Rhonda Johnson Cyphert of Morgantown, W.Va.; Terry Friend of Byron, Ga.; and the late Tammy Friend. They also have 13 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Project Proposals Sought For State Highway Funds

The Maryland State Highway Administration (SHA) is seeking project proposals for Maryland's Transportation Enhancement Program (TEP). These funds are available for non-traditional projects that include hiker/biker trail development, purchasing easements to preserve historic structures, constructing tourist welcome centers, and sponsoring historical archaeology projects.

Interested groups or organizations that have a governmental co-sponsor may submit proposals for TEP funding for projects that will begin construction by January 2007. The deadline for submitting proposals is March 1. Guidelines for project submissions may be downloaded online by accessing the SHA website at www.marylandroads.com, then scrolling down the left-hand column to click on "Transportation Enhancement Program."

"Our goal is to encourage the development of TEP projects across the state, and provide funding and support for valuable, long-lasting projects," said SHA administrator Neil J. Pedersen.

To date, more than $116 million in federal funds has been awarded in Maryland for 192 projects through the TEP; in 2004, awards totaled $13.7 million. Last year, the largest award of $3.4 million went to Baltimore City for construction of phase two of the Gwynns Falls Trail. Other funded projects include the Rock Creek pedestrian bridge in Montgomery County, the Wakefield Valley Community Trail in Carroll County, Civil War preservation in Frederick County, and the renovation of the Mount Royal Train Station in Baltimore. Improvements were also funded for the USS Constellation and the Queen Anne's County Visitor Center.

For further information on project eligibility or program requirements, persons may contact SHA Enhancement Program liaison Mary Keller by calling 410-545-5675 or 1-888-204-4828, or via e-mail at mkeller@sba.state.md.us. Proposals may be submitted to Keller at 707 North Calvert Street, Mail Stop C-502, Baltimore, MD 21202.

POSTER CONTEST WINNERS — Third through fifth grade students at Friendsville Elementary School were recently asked to design posters depicting what "Healthy Kids Create Healthy Futures" meant to them. The contest was sponsored by the Western Maryland Area Health Education Center's Covering Kids & Families program. Winners were announced by JoAnn Fletcher, WMAHEC community program coordinator for CKF. Pictured above with Fletcher is first place winner Derrica Friend, who received a bike partially funded by Oakland Wal-Mart. Derrica's poster will be entered in the state competition for a chance to win $1,000 toward a summer camp, plus $1,000 for Friendsville Elementary. Pictured above with Fletcher is second-place winner Dillon Russell, who received a basketball, backboard with hoop, and a football. Pictured below with Fletcher are sisters Madison and Taylor Sines, who tied for third place and received a volleyball and a basketball. The Maryland CKF program, funded through the University of Maryland Baltimore and the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, is part of a national health access initiative for low-income, uninsured children which promotes awareness of Maryland Children's Health Program (MCHP). MCHP assists families by providing free or low-cost health care insurance for doctor visits, medicine, dental visits, and mental health services. For more information about MCHP, persons may telephone the Garrett County Health Department at 301-895-3111, 301-334-7770, or 301-334-7720.

State Libraries To Receive Grant To Aid Technology

The Maryland State Department of Education (MSDE) Division of Library Development and Services received a $157,000 grant from the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation to support public access to computer technology and online services in public libraries throughout the state of Maryland. This is the second and final round of the "Staying Connected" grant program. The Ruth Enlow Library of Garrett County will receive additional computers through this grant.

Grants allow libraries to improve technology training for library staff and patrons, replace older workstations, upgrade software, obtain faster Internet connections, and increase access to technical support.

"The role of the public library in meeting the needs of our communities and citizens is ever changing," said state Superintendent of Schools Nancy S. Grasmick, whose Division of Library Development and Services oversees the development of public libraries around the state. "Now, more than ever, providing free public access to computers and the Internet is an integral part of library services. The library is a place where well-trained staff can assist both children and adults with navigating the Internet and other computer-based projects. For many, the public library provides their only access to this technology."

"In recent years, the public has come to expect its local library to be a provider of computers and Internet access," said Irene M. Padilla, assistant state superintendent for libraries at MSDE. "To keep pace not only with technological advancements, but also with the needs of library users, we must continually look to train staff and outfit library branches with the latest technology so that Maryland's tradition of top-notch library service can continue. The support of the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation helps make this possible."

In Maryland, the Gates grant will be used for the following purposes:

•To upgrade and/or replace personal computers and/or other public access computing equipment in Gates labs in the Allegany, Caroline, Cecil, Frederick, Harford, and Somerset county libraries;

•To provide additional computers for the Carroll, Dorchester, Kent, Talbot, Washington, and Worcester county libraries and Ruth Enlow Library of Garrett County;

•To assist with online technical training to all public libraries in Maryland through an online portal that provides Web-based training modules and tutorials, and provides for the development of a "help desk" or "web board" for exchanging technical support information; and

•To develop and sustain a learning environment for library staff engaged in providing technical support, training for the public, and day-to-day library services.

The "Staying Connected" grants are challenge grants, meaning that the foundation matched funds raised by the state at a 2-1 ratio. Specific parameters must be met for different regions to participate in this grant process. Libraries and branches that have received individual Gates "Staying Connected" grants in the past, were not eligible to participate in the State Partnership Program and are not part of this cycle

DNR Forest Svc. To Take Over Md. Forests Mgmt.

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has announced that its Forest Service has assumed management responsibility of Maryland's State Forests. In the past, DNR's State Forest and Park Service has been managing these properties, which include Potomac–Garrett and Savage River state forests in Garrett County.

Although the transfer of management responsibility took effect this week, an inter-agency transition team composed of members of both units will work together to implement the transfer between now and July 1.

As a result of budget deliberations during the 2004 General Assembly Session, DNR was required to evaluate the practicality and value of assigning management responsibility for the state forests to the Maryland Forest Service, and to issue a Joint Committee Report on the issue. Such a transfer had been under consideration for some time, as Maryland has been one of the few states in the country not to have its state forests managed under the authority of the state forester, who in Maryland is Steven W. Koehn, director of the Maryland Forest Service.

"The way in which the State Forest and Park Service has managed the state forests has been exemplary; however, the Forest Service has greater scientific, academic, and professional expertise in the newest approaches to sustainable forest management," said DNR assistant secretary Michael E. Slattery. "Separation of State Forest and State Park operations allows each unit to focus its resources where its respective professional expertise is the greatest. It's better for the staff and for the citizens who enjoy Maryland's state forests every day."

The shift in management responsibility for the state forests is expected to have little impact on current DNR operations, and personnel will be shifted between the units as necessary to achieve forest sustainability goals.

Likewise, the assumption of forest management by the Forest Service will have no impact on forest harvesting, according to an agency spokesperson. The department will apply internationally recognized forest sustainability criteria, as outlined in the Sustainable Forest Initiative and Forest Stewardship Council Certification standards, to the management of Maryland's state forests.

The Maryland Park Service will continue to have management responsibility for Maryland's 49 parks, natural environmental areas, natural resource areas, and marinas.

"Maryland's Forest Service works with partners and stakeholders in the forestry, recreational, and environmental communities to influence the health, sustainability, diversity, and productivity of Maryland's forests and trees," said DNR spokesperson Megan Arts Evans. "It strives for clean water, healthy forests, and livable communities. The Forest Service's current mission is to restore, manage and protect Maryland's trees, forests and forested ecosystems to sustain our natural resources and connect people to the land."

Crellin Project

ground will have a dry-stream bed, train/tipple courtyard, "mining camp," and "Kendall House," named after a lumber company that operated a sawmill in Crellin.

The features were developed from interviews conducted by the students. They asked older Crellin area residents what they remembered most about the town and drew sketches based on those memories. The Canaan Valley Institute helped with the interview process.

"The community was involved in the project every step of the way," McCauley said.

She said ideas also came from a community brainstorming session. Residents "threw out" ideas for the project, many of which will be used. For example, mothers wanted someplace where they and their children could walk, and a trail design was developed.

"It's really impressive to see the enthusiasm of the community," Commissioner Ernie Gregg said.

Leathers and Associates of Ithaca, N.Y., was the lead firm responsible for the design of the playground. The company interviewed community leaders and incorporated some of their ideas as well.

But Doug Storck's Deep Creek Lake Design Studio also donated time and talent to the project. The studio's Joby Tasker worked with Leathers on local issues, offered input on the overall theme, and completed graphic representations of the design.

His design portion of the playground was the dry-stream bed, which will be located between two play areas – one for school age children and the other for ages 2 to 5.

"[It's] meant to provide historical symbolism to the site, in the sense that logs were transported to the mill by waterways," Tasker said about the bed.

The design represents a waterway that was used to transport logs, but it has dried up, hence the logs scattered throughout the dry stream bed, he said.

"To symbolize the coal industry, a bridge connecting the two play areas will be inlaid with materials that will mimic a railroad," Tasker added.

The school's Parent Teacher Organization has also played a major role. In addition to spearheading the project, the group holds a fundraiser each month, such as a spaghetti dinner, dance, funnel cake sales, and raffles.

The students are committed to the project as well and have made or collected donations.

"The kids are coming in with buckets of nickels and dimes," Yoder said.

Numerous other individuals, organizations, and businesses have also donated to the project, including the Fraternal Order of Police Lodge #99 and Team One.

Yoder has scheduled a playground construction day on June 4. Three teams of construction workers will work one day, from sunup to sundown, building the playground equipment. The volunteers will include students of all ages, McCauley added.

There will be certain safety guidelines for them to follow, but all the students will be involved in the construction process in some-way, she said.

"The last time we had this much enthusiasm involved, we ended up with a beautiful library," said Commissioner Dave Beard about a similar community quest to build a new library in Grantsville.

The Carl DelSignore Foundation was formed under the will of Carl DelSignore, who died in 1985. He and his brothers Carmen and Warren were the owners of Buffalo Coal Company and related companies, which were principally engaged in coal mining operations in Garrett and Allegany counties and Grant and Tucker counties in West Virginia.

The foundation has given charitable gifts to numerous educational, religious, and organizations in the areas where the companies operated.

Maryland's Local Officials Study Budget Boost, Bemoan Grant Cuts

by Mike Torralba
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Many counties will see significant cuts in some state grants, though the overall increase in state aid to local governments will rise.

Gov. Robert Ehrlich's proposed 2006 budget earmarks $5.1 billion for counties and municipalities, up $396 million, or 8 percent, from the current fiscal year. Most of that total — more than $4 billion — is assistance to public schools, according to a report by the nonpartisan Department of Legislative Services. Public school aid would increase by $392 million, or 11 percent.

Ehrlich has highlighted public school construction as one of the most pressing issues this year. Funding for transportation projects also would increase by $102 million, or 22 percent, thanks to the restoration of a grant that had been cut the last two years.

Maryland's 23 counties and Baltimore are to receive $554 million in revenue for road improvements from gas taxes and vehicle-title and registration fees. Counties receive the bulk of revenues from these "highway user's fees."

James Peck, director of research for the Maryland Municipal League, praised the administration for restoring those revenues. He said he expected towns and cities to fare better in 2006 than they have in previous years. But some county administrators are concerned, as they were in years past, that they will lose major sources of revenue if certain state grants are cut or eliminated.

Salisbury Mayor Barrie Tilghman, the league's president, told the Senate Budget and Taxation Committee on Wednesday that the restored highway user's revenues had instilled a combined sense of "relief and cautious feeling of optimism" among municipal leaders.

But she said that most local officials are still considering raising property taxes — their chief source of revenue — if state aid is inadequate.

Sen. J. Lowell Stoltzfus, R-Somerset, defended the governor's budget. He said the "unfunded mandate" of the Thornton public-school improvement plan forced aid cuts in recent years.

"That's the major reason you guys are suffering," Stoltzfus said to Tilghman and two other local officials on the panel.

One of the biggest targets for cuts is the fund that assists counties with large electricity-generating plants. Ehrlich's budget cuts $30.6 million from the electric utility fund, which was enacted in 1999, around the same time the electric utilities were deregulated.

During the two previous legislative sessions, Ehrlich unsuccessfully tried to spike the fund which helps 10 counties and Baltimore. [illegible] will not see [illegible] utility grant money. Most of that goes toward education. Administrator Eugene Lauer estimated that property owners would have to pay 2.2 cents, 1 cent more, for every $100 of assessed property value to make up for the lost revenue. So a home with a $100,000 assessed value would be taxed $2,200 — $1,000 more than the current rate.

But Lauer maintained he has no plans to raise the property tax rate.

"We don't get that, it'll be $1.3 million less that education is going to get," Lauer said. But he added that it "doesn't mean we're going to go broke."

Harford County Executive James Haskins anticipates rolling with the punch.

"We'll absorb it," he said. "The state of Maryland and county governments are partners. When one partner is ailing, the other partner has to step up and help out."

Prince George's will see the greatest cut in total grants in 2006: nearly $20 million. About half of that will come out of Project Open Space, the perennial go-to special fund that the Ehrlich administration wants to wean Maryland from in the coming years.

In Prince George's, a special education grant and the Challenge Grant for struggling schools was cut for a combined $2.6 million.

At a House Ways and Means Committee hearing Tuesday, budget analyst John Rohrer said the Challenge Grant, which serves schools in Prince George's and eight other jurisdictions, has been gutted. It was worth about $3.8 million. Calvert County, with one of the smallest populations of the 11 jurisdictions receiving the utility grant, stands to lose $6.1 million, the most per county resident, according to Legislative Services. Calvert County also is the home district of Senate President Thomas V. Mike Miller Jr., a Democrat.

Miller said he would fight to have the electric utility grant restored and criticized Ehrlich for the move.

"What he's trying to force the Legislature to do is be the bad guy — take the money from some other very worthy cause and return it to the counties," Miller said. He also complained that the administration did not discuss the cut with local-government officials.

Budget Secretary James "Chip" DiPaula said the administration had had "plenty of conversations" with county administrators last year.

"When this tax grant came into effect, everyone knew that it would be phased out at some point," DiPaula said.

House Speaker Michael Busch, a Democrat whose own Anne Arundel County stands to lose $7.8 million in utility-grant money, described the lack of communication as "a poor way to deal with your partners in the local county governments."

Senators Seeking To Stem Growing Number of Uninsured Marylanders

Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — The number of Marylanders without health insurance grew 7.2 percent in one year, with thousands more of them young adults, health officials told lawmakers Tuesday, figures that have legislators scrambling to reverse the trend.

The Maryland Health Care Commission reported to the Senate Finance Committee Tuesday that the number of Marylanders without health insurance increased from 690,000 to 740,000 in 2003, or 13.6 percent of the state population. That figure exceeded the 12.8 percent uninsured in 2000.

The commission also reported that 40 percent of the uninsured are between the ages of 19-34, something that lawmakers found alarming.

To counter these problems, Delegate Donald Elliott, R-Frederick, and Barbara Hoffman, a former state senator, proposed some solutions to a work group after Tuesday's commission briefing.

Elliott, who sits on the House Health and Government Operations Committee, proposed a bill to levy a surcharge on the taxable income of Marylanders earning more than 300 percent of the federal poverty level (about $56,000 for individuals and $84,000 for married couples) who do not have health insurance.

The bill, which Elliott plans to introduce along with House health committee Vice Chairman Peter Hammen, D-Baltimore, would mandate a 1 percent surcharge on individuals' incomes and 2 percent on that of couples. The bill includes a one-year grace period.

Health care advocates attending the meeting were supportive, but said the move would be unprecedented. Senators questioned whether Maryland should become the first state to impose such a tax.

"We're going to dictate people's personal lifestyles" by passing the bill, said Sen. Thomas Middleton, D-Charles, Senate Finance Committee chairman. "That's not something we can take lightly."

The other proposal came in response to commission figures that show that between 2001-2003 the number of employed Marylanders covered through employer-sponsored health insurance decreased 3 percent (to 72 percent).

Hoffman, a state senator from 1983-2003, proposed the Fair Share Health Care plan to reverse that trend. The plan calls for the state to require Maryland employers with at least 10,000 full- and part-time employees to spend at least 8 percent of payroll costs on employee health coverage.

Opponents in the work group charged that only two for-profit companies would be affected by the plan — Wal-Mart and Giant Food Inc.

Hoffman countered, arguing that "this is not a target bill." According to the advocacy coalition Health Care For All!, Montgomery County Executive Doug Duncan, Baltimore City Mayor Martin O'Malley, and a Giant Food vice president will publicly endorse this plan soon in Annapolis.

Middleton promised there would be some new legislation this year because the committee wants to make health care affordable, accessible and attractive to 20- and 30-somethings. As a start, both the House and Senate passed bills in 2004 requiring the commission to investigate the affordability of private health insurance and to present its findings in January 2006.

The commission presented its interim report to the Senate Finance Committee on this issue Tuesday. It stated that, while more lower-income people are now uninsured, fewer medium-income people now go without insurance. Young Marylanders, it said, do not pay for health insurance because it is too expensive for individuals to purchase and for employers to provide. It costs the state millions of dollars annually to support the uninsured.

"We seem to have designed a plan that doesn't accomplish what we wanted it to do," said Sen. E.J. Pipkin, R-Queen-Anne's, complaining that many young Maryland adults "still play health insurance roulette."

Lawmakers Considering Eliminating Maryland Sales Tax On Textbooks

by Deitrich Curry
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Like most students starting school today, Ebony Wilder, 19, a sophomore at the University of Maryland College Park, has to shell out more than tuition money. Wilder expects to spend about $500 for textbooks in five classes and there doesn't seem to be any relief from that cost for her anytime soon.

Delegate Peter Franchot, D-Montgomery, has proposed a bill to exempt textbooks from the state's 5 percent sales tax in an effort to cushion the rising cost of higher education. The bill would cost the state about $12 million in lost revenue, according to the bill.

"It's a small amount that can be found in the budget for the support of college students," Franchot said.

But several lawmakers said the bill will do more harm than help.

"I like helping students. It should be a priority on our list," said Delegate Jon Cardin, D-Baltimore County. "The question is how are we going to pay for it."

"It's too expensive for the good you get out of it," said Delegate Jean Cryor, R-Montgomery. Students will only save 5 cents on a dollar, which Cryor estimates to be about $50 per student per semester. It is not worth the $12 million that it will cost the state, Cryor said.

"I would not anticipate it will get out of committee," she said.

Legislators are looking for other ways to alleviate the high price of textbooks, but Cryor said that eliminating the sales tax is a poor solution to the problem. Compared to the $25.9 billion budget that Gov. Robert Ehrlich proposed, Franchot said the expense is worth the loss in revenues.

Higher education spending has declined and tuition has risen an average of 30 percent over the last couple years. Only this year did Ehrlich add $43 million in operating costs for the university system, limiting the in-state tuition increase to no more than 5.9 percent this fiscal year.

Those cost pressures have meant that some students are not purchasing textbooks, Franchot said.

Franchot proposed the bill, he said, because of "Bob Ehrlich's hammering of the university," Franchot said.

Marty Freedman, an accounting professor at Towson University, did not realize how costly text books were until he went into the bookstore one day.

"I was amazed," he said. "The professors are really not aware." In his undergraduate accounting class, students do not have to purchase a book, but in his graduate class, the book costs about $80.

Most books for major classes cost about $100 each and the prices increase every year, said Joyce Nelson, manager at Morgan State University's bookstore. She is undecided on her position on the textbook bill.

"It would be less expensive for the students and less revenue for the state," Nelson said. "Legislators have to decide who can readily afford the loss."

Tichinel Named To Dean's List

Gabriel, formerly of Swanton and LaVale, recently earned dean's list honors for the fall 2004 semester at St. Thomas University School of Law in Miami, Fla., where he is a second year law student. Dean's list recognition requires a grade point average of at least 3.5 on a 4.0 scale.

Gabriel attended Garrett College from 1997 to 1999 and subsequently graduated magna cum laude from Frostburg State University in May 2001. He was the Department of History honor graduate of his graduating class at Frostburg.

Gabriel, his wife Andi, and son William reside in Hialeah, Fla., where Andi is a nurse manager at Palmetto Hospital near Miami.

Austin is slated for a transfer from his position as a civilian contract specialist for the Office of Naval Research in Arlington, Va., to the Air Force Research Laboratory, Kirtland Air Force Base, Albuquerque, N.M. He will serve at Kirtland as a contract cost/price analyst.

HYDROGEN CARS

Q. At the big annual car show in Detroit this year, they were showing off a car that runs on hydrogen. How does that work?

The hydrogen car is a big hope for the future, because it is non-polluting and will help get our nation unhooked from dependence on foreign oil. However, it will be many more years before this is a practical means of transportation.

As displayed at the auto show, the hydrogen car looks just like a "regular" car, and that's important in order to give the public a sense of comfort with it. If you're just a rider on a single trip, nothing seems unusual. But what goes on under the hood is very unusual, nothing at all like a conventional automobile engine. There you'll find a fuel cell.

Any automobile engine actually does just one thing very well: it makes a shaft rotate. That rotation goes to work causing the wheels to turn and the car to move. What's interesting is how that rotation occurs. In the standard internal combustion engine, fuel (usually gasoline) is burned (exploded) inside the cylinders, and the explosive force of the hot gases pushes against the pistons. The pistons are connected to a crankshaft, which rotates. A century ago, some cars were driven by steam power, which has been used for centuries to push pistons.

In the hydrogen car, the fuel goes through a very different process, but the final outcome is still that a shaft rotates. Instead of cylinders and spark plugs and pistons, the hydrogen fuel is "burned" in a different way. Gases of hydrogen (H_2) and oxygen (O_2) both enter a fuel cell containing a chemical solution. There they are combined to form water (H_2O). The trick is that the fuel cell contains a very special membrane that keeps the bubbles of O_2 and H_2 apart. Protons (a proton is the nucleus of a hydrogen atom) are allowed to pass through this membrane, but electrons cannot – the electrons have to take the long way around, going outside through a wire, before they can return and complete the chemical reaction.

When electrons have to take the long way around and travel through a wire, that's an electric current. A current can be used to power an electric motor, and the entire purpose of an electric motor is to rotate a shaft. From that point on, to make the wheels turn, the Hydrogen car is the same as a conventional auto.

Notice that water is the only thing coming out of the fuel cell. That's what makes the hydrogen car non-polluting. You can drink the exhaust product.

Auto manufacturers have been able to achieve several important goals in their demonstration models: good acceleration, high speed, reasonable distance covered, etc. Steering, braking and so forth have nothing to do with the engine, so they are completely normal. The fuel cell car behaves pretty much as an ordinary car. That is the whole point of demonstrating the concept at the annual auto show.

There are a few places where hydrogen-powered vehicles are in operation, in limited applications. For example, in Vancouver, B.C. (Canada), a fleet of buses powered by hydrogen take people around the downtown area. In certain other communities, vehicles owned by the local municipality are run on hydrogen, partly for the novelty of it, partly to reduce pollution, but also to gain some experience with the long-term behavior of such vehicles.

One of the questions that needs to be answered is "Where do I go to fill up with hydrogen?" Municipalities that own fleets of vehicles can afford to build their own refueling facilities. But for John Q. Public, at the present time, there aren't any "gas stations" for hydrogen, and that obstacle is known as the infrastructure problem. Another question is "Where does the hydrogen come from in the first place?" I'll discuss those topics next time.

PAWS Gets Grant To Help Ease Feral Cat Problem

PETsMART Charities has recently awarded Garrett County's PAWS (Partners for Animal Welfare and Safety) organization a $3,000 grant. The money is to be used to begin a pilot Trap-Neuter-Return program aimed at reducing the number of stray and feral (wild) cats in Oakland and the surrounding areas.

Tarp-Neuter-Return, or TNR, and is a full management plan in which stray and feral cats living outdoors in cities, towns, and rural areas are humanely trapped, evaluated, vaccinated, and sterilized by veterinarians. When volunteer homes are available, kittens and tame strays are fostered and eventually adopted into good homes, a PAWS spokesperson said. Healthy adult cats too wild to be adopted are marked as sterile, and returned to their familiar surroundings under the lifelong care of volunteers.

In special situations where cats are living in dangerous conditions or in areas where their presence poses a problem, the cats are trapped, sterilized, and relocated.

The grant awarded by PETsMART is to be used specifically to help cover the cost of having homeless cats sterilized and vaccinated for rabies, the spokesperson said.

"TNR is a method of feral cat population control being used by animal control and welfare organizations in communities nationwide with great success," said the spokesperson. "It has been shown to be an effective means of stabilizing feral cat populations and has succeeded in reducing numbers of homeless cats where programs of eradication (euthanasia) have failed. Major humane organizations such the ASPCA, Doris Day Foundation, the Humane Society of the United States, the North Coast Animal League, and others endorse TNR as the best, most cost-effective and humane means of controlling homeless cat populations."

Members of PAWS hope to build a successful TNR program in Garrett County. They have already started some trapping of cats in a colony located in the downtown Oakland area. Twelve cats have been trapped since Nov. 12, the spokesperson reported. The adult cats have been successfully relocated after being vaccinated and sterilized, and three kittens have been adopted into good homes.

"This is only a start," the spokesperson said. "Cat overpopulation is a community problem, and PAWS will rely heavily on community cooperation and support for this program to succeed. We hope that cat lovers will rally behind this cause. Educating cat owners to be responsible by keeping their cats safe and happy indoors and having their pets spayed or neutered is going to be key to the program's success as well."

PAWS members are asking people currently feeding stray cats to get in touch with them so that they can determine where TNR help is needed.

"The desire is to reach these individuals while the cat numbers they are caring for are still manageable and before breeding turns two or three cats into 10 or 16."

The increase in the length of days triggers female cats to go in heat and begin breeding. First litters of kittens can be seen as early as March, the spokesperson said.

Monetary donations are also being sought by the organization. As previously stated, the PETsMART grant will help subsidize the cost of having homeless cats spayed or neutered and pay for rabies vaccinations, but will provide only $25 for each cat. That is about a one half to a third of what the fees will be. PAWS will be responsible for coming up with the rest of the funds needed to cover those veterinary costs.

Traps and other equipment, such as cat carriers and leather gloves, are also needed. Anyone wishing to donate to the program is asked to send contributions to PAWS Help for Homeless Cats at P.O. Box 745, McHenry, MD 21541.

Persons interested in helping trap cats, transport them to and from the vet, helping manage a feral cat colony, or fostering or adopting tame kittens and other strays are urged to contact a PAWS volunteer at 301-334-2699 for more information.

Those willing to have healthy, altered feral cats relocated onto their property are also being sought. For more information on the PAWS TNR program or TNR in general visit the PAWS web site at www.-garrettpaws.org.

The PAWS TNR Program is for feral and homeless cats only. Spay/neuter assistance for pet cats is available through the PAWS program for low-income pet owners and through other sources in the county. For more information on this subject, persons may contact PAWS, the Garrett County Animal Shelter, or the Garrett County Humane Society.

Church Presenting "How Not To Be Your Child's ATM"

The Oak Park Church of the Brethren will present "How Not to be Your Child's ATM" on Tuesday, Feb. 1, at 7 p.m. Church Communication Network (CCN) will broadcast the program live via satellite to the church, which is located at 110 Church Lane, across from Southern High School.

The event is free and open to the public.

Leading the broadcast will be Nathan Dungan, a longtime money manager and author of Prodigal Sons & Material Girls. In his first broadcast for CCN, he will challenge parents to help their children to become "savvy consumers who make decisions based on their values."

Dungan, a speaker and consultant on financial issues, will focus on his "share, save, and spend" philosophy and how parents can use it to help their children better understand the value of money.

He will also help parents engage their kids in conversations about money, helping kids to understand the difference between wants and needs, and to think about and manage money from "God's perspective."

For more information, persons may call 301-334-2243.

Message from the Dean's Desk — Garrett College

by Dr. Virginia Broaddus
Dean of Academic Affairs

These days, I'm reminding myself rather regularly that, no matter how old I am or how much time has passed, it's never really too late to embark on a new adventure, to learn a new skill, to catch up with former students, or to devote myself to a cause.

For instance, when Michael Swiderski returned from leading a group of students to Florida, where they documented key GPS waypoints along the proposed Florida State Circumnavigation Saltwater Paddling Trail, I realized that no matter how much we've explored our environment, it's never too late to learn more about it. I'll be eager to hear Michael and his students' presentation on Feb. 9 at 6:30 p.m. at Brenda's Pizzeria; the public is welcome to attend. Undoubtedly, Michael and his students will teach us the glory of accepting a new challenge.

It's a lesson that Peter Skylstad and his students have been learning, too. For some time, Peter, associate director of our Natural Resources and Wildlife Fisheries program, has led Garrett students in using a GIS system to map wetlands. Soon, in fact, Peter and his students will have mapped all the wetlands in all of Maryland's state parks, a spectacular accomplishment. He and his students have just completed a similar project at the Wisp, and we at GC are proud of the skills they've acquired and the amount they've contributed to preserving our environment.

We're also proud of Rick McCrobie, coordinator of agricultural studies, for embarking on a grant-funded adventure to Brazil, where he joined Maryland's Agricultural Leadership Development Program in studying agriculture abroad. Rick, who's worked with director of technologies Jim Allen to procure several agriculture grants, will bring back new lessons that we hope to apply as we literally "grow" a sustainable agriculture option at Garrett. It's never too late, we believe, to contemplate new ventures that may benefit our students and our community.

It's also never too late to learn or fine-tune new skills in more traditional classroom settings, whether in mathematics or ceramics, chemistry or computer applications. This semester we're offering three new fine arts courses at Garrett. Students can study fiction writing with Dr. Greg Jenkins, an established and respected published author whose work has been collected in Night Games and reviewed by the New York Times. Students can also study introduction to stage design with Ben Sincell, whose work in the arts in Garrett County is extraordinary and who will help students design productions for Our Town Theatre. Jerry McGee, who has performed internationally and has a long history of working with sacred music, will teach music in religious thought and practice. Jerry and Ben's classes are even featuring a "late start," beginning the second week in February.

Other courses in which students might be interested include business ethics and excel, as well as introduction to computers. Incidentally, we're delighted when senior citizens remind us that it's never too late to learn, and we're glad they can take advantage of Garrett's free tuition and most fees when they register for courses.

Speaking of students who've learned and applied skills, it's never too late to congratulate those who started at Garrett and subsequently continued their education. For instance, I was delighted to read about Megan Bernard and Mary Pritts, who began at Garrett and whose academic achievements at Frostburg and Cedarville are now gaining well-deserved praise. I was equally glad to hear recently from Mia Leone, a Garrett graduate who played volleyball for us and went on to graduate with distinction from West Virginia University. Mia called to let me know that she's doing well in her master's program in elementary education, and I couldn't be more proud of her and her achievements.

It's also never too late, or too early, to cheer on a cause, a lesson brought home by Garrett's mens' basketball team, which worked vigorously to support the Snowball Race for a Cure that benefited Cindy's Fund. Led by coaches Dennis Gibson, Brett Coleman, and Dave Martin, the team members did a great job of helping with various tasks during the race and were a great inspiration in cheering on runners and walkers. We at GC are proud of these young men for reaching out and sharing their time. Their work raised funds to allow researchers to find a cure for a disease that has touched so many, including many in our Garrett family. Their efforts and energy remind me that giving of ourselves creates unimaginable strength.

Effort and energy can be hard to find, I know. Especially in the occasionally bleak winter, it's often a challenge to learn a new skill or start a new venture or work for a worthy cause. Yet when I look at our students, our faculty, and our staff at Garrett, I find the energy I need. No matter whether our students are navigating Florida waters or cheering on runners, whether they're acing their studies or starting new degrees, or whether they're taking a new course simply out of interest, they're inspiring to me and to their faculty. I'm glad that it's never, really, too late to say just how proud I am of Garrett College and those who bring it to life.

Farming On The Mountaintop

Garrett-Preston RDC Conducts '05 Ag Summit

More than 30 agriculture leaders recently gathered for the 2005 Agriculture Summit at Alpine Lake, W.Va., to "help chart the future of agriculture on the Mountain Top."

The event, sponsored by the Garrett Preston Rural Development Coalition, provided a forum for participants to offer suggestions and directions to the RDC, according to Willie Lantz of the Garrett County office of the University of Maryland Extension Service.

Lantz, who also serves as an advisor to the RDC board, said the group identified three key issues as topics for discussion: youth in agriculture, infrastructure, and marketing opportunities for local agriculture.

Joyce Bishoff, chairperson of the RDC board, opened the meeting by charging the participants with the task of "leading agriculture toward the next century."

Cheryl DeBerry, agriculture marketing specialist with the Garrett County Department of Economic Development, then reviewed highlights of the Garrett County Agriculture Marketing Plan. The RDC will use suggestions from the summit to formulate a strategic plan, according to Lantz.

The county commissioners in both counties appointed the six-member RDC board, which promotes agriculture profitability and serves as a liaison between farmers and government agencies. The group recently received two grants which will assist in promoting agriculture through the "Visiting Our Working Farms" brochure and the Old-Fashioned 4th of July event at the Garrett County Fairgrounds in McHenry.

The RDC is currently planning the 4th annual Rural Enterprise Conference, which will be held on March 19 at the Robert Byrd Training Facility at Camp Dawson near Kingwood, W.Va.

The RDC board meets monthly. For more information about the board, persons may call the Extension offices in Garrett or Preston counties at 301-334-6960 or 304-329-1391.

NEW UNIFORM GUIDELINES FOR FSA COUNTY COMMITTEE ELECTIONS ANNOUNCED

New uniform guidelines for conducting Farm Service Agency County Committee elections were recently announced. Authorized by the 2002 Farm Bill, these guidelines are designed to increase the participation of minority and women producers.

On August 17, 2004, the USDA published a list of proposed guidelines in the Federal Register for public comment. The proposed guidelines were developed based on input from associations, community groups and leaders, as well as by an inter-agency working group convened by the Secretary of Agriculture. Due to the many public comments received, the comment period was extended until October 16, 2004.

As the result of the comments received and further consideration of the secretary, some of the proposed guidelines have been modified in the final guidelines published in the Federal Register. The adopted provisions pertaining to the county FSA committee election process include the following:

•Requires that ballots be mailed directly to the state FSA office only at the request of one candidate, or when the secretary determines that this procedure is necessary for any specific county FSA committee. In all other cases, voters will return their ballots to their county FSA office. Ballot opening and counting will be fully open and accessible to the public, with 10 days' advance notice of the date and time of the vote tabulation.

•If no valid nominations are filed, the secretary may nominate up to two individuals to be placed on the ballot. If the secretary does not exercise this authority, the state FSA committee may do this. If neither the secretary not the state FSA committee chooses to exercise this authority, then the county FSA committee shall nominate two individuals to be placed on the ballot.

•The county FSA committee will annually review the Local Administrative Area (LAA) boundaries to ensure the fair representation of Socially Disadvantaged Producers (SDA) in the area, with sufficient time for public input of proposed LAA boundary changes prior to the state FSA committee review. In specific instances, FSA Headquarters in Washington, D.C., may conduct further review of LAA boundary changes if further review is sought by either the public or deemed appropriate.

•County FSA offices shall actively locate and recruit eligible candidates identified as SDA farmers as potential nominees for the county FSA committee elections using any reasonable means necessary, including the development partnerships with community based organizations.

•Allows for the release of voter names and addresses to candidates. All other eligible voters will only be entitled to review a list of the voter names.

FSA will incorporate the new guidelines into regulations governing county FSA committee elections. The guidelines represent the USDA's commitment to ensuring that all producers have fair and equal access to all programs. FSA will continue to look for more ways to ensure that county FSA committees fairly represent producers in covered areas.

Joel Salatin Ag Program Slated In Salisbury, Pa.

The Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA) invites all area farmers to attend a program titled "A Day with Joel Salatin" on Tuesday, Feb. 22, at the Salisbury, Pa., fire hall.

During this all-day format, Joel Salatin will give examples of how family farming, multi-species grazing, and relationship marketing can all work to improve one's bottom line. Lunch will feature pastured meats, and there will be time for questions and answers.

Salatin is a nationally renowned speaker on organic farming and "relationship marketing," who challenges farmers to look critically at how they produce and market food. By putting an emphasis on improving the "profit ratio," Salatin has developed techniques for reducing inputs and increasing returns.

For example, Salatin entices the pig to work for him, which replaces the need for machinery and petroleum.

"In the winter, we bed cows in the hayshed every couple days with straw, wood chips, or leaves to lock soluble nutrients with carbon, to minimize leaching and vaporization," he said. "In between the layers of bedding pack, we add whole corn. In the spring, when cows go back out to graze, we turn pigs into that anaerobic bedding pack which has fermented the corn. It entices them to root through the deep bedding, aerate the pack, and initiate aerobic composting. This saves the step of windrowing compost. It creates a perfect and passionate living environment for a pig, and replaces tractors that rust with 'pig-aerators' that grow."

Salatin says he is on a mission to develop emotionally, economically, and environmentally enhanced agricultural enterprises. He is the author of several books, including Pastured Poultry Profits, Salad Bar Beef, You Can Farm, and Family Friendly Farming among them.

The meeting will be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The Salisbury fire hall is located at the intersection of Rts. 669 and 219. The $10 fee includes lunch. To register or obtain more information, persons may telephone PASA at 814-349-9856 or visit the PASA web site at www.pasafarming.org.

Dr. Vough Will Conduct Winter Crop Meetings

According to the Maryland Agriculture Statistics Service, Garrett County ranks 4th among Maryland counties in forage production. That production includes over 25,000 acres of hay and numerous other crops.

Dr. Les Vough will be the featured speaker at the first of a series of winter crop meetings being sponsored by the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service. Dr. Vough will lead an interactive discussion on leading topics in forage production.

Vough, a native of Somerset County, Pa., holds a bachelor of science degree in agronomy from Penn State University, and was awarded a Ph.D. from Purdue University in 1972. He is a leading forage researcher in the eastern United States, and conducts research at the Central Maryland Research and Education Center near Clarksville.

Dr. Vough conducted alfalfa fertility, cutting management, and variety trials in Garrett County from 1991 to 1996.

The first meeting in the series will be held next Thursday, Feb. 3, at two local locations: the Pleasant Valley Community Building from 1 to 3 p.m., and the Grantsville Senior Center from 7 to 9 p.m. There is a $5 registration fee that will be collected at the door.

Personnel from the Maryland Department of Agriculture and the Natural Resource Conservation Service will also be on hand to give farmers updates of programs and activities.

This meeting will qualify for Nutrient Voucher recertification for MDA. To register for the meeting and/or obtain more information, persons may call the Garrett County Cooperative Extension office at 301-334-6960.

LOAN DEFICIENCY PAYMENTS

Maintaining beneficial interest is a key rule for grain to be eligible for loan deficiency payments (LDP). There are two types of LDPs – field direct and basic. They each require different forms to be executed in a timely manner. In the case of field direct, producers of commodities must complete a field direct LDP agreement (CCC-709) prior to harvest. Producers can use the CCC-709 form to cover some or all of their production.

A basic LDP is requested in the same manner as a CCC loan, after the grain has been harvested and put into storage but prior to losing beneficial interest. Producers must complete a CCC-633, Loan Deficiency Payment Certification and Application prior to losing beneficial interest. Once a producer loses beneficial interest in a commodity it can not be regained for LDP purposes.

DCP SIGN-UP

Producers may sign up for the 2005 Direct and Counter-Cyclical Program. Producers who want to update their contracts need to address land and business issues like rented land and lease requirements before updating their contracts. Since this program has moved to the World Wide Web, it takes longer to process the contracts. For your benefit please call the office to make an appointment.

TO FIX OR NOT TO FIX?

Minor or cosmetic repairs are inevitable when preparing to sell your home. Such projects are usually inexpensive and don't require much time or effort. But what about bigger repairs going beyond the aesthetic but not approaching the level of health or safety hazards?

Whether or not you "take care of business" before listing depends on the market situation, and a real estate agent can advise you on whether or not the repairs will benefit your sale time and price.

In a "hot" market, you may not need to take any action, but in a buyer's market, you have to make repairs just to compete. First-time buyers and those with busy schedules won't even consider a home in need of repairs they simply don't have the time. Condition is everything, and experience proves that the homes in the best condition sell faster and for a higher price.

Anticipate the inspection report – many home sales include a clause that allows the buyers to withdraw an offer if the report is unsatisfactory or needed repairs are left unfinished. If they don't back out, buyers will offer significantly less in anticipation of their repair costs.

If you're in a lower end market, over-improvement can be an issue you want to avoid, but most sellers realize that "new" or "newly replaced" will be music to the buyer's ears, so play on!

If you'd like to sell your home, but feel "out of touch" with what's happening in real estate, give me a call today!

BARTLETT DISTRIBUTES TOYS TO TSUNAMI VICTIMS – Rep. Roscoe Bartlett (R-6-MD) recently joined International Relief Development Inc. (IRD) staff members in delivering 10,000 pounds of relief supplies to tsunami victims in Medan, Indonesia. The congressman, pictured at the far left in the photo below, handed out teddy bears, soccer balls, and letters from American children to their Indonesian peers. The remaining supplies were unloaded by members of IRD's emergency response team and distributed to refugee camps. "I am extremely grateful for this overwhelming community response and my ability to help deliver that assistance to the people of Indonesia who need it so much," Bartlett said. The congressman was also part of a bipartisan congressional delegation that recently visited North Korea, South Korea, China, Japan, Russia, and Indonesia. The delegation's mission was to help improve relations between North Korea and the United States. Based in Arlington, Va., IRD is a non-profit organization specializing in international development and humanitarian assistance. According to the organization, it has supplied more than $5.7 million in assistance to disaster areas in Southeast Asia since the tsunami struck on Dec. 26, 2004. "My warmest gratitude goes to Congressman Bartlett for his initiative in getting these supplies delivered immediately to the Aceh Province," said Dr. Arthur B. Keys Jr., president and CEO of IRD. "Our staff in Banda Aceh report they were completely unprepared for the amount of devastation they have witnessed in the past few weeks. They describe a devastating scene with bodies still piled along roads, an unbearable stench, and an overwhelming need for food, water, shelter, and reconstruction that will surely last for years to come. It's a quiet evening. The prime time movie is about to begin in the family room. Suddenly... "Stay tuned to this station for a special announcement. The national weather service is predicting ten to twelve inches of snow within the next twenty-four hours. Cancellations will be announced as they are received."

The children cheer as their parents groan. Though some of us look forward to the snow, it is a source of inconvenience for many. A loss of electricity, fender-benders, that frantic search for child-care when the schools close...snowy weather can add to our stress. Yet, when we are all "snowed in", we have the opportunity for togetherness that we otherwise wouldn't. This is a good time to drink hot chocolate and to share our thoughts and our dreams and to reflect upon God's role in our lives.

Finally, remember that the warmth of God's house waits. Worship Him each week. Even as the snow falls, church bells chime.

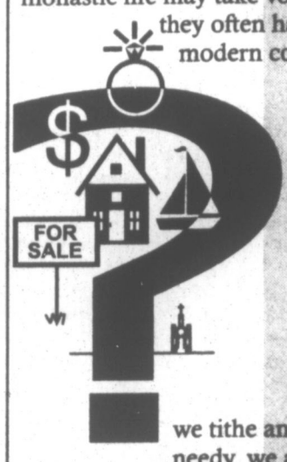
Could You Give Everything Away?

Jesus told his potential followers that whoever of you does not renounce all that he has cannot be my disciple (Luke 14:33). And Jesus advised the ruler who asked him what he must do to inherit eternal life that he should sell everything he had, distribute the money to the poor, and come follow Him (Luke 18:22). Just as this was very hard for the rich ruler to hear, so it is hard for us to imagine giving everything we have to the poor and following in Jesus' footsteps. Despite the fact that there are millions of Christians, very few have been able to do this. Those few who have chosen to follow the monastic life may take vows of poverty, but even so, they often have access to all the modern comforts of hearth and home. For most of us, we simply enjoy our possessions too much to imagine giving them all away. And, we can justify our non-adherence to this particular precept by saying as long as we are not too attached to our possessions, we are abiding by the spirit of the gospels. Or, as long as we tithe and give to the poor and needy, we are trying to be good Christians. These may be convenient rationalizations, and it may even be true that we can do more good by continuing to work and amass wealth which we can then give to charity; however, we have to be honest enough to admit that most of us do not live up to this gospel precept.



Sell your possessions, and give alms...For where your treasure, there will your heart be also.

Ingredient in Chocolate May Control Coughing

Recently, British researchers indicated that one of the ingredients in chocolate could eventually become an effective prescription or over-the-counter cough medicine ingredient.. The ingredient to which they refer is theobromine, which is found naturally in cocoa. The research was conducted with 10 healthy volunteers who received either codeine (an effective cough suppressant), theobromine, or placebo. Researchers then gave the volunteers capsaicin, a substance that causes test subjects to cough.

According to those conducting the research, the amount of capsaicin needed to produce a cough was about 30% more in the theobromine subjects compared to those who got the placebo. The amount of capsaicin needed to cause coughing in those who got codeine was only slightly more than those who got placebo. Researchers concluded that theobromine was more effective than codeine in controlling cough in this small study. In addition it was reported that those who got theobromine had no central nervous system or cardiovascular side effects.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

I saw an old movie about the compact of early oil exploration in a nearby small coastal town in Louisiana which had based its life on the fishing industry. It could be an old western about the battle between open-range cattlemen and homesteader farmers. It is a very old story about the never-ending conflict between a longtime and beloved way of life against new ideas and different dreams and the way of life. In the movie the town people defend their way of life, sometimes with violence and illegal maneuvers and deep visions of us against them.

Of course, this reminds me of our way of life in our small community with how progress is forcing people to change different aspects of their lives, yet still hold on to traditional values without compromising our integrity. Is it somehow possible to integrate this new world into the old and still have a happy ending? I sometimes imagine how Deep Creek Lake would have been if it were all a national state park that allowed only sailboats and canoes on the lake. Imagine how blue and beautiful the water would be, surrounded by a soft green wilderness. I imagine people would come from far away places to see the quiet beauty.

But as fate would have it, progress rolled into Garrett County and everything seems to be for sale for large sums of money, breaking up a lot of farms. So hopefully with all the conflicts that come with progress, our new way of life will be "filled with harmony" like an old black and white mare.

It looks like Pittsburgh was having better weather than Boston on Sunday in time for the Steeler game. It seemed as nothing could help our Steelers win the game, as they made some pretty bad plays with interceptions and fumbles. Oh well, another disappointment. When winter lingers too long and when it turns really ugly it takes the pep out of a person. It is now so cold that no one wants to do anything. Only about 20 or so hardy folks made it to our church on Sunday morning, which did not include our organist, Sheila Southerly, my mother, and myself.

FAMILIES PARTICIPATE IN PIZZA & PLAY – Several local children and their families had a great time last week playing, eating pizza, and making snowflake photo magnets at Healthy Families Garrett County Pizza & Play. Held the third Wednesday of every month, Pizza & Play alternates between the Garrett County Health Department's Oakland and Grantsville locations. The program is open to families enrolled in Healthy Families, Early Head Start, Head Start, the Judy Center, and Infants & Toddlers. For more information, persons may call 301-334-7720 or 301-895-3111. Justin and Xavier Regan are pictured above enjoying some pizza together, while playing in the picture below, left to right, are Ethan Beane, James Lynch, Destiny Claywell, Daniel Stottlemeyer, and Christa Mora of Healthy Families.

Even if we have too much snow, still the Bittinger snow machine has started early. I saw the first snow plow on Rock Lodge Road before 7 a.m., and my wonderful snow removal machine driven by Jack Beitzel's son was right behind the county crew.

When I was a kid it seemed like there was much more snow and no covered cabs on tractors. What a bitter job my father faced opening our long, windy lane for the milk truck every two days. If they couldn't collect hundreds of gallons of fresh milk, it would be a big hole in our family income. In those days we could expect 10-foot drifts between the barn and the road. It was great to make snow tunnels and forts, and great for tobogganing.

Sheila Southerly and I fondly remember our ice skating. Every pond around Bittinger was frozen enough to skate. This year the lake hasn't even frozen over by the middle of January. Of course, it is not always a safe activity even when the ice is solid. Just ask my mother what can happen at a middle-aged skating party. When I was away at college Bob and Phyllis Buckel hosted a skating party on their pond. Several from the community and from their work place attended. Unfortunately, my mother took a bad spill and ended up in the hospital for eight days with a sprained and strained upper leg area. She had torn the muscles and ligaments in both legs. The doctor said it was more painful and severe than a broken leg, to which she can attest. Thank goodness for the rescue squad, as they had to carry her off on a stretcher.

Oh, but for the good old days. Maybe my generation has more sense than they did (but I doubt it). Sheila's big brother Denny called her on Sunday morning to tell her it was not fit to go anywhere, which she listened to.

Meredith and Caitlin joined our new neighbors, Claire and Marielle, over the weekend to visit with their father in Baltimore. They got home in time to see some of the pitiful AFC championship game, as we couldn't find the Terps' game on TV, but we will be sure to tune in to the big game on Wednesday evening against the Duke Blue Devils.

However, over at Carol's house my mother and Carol got a glimpse of Robbie playing in the Maryland Pep Band at Sunday's game. It was an exciting moment for them.

It is a good thing when a birthday cluster happens because it reminds me about a birthday not always in the front of one's mind. I knew that my Meredith arrived just barely missing cousin Courtney Englar's birthday. I am ashamed to admit that I don't know the birthday of most of my first cousins or even my aunts' and uncles' birthdays, with the exception of the easy one of Aunt Helen's, which happens to be a leap year occasion every four years on February 29.

I did remember Courtney's birthday on January 27, and this year was the big one for him. Of course, the half century mark is not as big a deal for males as it for us gals! I was able to throw a very small birthday dinner party for him, with only three guests, but that is as big a party as I can handle these days. Unfortunately, he took a bad fall in his home the next night and broke a whole bunch of ribs, even puncturing a lung. It seems that is how it goes as soon as you hit the 50 mark–everything falls apart. Also, I know how painful broken ribs must be, as my Dad told me about the time when he was in the Army and he suffered some broken ribs. While on leave he went to an Abbott and Costello movie and had to leave the theater because it hurt too bad to laugh.

Today, I heard that my mother, Ruth DiPaolo, had a front page picture in the Cumberland Times-News. No wonder they picked her for a photograph at a senior citizen yoga exercise class because she is still built like a fit, young woman. Actually, quite a few of my aged gals wish we had her figure like a 75-year-old Barbie doll.

What a dismal weekend for sports fans along Rock Lodge Road. In spite of my excellent homemade "terrible towels," the Steelers did not live up to their great heritage. I will use the two towels for terrible handkerchiefs because this terrible cold still lingers. I guess I can't expect it to end anytime soon because, judging from the experience that Lesa Whittemore had with her cold, it could last a whole month.

With urgent appeals for donations to aid the tsunami victims and the necessity to fill my heating tank, it looks like my budget for the month is busted. It is true I can't afford to give away much money, but I can't afford not to. I could not live with myself if I know a few dollars can save people from starving and disease, even if they are half of the world away. The spirit of my brother Scott still lives in me, and since he was taken away from this world I have to try to do his work for him even if it means instead of buying Kleenex I use old rags. Now the final straw is that my oven is broken and it would cost more to fix than the stove is worth. I should give up, but I can't, as it is not in my character to give up. But it does seem like crisis after crisis has finally taken too big a toll on me.

Our boy band, White Noise, got a surprise, a well-paid gig at Wisp Ski Lodge Saturday night when a band previously scheduled canceled because of the snow storm in the Baltimore area. Of course, a little snow could not stop Garrett County folks. So the band members and their proud parents made it to a packed house. One member of the audience told me that, as good as the band was, the best thing of the evening was watching the faces of the parents because they are very proud of their kids.

The helping hands of the Bittinger Lutheran Parish Angel Bells have a new excellent project. I am not sure that I am in time to let people know about it, at least for the trial run of cooking large amounts of soup. This week on Tuesday and Wednesday a crew of cooks will invade the fire hall to make gallons of soup to sell to anyone. If it is a success, they may do it each month. I was able to order two quarts of chicken noodle and two quarts of chili. Linda Buckel is the coordinator. I know their chefs are ready and able to do a good job.

Darryl and Elliot Glotfelty participated in the Blind Skiers Program at the Wisp this week. This is the second year that they have participated.

Ruth DiPaolo visited her cousin, Lucille Patton Ritter, in Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, this week. She underwent surgery and will probably be hospitalized for a week.

Strange BUT TRUE

• When you read the comics, have you ever noticed that the illustrator uses little wavy lines to indicate movement? As it turns out, those lines have a name: They're "agitrons."

• Michael Dell — of Dell Computer fame — made $2,000 when he was 12 years old by selling stamps on consignment. The following year he became a speculator in gold and silver, and when he was 17 he made $18,000 by selling newspaper subscriptions. He started selling computers when he was a freshman in college, averaging $50,000 in sales every month. After his first year he dropped out of college to go into business for himself; the year he would have graduated he earned a total of $159 million, and he was a billionaire by the time he was 31.

• It was mystery novelist Agatha Christie who observed, "An archaeologist is the best husband a woman can have; the older she gets, the more interested he is in her."

• When Tabasco Sauce was first available for purchase, it was sold in used cologne bottles.

• One of the earliest recorded references to beer comes from 3000 B.C.: Sumerians left recipes for more than 20 varieties of beer inscribed on clay tablets.

• TV journalist Diane Sawyer was vice president of the student body when she was in college, but her social life seems to have been somewhat lacking. It's been reported that she only had four or five dates during her four years of college.

• In 1959, the Postmaster General of the United States predicted that guided missiles would one day deliver the mail — and he was certain this would occur before man landed on the moon.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Feb. 6, 1820, the first organized immigration of freed slaves to Africa from the United States departs New York harbor on a journey to Freetown, Sierra Leone, in West Africa. The immigration was largely the work of the American Colonization Society, which later founded the colony of Liberia south of Sierra Leone.

• On Feb. 1, 1898, the Travelers Insurance Company of Hartford, Conn., becomes the first company to issue an automobile insurance policy to an individual. Dr. Truman J. Martin of Buffalo, N.Y., paid a premium of $11.25 for the policy that covered $5,000 to $10,000 of liability.

• On Feb. 5, 1937, President Franklin Roosevelt announces a controversial plan to expand the Supreme Court to as many as 15 judges, allegedly to make it more efficient. Critics charged that Roosevelt was trying to "pack" the court and thus neutralize justices hostile to his New Deal.

• On Feb. 4, 1941, the United Service Organization, a civilian agency, is founded to offer support for U.S. service members and their families. The USO is best known for sending actors, musicians and other performers to entertain U.S. troops.

• On Feb. 3, 1959, rock stars Buddy Holly, Ritchie Valens and J.P. "The Big Bopper" Richardson are killed when their chartered airplane crashes in Iowa minutes after takeoff. Holly, 22, had just scored a No. 1 hit, "That'll Be the Day," while Valens, 17, also had hits with "Donna" and "La Bamba."

• On Feb. 2, 1982, David Letterman's offbeat late-night talk show debuts. A favorite of college students, the show aired after Johnny Carson's "The Tonight Show."

• On Jan. 31, 1990, the Soviet Union's first McDonald's fast-food restaurant opens in Moscow, and throngs of people line up to pay the equivalent of several days' wages for Big Macs, shakes and french fries. An American journalist reported the customers seemed most amazed at the "simple sight of polite shop workers."

Training Puppies and Older Dogs

Q. When is the best age to train a dog? Are dogs untrainable after a certain age? — Clive B., Cincinnati

A. While "training" is something that should be a regular feature throughout a dog's life, the best period to begin basic obedience training is between five and 12 weeks of age.

As soon as a puppy has been weaned, he is awake, aware and in "full explorer mode," learning all there is to know in the world around him. Much of his temperament also develops during this period, as he reacts to new stimuli — both positive and negative.

The frequency of your training sessions, the information given and the way you communicate with the puppy are all extremely important at this stage. Give short, one- or two-syllable commands in a firm tone of voice (confidently, rather than loudly or pleading). Reward correct actions immediately, either with a treat or a pat and words of praise. Reprimand incorrect actions with a firm "no", or "nyahh" (like a little growl), again within a few seconds. Consistent, attentive training sessions, conducted daily (or more often), will quickly teach your puppy how to work with the rest of the family.

Older dogs are not impossible to train, but some things are harder to teach than others — especially depending on how the dog was initially raised and the environment in which it lived. An adopted dog often shows undesirable behavior, such as dominance, excessive barking, attention-seeking or stealing food.

It's important to quickly establish authority and a "pecking order" in the household, and to consistently show the dog what is and is not acceptable behavior. Done correctly, positive results can happen with surprising speed — although some older dogs require more time and patience.

Owners of adopted dogs, as soon as (or before) they bring their new family member home, should pick up a book or two on obedience training and correcting bad habits.

Swarovski Crystal

Q. Is there a good reference book you can recommend concerning Swarovski crystal? — Betty, Miami, Fla.

A. One of the better publications is Collecting Swarovski: Identification and Price Guide, by Dean A. Genth (Krause Publications, $29.99). This lavish guide features more than 900 listings and 300 photographs.

According to Genth, Daniel Swarovski founded his company near the Austrian village of Wattens in 1895. Swarovski, a crystal stonecutter, invented a machine that allowed him to produce high-quality stones and crystal with exceptional brilliance.

The beauty and elegance of Swarovski silver crystal is cherished and collected throughout the world. Typical values include a small crystal butterfly, $90; a stylized pear, $185; and a geometric paperweight, $250.

Q. I have several dozen trading cards featuring airplanes from World War II. The cards were manufactured and distributed by Wing cigarettes. Whom can I contact to buy them? — Fay, Silver Creek, N.Y.

A. Two dealers specializing in tobacco memorabilia are Mark Suozzi, P.O. Box 102, Ashfield, MA 01330; and J. Glenn, Main Street Antiques, 47 West Main St., P.O. Box 627, New Market, MD 21774.

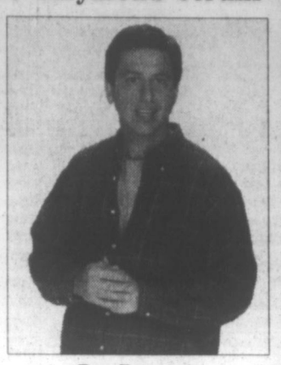
Everybody doesn't love 'Raymond' reruns

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it



Ray Romano

Q: How can the final year of "Everybody Loves Raymond" be nothing but repeats? We deserve better than that. –Katharine Kirk, Shoreline, Wash.

A: Well, now, let's be fair. While it's true this last season of Ray Romano's CBS sitcom has involved a good number of repeats, not all the episodes have been reruns. The way it's turned out isn't really a surprise, since the deal was for the cast and crew to make 16 new episodes for the final year; that is less than the standard 22-episode order, so repeats have been used to fill out the show's run and land the final episode at the end of the season. The fact is that "Raymond" could have ended, and very nearly did, last spring. Executive producer Phil Rosenthal told TV critics last summer, "I'd like the audience to think of these 16 as encores."

Q: I was, and still am, a huge fan of "Lois & Clark: The New Adventures of Superman." I was wondering if a reunion show or TV movie is planned in the near future. –Sunny Johnson, Long Island, N.Y.

A: Not that we know of, especially since Teri Hatcher – alias Lois – has this little thing called "Desperate Housewives" going now, and it would most likely preclude her from assuming her earlier role. Beyond that, Warner Bros. has been very cautious about having more than one "Superman"-related venture active at one time, which is why the studio is dancing carefully around the ongoing WB Network series "Smallville" in readying the feature film "Superman Returns," planned for a 2006 release.

Q: I had read a new "Little House on the Prairie" movie was supposed to air in October. I never saw it listed, so did I miss the movie? Or was it rescheduled or perhaps canceled? –T.L., via e-mail.

A: "Rescheduled" is the answer, so you'll be glad to know you haven't missed it. ABC now plans to show the project, titled "Laura Ingalls Wilder's Little House on the Prairie," as a weekly series over five consecutive Saturdays starting March 26. The most recognizable name in the cast is Cameron Bancroft, who was a regular on "Beverly Hills, 90210" for a while; he inherits Michael Landon's former series role as family patriarch Charles Ingalls.

Q: Is Anthony LaPaglia of "Without a Trace" the same actor who played Daphne's drunken brother on "Frasier"? If so, it was great acting. I hated him! –Betty Cushman, Rumney, N.H.

A: Yes, it's him, and Emmy voters agreed with you in 2002. They gave him an award for the recurring guest role, for which he also was nominated two other times.

The Bittinger 4-H Club elected new officers at its January meeting. They are: Elliot Glotfelty, president; Caity Sussman, vice president; Blakely Glotfelty, secretary; Scott Bass, treasurer; and Darryl Glotfelty, reporter. They will assume their duties beginning with the February meeting.

Also at the January meeting the club decided to make many charitable donations. Two $100 donations were given to the Bittinger Volunteer Fire Department and the Ladies Auxiliary. The club also donated another $100 to the American Red Cross for tsunami relief.

Members of the club also enjoyed a day of skiing on 4-H Ski Day, which was January 21. Those who participated were Matt, Scott, and Emma Bass, Darryl and Elliot Glotfelty, Alex Beitzel, and parent Carol Bass.

RYAN'S GLADE

The monthly meeting of the Ryan's Glade 4-H Club was held on Jan. 18 at the Ryan's Glade Community Center. The meeting was called to order by Andrea Steyer. We then held the election of the 2005 officers which are as follows: Andrea Steyer, president; Brandon Manko, vice president; Jennifer Steyer, secretary; Jessica Steyer, treasurer; and Gary Pritts, reporter/historian. Then the officers were installed by the new leader, Kay Steyer.

Randi Bennett led the American pledge, and Chas Custer led the 4-H pledge. Members were reminded that each should do at least one talk or demonstration on each of their 4-H projects throughout the year. The new secretary took roll, which was answered with each member naming a project. Members were also reminded that the 2004 record books are due to Kay as soon as possible.

Members were also reminded that the Garrett County Livestock Association Snow Tubing event will be held Feb. 13 from 1 to 3 p.m.

Our leader reminded members that the 4-H meetings will continue to be held on the third Tuesday of every month unless otherwise noted.

Andrea Steyer then gave a demonstration using her record book about all the necessary items needed in a record book.

The Clovers showed us the popsicle stick snowmen they made.

The next meeting will be held on Feb. 15 at 7 p.m.

TRAILBLAZERS
by Emily Cosner, reporter

The January meeting of the Trailblazers 4-H Club was held on Dec. 20 at Yough Glades Elementary School. The club welcomed two new members: Samantha Cook and Nicole Pysell.

We turned in our record books, and enrollment forms were distributed to the new members.

We were reminded to review the requirements for the Diamond Clover Award to see if we could get to the next level for 2004.

Emily Green, president, told us about a tubing event sponsored by the Livestock Association on Feb. 13, and reminded everyone that Livestock Association dues were due by the end of this month.

We then planned our activities for the year and decided which families would be in charge of the program and refreshments each month. We also all signed up for a month to do a demonstration at the meeting.

We decided to donate to the Cheryl Skipper Memorial Fund. Members who want to add to what the club is donating should bring their money to the next meeting.

The meeting was adjourned by Candace Blamble, and refreshments were provided by the Cosners.

The next meeting will be held Feb. 17 at Yough Glades Elementary School at 7:30 p.m. All members will be giving a speech.

OAKLAND OAK LEAVES

The first meeting of the new year for the Oakland Oak Leaves 4-H Club was held on Jan. 21.

New officers were elected: William Taylor, president; Paige Fitzwater, vice president; Patricia Sherrard, secretary; and Catlin Carnico, treasurer.

The club made plans for the next five months, and members chose new projects for the year.

The club is seeking new members and planned some recruitment activities, such as dog sled riding, bowling, a campfire outing, and more.

The club meets the third Thursday of each month at the Garrett County Extension Office. For more information, persons may call Pam Trickett at 301-334-6960.

NORTH STAR
by Kevin Haenftling, reporter

Members of the North Star 4-H Club met Jan. 11 at the Accident Volunteer Fire Department for its first meeting of the year. Roll call was "name your favorite winter activity." Angie LaMastus led the American pledge, and Jennifer LaMastus led the 4-H pledge.

Anna Custer was the guest speaker. She talked to the members about how to give a good speech. The subjects she covered were prepared and extemporaneous speeches, radio spots, and interpretations.

Kara Savage gave a report on the Christmas dinner. Kevin Haenftling reported on the planning meeting. Rachel Schmidt reported on the livestock meeting. The group discussed their preferences concerning the livestock sale at the fair.

Club members decided to give a donation to the Skipper family, and they also decided to donate two trophies for dairy a the Garrett County Fair.

They discussed achievement night, which will be held April 2 at Northern Garrett High School.

The club planned to go see the movie Racing Stripes on Saturday, Jan. 15.

Members were reminded about the officers training at Northern Middle School, Livestock Skill-A-Thon, and the County Council meeting.

Kara Savage gave three demonstrations. They were on veterinary science, scrapbooking, and leadership projects. Rachel Schmidt gave a demonstration about her archery project.

Anyone interested in joining the club may attend the Feb. 8 meeting. The crafts start at 6:30 p.m., and the meeting begins at 7 p.m. We have a Clover Club, and children 5 years of age are encouraged to join. Garrett College To Offer Courses For Business Owners

The Continuing Education & Training Division of Garrett College will offer three courses of interest to business owners, managers, and potential new business owners during the next several weeks.

"Management Matrix" will be held on Wednesdays, Feb. 9 through March 9, from 6 until 9:15 p.m. at the McHenry campus.

The course was developed by the instructor, Michael Pellet, and his colleges to improve management skills in the following areas: time management, goal setting, money management, policy statement, performance standards, and quality assurance programs.

THE SUN – The sun spends the first 15 days of February in the star group Capricornus. On February 16 the sun enters the star group Aquarius, where it stays until March 10. The amount of daily sunlight slowly grows in February, from about 10 hours and 12 minutes to 11 hours and 16 minutes by month's end. In early February the sun rises about 7:26 a.m., and sets around 5:38 p.m. In late February sunrises are about 6:53 a.m. while sunsets are about 6:09 p.m. The sun's midday height during February grows from 33 to 42 degrees (30 degrees is 1/3 of the way from the horizon to the top of the sky). In February the length of twilight is an hour, meaning that the fainter stars fade from view about an hour before sunrise and the fainter stars reappear an hour after sunset. In mid-February, we have about 11.3 hours each night for star gazing.

THE MOON – As February begins, the moon shines in the early morning sky. On the days around February 8 (new moon) the moon hides in the sun's glare. On February 10 the moon reappears as a narrow crescent low in the western dusk. By February 15 the moon has grown to half full, appearing as a letter "D," the best moon shape to view the craters with binoculars. On February 19-20 the moon appears close to the bright planet Saturn. The moon is nearly full on the evening of February 23, as it shines among the stars of Leo. In late February, the moon appears in the late evening sky near the bright planet Jupiter.

THE SOLAR SYSTEM – Our five nearest planetary neighbors appear as points of light that shine steady, unlike the bright night stars that twinkle. The brilliant planet Venus is too close to the sun to be seen in February. Low in the southeastern dawn is the planet Mars, shining in front of the stars of Sagittarius. In the late evening sky the bright planet Jupiter can seen low in the east. During the evening hours, the bright planet Saturn moves from the southeast to the south. At the end of February, the planet Mercury may be glimpsed low in the western dusk.

THE STARS – Orion, the year's brightest star group, is at its best on February evenings. Orion's trademark is its belt of three stars in a row. Above and to the left is Betelgeuse, a bright pinkish star. Below and to the right of the belt is Rigel, Orion's brightest star. If you make a line with Orion's belt and go down and left, you come to Sirius, the night's brightest star. The Big Dipper is stunning in the north-northeast, with its top two stars pointing left to the North Star, a modest star about halfway up in the northern sky. At dawn, the stars then on display match the stars of early summer evenings. Midway in the northeast is the bright star Vega. High in the north is the Big Dipper. Extend the Dipper's handle outward and you'll come to Arcturus, a bright golden star nearly overhead.

FEBUARY ASTRONOMY ACTIVITIES – The Frostburg State University Planetarium will feature "Sky, Astrology, and Romance" at 4 and 7 p.m. each Sunday. The public programs last about 50 minutes, and begin with a brief tour of the current evening sky. Persons may call 301-687-4270 for directions and further information.

The Cumberland Astronomy Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, Feb. 18, at the LaVale Public Library. All sky gazers are welcome.

Dr. Doyle writes this column for beginners who would like to identify the brightest stars, planets and sights in their backyards. To ask questions or request a 2005 Sky Calendar, winter/spring sky charts, or a brochure, persons may call the FSU Planetarium at 301-687-4270 and press 4. Doyle hosts "SkyWatch," a brief program on days of the week and sky sights, that airs weekday evenings just before 9 p.m. on WFWM at 91.9 FM in western Garrett County and 96.3 FM in the Oakland area. Doyle's e-mail address is rdoyle@frostburg.edu.

DEMS DONATE PILLOW FOR SOLDIERS – The Garrett County Democratic Club made a donation recently to the "Pillows for Patriots" drive sponsored by the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce. The program acquires pillows for the soldiers of D Company 1-506, which is stationed in Iraq. Pictured are Democratic Club president Betty Pritt, left, as she presents a pillow to Chamber representative Laura Reilly.

Garrett County Has Record Low Unemployment

The Garrett County commissioners announced this week that the county had a record low unemployment rate of 5.9 percent for 2004, according to the Department of Labor, Licensing and Regulation (DLLR) statistics.

"The 2004 rate represents continued improvement and a significant reduction from the 1997 annual average rate of 13.7 percent, which was driven by the closure of the Bausch & Lomb manufacturing facility near Mountain Lake Park," the commissioners noted in a press release.

The officials said they anticipate further improvement as a result of several ongoing developments, including the American Woodmark and ClosetMaid projects.

The American Woodmark dimension mill, to be constructed at the Keyser's Ridge Business Park later this year, will employ 250 people when fully staffed, according to the commissioners.

The ClosetMaid manufacturing and distribution facility proposed for the Northern Garrett Industrial Park in Grantsville is expected to employ more than 700 people when fully operational, the officials noted.

The commissioners said they were also optimistic there would be growth in several local businesses during the next few years.

"Potential employees must strive to improve their skills," said Commissioner Ernie Gregg, chairman of the Board of Garrett County Commissioners. "The county is providing opportunities for work-force training. Employees can not depend on the law of supply and demand to elevate their standard of living."

With this in mind, the Garrett County Department of Economic Development, Board of Education, Garrett College, and Chamber of Commerce have partnered on several programs to help improve the local workforce and student interest in engineering, technology, and business careers. Those programs include Project Lead the Way and PIVOT (Partners in Valuable Ongoing Training).

Blaze Destroys Pair Of Patriot Motors Pickups

A fire believed to have been caused by an electrical problem resulted in the destruction of two pickup trucks last evening at Patriot Dodge, Chrysler, and Jeep, located at 2499 Maryland Highway, just east of Mtn. Lake Park.

Volunteers from Deer Park and Oakland were summoned to that location at 6:14 p.m. after an employee saw smoke coming from under the hood of a 2004 Dodge pickup. Before the arrival of the first fire units the flames had consumed the Dodge and spread to an adjacent 2003 Chevrolet pickup.

According to Deputy State Fire Marshal Jamie Rodeheaver, the loss is estimated to be $42,000. He said that the fire originated in the engine compartment of the Dodge pickup and ruled the preliminary cause as electrical and accidental.

Approximately 15 firefighters responded and brought the fire under control in about 15 minutes. No injuries were reported.

Charges Pending In Two-Vehicle Mishap Sunday

Charges are pending in a two-vehicle accident Sunday afternoon at the intersection of Liberty Street and Oakland Rosedale Road, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

John H. Smith, 64, Oakland, was exiting Glades Square onto Liberty Street when his vehicle entered into the path of a 1988 Jeep operated by Lorraine Burns, 30, Oakland. Smith was transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries.

Also responding to the 12:30 p.m. incident were Oakland firefighters.

In another incident, Dennis Alan Kosanic, 30, Bayard, W.Va., was arrested for drunk driving after his vehicle was stopped on George Washington Highway near Althouse Hill Road for crossing the center line several times, police said.

Kosanic was charged with driving under the influence (DUI), DUI per se, driving while impaired, and failure to drive right of cen-

Commissioners Receive Harvey House Update

Assistant program coordinator Patricia Schrock updated the Garrett County commissioners this week on recent activities at the Harvey House.

Located along Third Street in Oakland, the drop-in center offers consumers of mental health services a place to socialize and discuss issues in a relaxed, home-like atmosphere.

Schrock noted the center recently changed its hours of operation. It is now open Monday, Wednesday, and Friday from noon until 4 p.m., and Saturday from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.

During the summer months about 20 people visit Harvey House on an average day, but attendance has decreased this winter, according to Schrock.

"The weather is making it rough for some people to get in," she said. Illness has also kept some at home.

"We don't want to shut down. It's helping a lot of people," Schrock said about the center.

She added that the center is trying to encourage more people to come in, rather than sit at home and "feel bad about themselves."

No referrals are needed, and all services are free. Transportation to and from the center is also provided free to consumers. Family members are also welcome. The center provides a free meal, and coffee and snacks are always available.

Scheduled activities for February include shopping, Bible study, bingo, games, crafts, movies, a pizza day, and a party and gift exchange on Valentine's Day.

Trips are also planned. Some of the center's staff

Grantsville Man Injured Tuesday As Tire Explodes

A Grantsville-area man who was knocked unconscious after a tire exploded at his repair shop Tuesday morning was flown to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where he was treated and released that same afternoon.

Thomas Wayne Menges, 52, was filling a trailer tire with an air hose at Menges Truck Repair along National Pike at Keyser's Ridge when the tire's sidewall blew out. The air hose blew back and struck him in the head, knocking several teeth loose and leaving a gash behind one ear. Menges, who regained consciousness within minutes, was flown from the scene by Maryland State Police helicopter Trooper 5. He required stitches to his head, and one tooth had to be removed.

Commissioners Set New Building Fees For Towers

The Garrett County commissioners this week established new building permit fees for towers. Effective Feb. 1, the fee for utility and public telecommunication towers – including radio, television and cellular telephone antennas, electric generating wind turbines, and the like – is $1 per foot. The minimum fee is $60.

The height of any proposed tower will be based on its above-ground elevation, measured to the highest point of any part of it, including the blades of wind turbines.

The fee for private-non-utility telecommunications towers, such as those used by amateur radio operators, is a flat fee of $30.

Staff members of the Garrett County Department of Planning and Land Development had suggested recently that a fee for towers be established. Previously, the county had no line item in the fee schedule specifically for towers. A flat fee of $30, based on two building inspections, had been charged for all types of towers built in the county, including cellular telephone towers.

Given that numerous 390- to 400-foot wind turbines are expected to be constructed in the county soon, however, the staff felt it was in the county's best interest to establish a line item in the fee schedule specifically for towers and to set a fee that would cover inspections and other costs.

Director John Nelson of the department noted that turbines were more complex structures than most towers and would need to be inspected several times during construction. The department would also have to spend time addressing issues such as sediment control and soil erosion.

Two weeks ago, Nelson and his staff proposed a fee of $1 per foot, up to 200 feet, and a $10 per foot feet thereafter, for all types of towers. He told the commissioners, however, that the amount was only a proposal for their consideration. His main objective was simply to establish a fee schedule.

Nelson noted this week that the department had received e-mails from residents who were concerned about the proposal.

Swan Meadow Students Begin Project To Select Bird, Flower

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners approved a proposal by the students at Swan Meadow School to adopt a county bird and wildflower with the help of students at all county schools. Eight Swan Meadow students made the presentation to the commissioners at Tuesday's meeting.

The third, fourth, and fifth grade students created a decision matrix to narrow down their choices for county bird and wildflower. The matrix has six areas: uniqueness to Garrett County, four seasons, appearance, population, usefulness, and symbolism. Points are given in each category, and a total is then computed. The point system created was: 3 for "Best pick"; 2 for "I like it"; 1 for "OK"; and 0 for "No Way."

With the help of Jon Boone, students started with 25 birds, and narrowed the field to their top four picks. The top four birds are the rose-breasted grosbeak, the golden-crowned kinglet, the Eastern bluebird, and the black-capped chickadee.

For example, the students suggested that the black-capped chickadee be given a 3 for the four seasons category because it lives in Garrett County for all four seasons, and should be given a 3 for uniqueness because in Maryland, it only resides in Garrett and Allegany counties.

Their teacher, Arlene Lantz, who helped with the presentation, told the commissioners that the symbolism section is where personal preference comes into play. For example, students decided that the chickadee symbolizes friendship and industriousness, because one can train a chickadee to take food from a hand and it loves sunflower seeds at bird feeders.

One of the students shared a story of how she and her siblings trained a chickadee to land on their hands. During the presentation, the commissioners shared several of their own personal stories of the birds that frequent their feeders.

The wildflower selection was also narrowed down to four choices with the help of Liz McDowell. The choices are the pink lady-slipper, the painted trillium, the Jack-in-the-Pulpit, and the wild columbine. The county flower will be chosen through the use of the same matrix.

According to Randee Craig, principal, students in all elementary schools and the science classes in the Man Jailed On Fugitive, Theft, Drug Charges

A Virginia man faces numerous charges filed by Maryland State Police troopers following a 10 a.m. traffic stop yesterday near Friendsville.

Robert Timothy Perrine, 35, Falls Church, was a passenger in a vehicle that was stopped on eastbound Interstate 68 at the three-marker mile when troopers observed a seatbelt violation. Perrine could not produce identification, and it was determined that he gave a false name during questioning. A National Crime Information Center computer check revealed that two warrants were on file for Perrine's arrest in Fauquier County, Va, and he was taken into custody as a wanted fugitive.

A search that ensued revealed suspected marijuana and drug paraphernalia, and Perrine was found to be carrying suspected stolen checks bearing forged signatures.

Perrine, who is being held in the Garrett County Detention Center without bond pending extradition to Virginia, faces charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia, theft, forgery, giving a false name to police, and being a fugitive from another jurisdiction.

History Students Raise $2,262 For Tsunami Victims

World history students at Southern High School raised $2,262 as part of their one-day fundraiser called "One for the World." The charity drive was aimed at getting SHS students involved in helping with relief and recovery efforts in the areas devastated by the tsunami that struck 11 countries in Indonesia on Dec. 26.

The funds raised included a $250 contribution made by Jennifer Burns, aunt of student leader Tonya Burns, and $600 donated by the SHS athletic department from the gate proceeds from last Friday's Northern

"SWEETS FOR MY SWEETIE" is the name of a special event that will be presented by the Garrett Choral Society at 2 p.m. on Sunday, Feb. 13, in celebration of Valentine's Day. According to director Julie Turrentine, the program will feature an afternoon concert of romantic songs at St. Paul's United Methodist Church in Oakland, which will be followed by the serving of desserts downstairs. During the dessert, persons will have the opportunity to purchase for a nominal fee "singing valentines," which will then be "delivered" by society members. The music will be a mix of traditional, contemporary, and Broadway selections. One of the duets slated for the concert will be "I am 16, Going on 17" from the musical Sound of Music, presented by Leah Warnick and Adam Sincell, pictured above. Various door prizes, including several dinners-for-two and gift baskets donated by local restaurants and businesses, will be awarded during the dessert time. Tickets are available from Garrett Choral Society members and at Gregg's Pharmacy, Oakland, at a cost of $8 for adults and $5 for children ages 12 and under. The event is made possible in part by a grant from the Garrett County Arts Council.

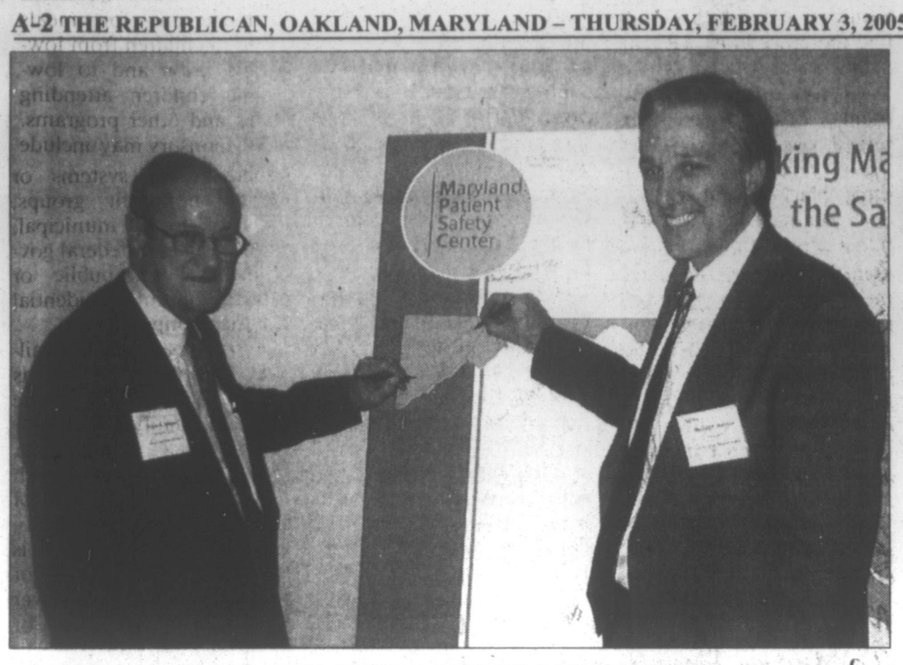
¢ENTS FOR TSUNAMI VICTIMS – The third grade class of Pat Foley at Dennett Road Elementary School is doing its part in the wake of the Dec. 26, 2004, tsunami disaster. Foley said the children were truly concerned about their peers in the devastated area and worked hard to come up with a plan to help them. The youngsters decided to bring in their spare change to start a collection. Then they opened it up to the whole school, placing "¢ents For Tsunami Victims" jars in every classroom. They first set a goal of $100. Then, after having such success, jumped it to $500. In the end, the children collected no less than $700, which will now be sent to UNICEF, Foley said. "I am so proud of them," said Foley. "They were really anxious to do something, and now they are so excited to have collected far more than they expected." The children also had the support of their teacher's son, Todd Foley, who assisted in the classroom during his college break in January. The class is pictured. In the front are Alison Gregory (left) and Angel Hardesty. In the second row, from left, are Garrett Brake, Rebecca Flinn, Tonya Sanders, Brandon Wotring, Tyler Haas, Lexie Elsey, and Chase Elsey. Third row, same order: Alex Anderson, Zak Thomas, Jacki Markwood, Nataley Bittinger, and D. J. Flanigan. Back row: Mrs. Foley, Courtni LaRue, Michael McEwen, Morgan Sanders, Derek Hinebaugh, Abby Buckley, Taylor Swift, and Evelyn McGehee.



GCMH ON BOARD WITH STATE'S PATIENT SAFETY CENTER The Maryland Patient Safety Center is a place where health care providers work together to study the causes of potentially unsafe medical practices and put practical improvements in place to prevent errors. Garrett County Memorial Hospital has signed on to the project in its continuing effort to "assure all patients a safe healthcare delivery experience," said Wayne Johnson, pictured at left as he and Donald Battista, GCMH president and CEO, sign on to the new statewide initiative. GCMH Becomes Part Of Patient Safety Center

The Maryland Patient Safety Center is a place where health care providers work together to study the causes of potentially unsafe practices and put practical improvements in place to prevent errors. Maryland is one of the first states to pioneer this new approach to improving safety, and Garrett County Memorial Hospital (GCMH) has signed on to be a part of the process.

The Maryland Patient Safety Center is a collaboration by two organizations that have led safety/quality initiatives in Maryland: Maryland Hospital Association (MHA) and Delmarva Foundation. The safety center is a non-regulatory, statewide effort, with the concept derived from Institute of Medicine recommendations and the successful activities of the Department of Veterans Affairs' (VA) National Patient Safety Center.

Resources for the Maryland Patient Safety Center come from various private sources, including hospitals and other providers. The MHA represents all of Maryland's hospitals and has been recognized for its involvement in quality of care and patient safety through the MEDSAFE initiative (a state-based program designed to reduce medication errors), its Quality Indicator Project, and educational activities through the Maryland Healthcare Education Institute (MHEI).

"Garrett County Memorial Hospital joins with hospitals across the state to strive to assure all patients a safe healthcare delivery experience," said Wayne Johnson, Garrett County Memorial Hospital board of governors chairman. "The doctors, nurses, technicians, and the entire staff at GCMH are all driven to provide the highest quality care in the safest possible environment to all who enter our doors."

GCMH will participate in educational activities and collaborative workshops with other providers across the state to share information, best practices, and lessons learned, and to implement system changes.

"Garrett County Memorial Hospital is committed to sharing and learning from others to put into place the best practices that can save lives, reduce pain and suffering, while also lowering costs," said Johnson.

Donald Battista, president and CEO of GCMH, said that all patients in the region and across Maryland will benefit by these efforts.

Glaring Sunlight Blamed For Two-Vehicle Mishap

Two people were transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital following a two-vehicle accident on Maryland Highway near Weber Road Monday, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Joseph Wayne Ashby, 30, Oakland, was traveling east on Maryland Highway and was stopped, attempting to turn left onto Oakland Drive. John Henry Wolf Jr., 18, Oakland, apparently did not see the vehicle because of glaring sunlight and struck the Ashby vehicle in the rear, police said.

Southern Rescue Squad and Oakland firefighters responded to the 8:20 a.m. incident.

Anti-Smoking Lawmakers Optimistic About Fourth Try For Bar/Rest. Ban

by Ryan Basen
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Lawmakers introduced bills Tuesday to ban smoking in most public places in Maryland for the fourth consecutive year, saying this is their best chance yet to succeed.

Sen. Ida Ruben, D-Montgomery, and Del. Barbara Frush, D-Prince George's, called a Tuesday news conference to promote the measures to ban smoking in all state bars and restaurants.

Because of mounting scientific evidence about the dangers of secondhand smoke, new data from a Gonzalez Research and Marketing Strategies survey, and new laws banning smoking in Italian and Irish bars, they are confident the ban will pass this year.

"There's no justification any more" to oppose the ban, Frush said. "It's just a matter of when, and we think when is now."

Representatives of Smoke-Free Maryland joined Frush and Ruben to announce the findings of the survey, which shows 63 percent of Marylanders favor a ban.

According to the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, secondhand smoke kills 1,000 people annually in Maryland. The dangers of secondhand smoke also harm bar staff and prevent many people from going to bars and restaurants, Ruben said.

The survey backed up her claims. The results indicated that 85 percent of Marylanders do not smoke and 19 percent would frequent bars more often if they were all smoke-free. Yet the survey also determined that 10 percent of Marylanders would go to bars less often if they were smoke-free.

Opponents of a smoking ban contend it would hurt the hospitality business, especially in areas close to the state line. They point to Montgomery County, which banned smoking in bars and restaurants in October 2003.

According to Melvin Thompson, vice president of government relations for the Restaurant Association of Maryland, five county bars have closed since then primarily because of the smoking ban. Another popular Bethesda bar, Flanagan's, is considering closing after 20 years on Old Georgetown Road, because its sales have declined 30 percent since the ban went into effect, said manager Patrick McDonagh.

McDonagh said many of his former customers have told him they have eschewed Flanagan's to go to bars in Washington, D.C., just two miles south so they can smoke.

Restaurant and bar owners in Maryland border towns fear they'll lose business for the same reason. Seven states have banned smoking in bars, including New York and Connecticut, but Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and Virginia have not.

"I really hope this doesn't happen," said Brian Olinger, assistant general manager at Brewski's Sports Bar in Cumberland, which is right across the bridge from bars in Ridgeley, W.Va. "For small bars and restaurants, I just don't see how that can help us."

Thompson called smoking ban proponents' data "senseless babble" because of their research methods and noted that they are not generally customers of bars that allow smoking.

"People who know nothing about running a restaurant business should not be setting restaurant business policies," he said. "Certainly there are concerns about secondhand smoke, but people make choices of what establishments they want to patronize."

Persons may still patronize smoking establishments because Maryland's 1995 law banning smoking in the workplace exempted bars and restaurants. Ruben began pushing to quash that exemption in 2002. That and similar bills were defeated, including a 6-5 decision by the Senate Finance Committee last year.

Ruben's new bill has also been assigned to the Senate Finance Committee, which has the same 11 members as last year.

Sen. Katherine Klausmeier, D-Baltimore County, a member of that committee, has proposed a different solution, introducing a bill in January to provide tax credits to Maryland bars and restaurants that ban smoking.

Ruben prefers to be more stringent and appeared confident in her chances — if not this year, then soon. She can lean on her experience working to pass legislation to put covers on load-carrying trucks, she said.

"It took me 15 years to get the covered trucks bill through," she said. "Does that tell you how persistent I'm going to be?"

"I believe this is one of the most important bills that we can pass in the Legislature . . . It's shameful that Maryland has not already passed this."

Baltimore Man Pleads Guilty To Drug Charge

A Baltimore man who pleaded guilty to drug paraphernalia possession was handed a $300 fine during a Garrett County District Court proceeding last week, with the payment suspended in lieu of credit for 75 days he had already spent in jail.

Robert Leroy Winnebrenner Jr., 38, was arrested in July during a search of a Grantsville apartment by the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force. Winnebrenner arrived at the apartment in the company of the resident as the search was commencing, and investigators asked permission to search the van the pair had arrived in. Located in the pocket of a jacket of Winnebrenner's was a substance believed to be burnt cocaine residue, along with a glass smoking device that bore suspected burnt crack cocaine residue.

Winnebrenner was also charged with possession of crack cocaine, a charge that was not prosecuted by the state attorney's office. Judge Ralph Burnett presided at the trial.

In other District Court news, Kenneth James McMaster, 20, Oakland pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor theft charge that stemmed from the December burglary of his grandmother's Oakland home. He was handed a one-year suspended sentence, fined $400, placed on two years' supervised probation, and ordered to make a restitution payment of $50 to the victim.

McMaster was arrested by Garrett County sheriff's deputies after several gold coins and miscellaneous jewelry were stolen from the home by perpetrators who had entered through an unlocked window while the resident was away. Additional charges of first-degree burglary, conspiring to commit first-degree burglary, and a second count of misdemeanor theft were not prosecuted.

Eric John Crawford, 24, Oakland, pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a probation before judgment (PBJ). Crawford also received a 30-day sentence, all but two days of which was suspended, and was fined $200, placed on six months' supervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service. His October arrest by Maryland state troopers followed a traffic stop on Garrett Highway near Deep Creek Lake, during which a search recovered a bag and a film canister of marijuana from his vehicle, plus a smoking device.

John Alouis Maier III, 26, Hopewell, N.J., pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a PBJ and a 30-day suspended sentence, a $300 fine, six months of unsupervised probation, and 60 hours of community service. Troopers jailed Maier in July after a traffic stop on Interstate 68 near Grantsville. When the odor of burnt marijuana was noted coming from the passenger compartment, Maier voluntarily turned over three bags of marijuana, a marijuana grinder, and rolling papers.

Kelsey Dawn Hannibal, 24, Ellicott City, was handed stet rulings on one count of marijuana possession and two counts of drug paraphernalia possession, while a charge of manufacturing marijuana with intent to distribute was not prosecuted. Her November arrest by state troopers resulted from a search of a Friendsville residence. Located inside the home were seven marijuana plants, one bag of marijuana, a set of weighing scales, and several smoking devices. Hannibal was the only person in the home at the time of the search.

Eric Lee Miller, 39, Bittinger, was handed a stet ruling on a second-degree assault charge that stemmed from a reported domestic altercation. State troopers arrested Miller following the September incident for allegedly punching his girlfriend in the face.

Gary Eldred Kroll, 44, Oakland, was not prosecuted on a second-degree assault charge. Sheriff's deputies arrested Kroll in November after a reported domestic altercation with his wife.

Finally, Eric Steven Humphrey, 29, Rosedale, was not prosecuted on a misdemeanor theft charge that stemmed from the November theft of a SpongeBob Squarepants promotional poster from the McHenry Burger King. State troopers questioned Humphrey and two other individuals in his company after observing the poster in plain view in his truck, which was parked at a McHenry motel.

A large inflatable SpongeBob Squarepants figure was also taken from outside the restaurant at the time of the poster theft. Although Humphrey was not accused of that crime, the charging statement indicated that a few hours after he was charged, the Burger King received a phone call from an anonymous male who stated only "SpongeBob is back, he's in the dumpster behind the Burger King."

A nine-foot-tall yellow figure recovered from the dumpster was subsequently identified as SpongeBob Squarepants.

DUI/DWI HEARINGS

Several driving while under the influence (DUI) and driving while impaired (DWI) cases were heard in traffic court recently.

Tina Joanne DeWitt, 23, Md., pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a 60-day sentence, all but two days of which was suspended, and was fined $400 and placed on two years of supervised probation.

Omer Glen Hemmelgarn, 25, Md., and Donald J. Balogh, 42, Pa., both pleaded guilty to respective DWI charges, and each received a PBJ along with a 30-day suspended sentence, a $455 fine, one year of supervised probation, and 30 hours of community service.

Rhonda Lynn Billinger, 39, W.Va., pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a PBJ, along with a 30-day suspended sentence, a $400 fine, one year of supervised probation, and 30 hours of community service.

Eric Lynn Rexrode, 23, Md., pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a PBJ, along with a 30-day suspended sentence, a $355 fine, one year of supervised probation, and 30 hours of community service.

SCHOOL BUS VIOLATIONS

Adam Eugene Smith, 24, Md., pleaded guilty to passing a stopped school bus operating its flashing red lights, and was fined $200.

Midwinter Bird Count Slated For Saturday

The Garrett County Midwinter Bird Count will take place this Saturday, Feb. 5, and all interested individuals, including previous count participants, are invited to take part. Data from the annual count is used to help discern year-to-year patterns in bird populations in the region.

"Garrett County has played host this winter to a variety of interesting birds, including rough-legged hawks hunting over open fields and, despite the snow and cold, a few great blue herons that have hunkered down in small patches of open water," said Garrett College professor of Natural Resources and Wildlife Technology Kevin Dodge, who is coordinating the Midwinter Bird Count along with Aaron Holochwost.

Participants can arrange to count birds in a particular section of the county or simply count the birds seen at their feeder or in their backyard. Persons who would like to join the count can contact Dodge or Holochwost at the numbers and e-mail addresses that appear at the end of this article.

Persons who would like to count birds at their feeders and in their yards this Saturday are asked to follow the procedures outlined below.

•Record the maximum number of each species observed over the course of the day. For example, if three black-capped chickadees are seen at one time, five a second time, and two at another time, the maximum number for recording purposes would be five.

•For species such as the northern cardinal, for which males and females are easily distinguished, count the maximum number of males and females separately, then add the two together.

•Keep track of the time period(s) during which feeders are checked on a regular basis (i.e., no need to stare out the window nonstop all day long). For instance, if a counter kept track of birds from 7:30 to 10 a.m., went shopping until 3 p.m., then watched his or her feeder again until 5 p.m., that individual would report that the feeder had been observed for 5.5 hours.

•Once the count is complete, relay results to Dodge by phone at 301-387-3328 or 301-245-4503, or via e-mail at kdodge@garrettcollege.edu; or Holochwost at 301-387-8563 or via e-mail at happypie@mindspring.com. Results can also be mailed to Kevin Dodge, c/o Garrett College, 687 Mosser Rd., McHenry, MD, 21541.

MSDE, First Lady Want Children To Access Free Summer Meals

State Superintendent of Schools Nancy Grasmick and Maryland First Lady Kendel S. Ehrlich are encouraging county recreation and parks groups, faith-based organizations, summer camps, migrant communities, and others to consider operating the Summer Food Service Program (SFSP) to ensure that Maryland children who take advantage of free and reduced-price meals during the school year don't go hungry during the summer.

The Maryland State Department of Education, through grants from the United States Department of Agriculture, administers the SFSP, which helps pay for meals and snacks served at summer programs in low-income areas statewide.

"The Summer Food Service Program offers a solutions for families that depend on school meals during the school year," said Grasmick. "If we can offer this valuable program in more locations, we can reach more children. Those children, will, in turn, arrive at school next fall well-nourished and ready to learn."

"Statewide, fewer than 15% of the children who are eligible for free or reduced-price school meals participate in the Summer Food Service Program," said Ehrlich. "We must work within our communities to reach out to those children so that this very basic need is met."

The SFSP offers federal reimbursement for meals served to children from low-income areas and to low-income children attending camps and other programs. SFSP sponsors may include public school systems or private nonprofit groups; units of local, municipal, county, state, or federal governments; and public or private nonprofit residential summer camps.

Reimbursement is available to sponsors in areas where at least 50% of the children qualify for free or reduced-price meals under the National School Lunch Program or when 50% of children enrolled in a program qualify. The SFSP is open to children age 18 or younger and to people over 18 who are mentally or physically disabled.

Most sponsors may be reimbursed for up to two meals/snacks per day.

Organizations interested in operating the SFSP should contact the Maryland State Department of Education at 410-767-0214. The deadline for applications is June 1.

Not Smug, But Proud...

For the second or third week in a row now our newspaper contains a number of photos and information about local efforts to raise money for the victims of the tsunami that devastated areas of Indonesia, Thailand, and other nations in December. Local schools, churches, youth groups, businesses, various civic/charitable organizations, and individuals have all been pitching in to try to help people whom they have never seen and probably will never meet; people of different races, of different religions, of different cultures.

There are, of course, many ongoing local needs for financial assistance, and there are literally thousands of charities and organizations that aid and assist our own citizens which constantly need donations. Yet Garrett County residents, as well as millions of other Americans in communities just like ours, are graciously opening their hearts, and their pocketbooks, to help people of other nations who are hurting. What a wonderful example we are setting for the rest of the world and for future generations of our own citizens.

As mentioned in an earlier editorial, there are plenty of nay-sayers who accuse the U.S. — its government, its citizens, its corporations — of not doing enough. After all, we are the wealthiest nation in the world, so we should do the most.

Well, we are doing the most, and then some. Even though the population of the United States represents only 6 percent of the world's population, we finance 40 percent of the world's total disaster relief and 60 percent of the world's total food donations.

And among our corporations, those entities that people both in and outside our nation love to hate, Pfizer donated $10 million in cash and $25 million in drugs to the tsunami relief effort. General Motors pledged $2 million in cash, agreed to match employee donations dollar for dollar, and has sent vehicles to transport food and medical supplies to the region. These are just two examples.

While the nations hit by the tsunami are inhabited primarily by Muslims, the response of most fellow Islamic nations to the disaster — even of the wealthiest of them — has been pathetic. Pfizer's donation exceeded those of oil-rich Saudi Arabia and Kuwait combined. United Arab Emirates donated about $20 million to their Islamic brothers and sisters, while Egypt (which, by the way, receives $2 billion in U.S. foreign aid annually) has given a paltry $104,000.

There are 57 Islamic nations that are doing so little to help, yet so many of the headlines in the world media slam only the U.S. for "not doing enough."

On a related topic, what a wonderful day it was Monday in Iraq where a free election was held for the first time in decades. And as some of us predicted, the proud, brave Iraqis literally stared potential death in the face and turned out by the millions to exercise this new freedom.

Once again, it was only because of the generosity of the United States — not only in the form of money, but also, far more importantly, in the sacrificing of the lives of over 1,400 of our finest young people — that this election was made possible.

Certainly we should not be smug, but we can be proud of our efforts.

To the Editor:

"One picture is worth a thousand words." I hope the citizens of Garrett County saw the front page of the January 27 issue of The Republican. Twice in the past two years residents of Sand Flat have been called upon to fight the proposed weight increase on county roads. The first time, after a trip to Annapolis and lots of support from concerned citizens, the bill was defeated in both the Senate and the House. On December '04, once again the proposed change appeared on the commissioners' "wish list." On January 6, residents attended the commissioners' meeting with Senator Hafer and Delegate Edwards. The proposed bill to increase the weight on specific roads" was withdrawn. Instead they will apply for an exemption for the two roads in question.

Fortunately, the tanker incident only resulted in Sand Flat Road being closed for two hours. If another vehicle happened to be in the opposite lane it might have been another story. Our narrow, hilly, and winding county roads should not have to support fully loaded logging trucks, heavy duty tankers, and 16-wheelers! The state has provided suitable roads.

So, stay alert, citizens of Garrett County. Your safety and the safety of all who travel our country roads could become an issue again. Increase the weight, increase the truck traffic, and increase the possibility of an accident.

To the Editor:

The latest "gift" by the governor, of two million dollars for the adventure sports, comes from the taxpayers of the state of Maryland (that includes you). The additional several million that our commissioners are going to provide comes from us, in Garrett County. In addition, Santa at the federal level will provide more millions! (Guess where the federal Santa gets his money to spend?)

Where is the sanity in our leaders?! It may line the pockets of some contractors here in Garrett County; however, this type of extravagant waste is what should concern every taxpayer in the county!

As most know, the assessments must increase, to keep in line with appreciation; however, our commissioners should, in turn, be lowering the tax rate, so our taxes do not increase. When the commissioners try to blame the assessors, this is called a diversion of blame, an attempt to avoid responsibility for their reckless spending.

It will take a massive number of us to visit the commissioners to inspire them to stop this horrible waste! When only one at a time visits the commissioners, they internally smile at the lone fish, and tell him, "We'll take a look at it," knowing that they will not only fail to stop, but that they plan on continuing to spend as the new taxes come in, leaving us with the additional burden.

Spending $10,000,000 works out to $1,000 for each taxpayer in the county – for this one horrible, out-of-state "sport." We need to find some fiscally responsible people to replace the present commissioners before we simply work to pay taxes.

To the Editor:

David Foster's article about the actions leading up to the death of Deputy Livengood is indeed a required reminder to all of us of the sacrifices made by the men and women of law enforcement as they perform their daily duties in the mission of protecting the general public from those who would subvert our sense of peace and tranquility.

Twenty-six years have passed since the sordid events of that cold and windy January morning took place but for those of us who were intimately involved in them, the memories remain as if those events only happened yesterday. Penny and I will never forget that early morning phone call we received from Central Alarm when we were notified of an "event" taking place behind our store. The dispatcher told us not to come down to the building so we turned on the scanner and sat on our couch to listen to the horrible events that were taking place. It wasn't until sometime later that fateful morning that we actually found out the true extent of the loss.

During the weeks and months that followed we got to know all of the deputies and many of the officers of the Maryland State Police who were involved in the investigation and prosecution of Roberto Rezek and Richard Danny Tichnell. We realized that they were our friends and neighbors doing a job that in general, received little thanks. We will never forget their generosity, concern, and sacrifice that they made only to insure that our home and family was safe in our community.

Let this 26th anniversary of David Livingood's sacrifice be a reminder to all of us of the challenges that our law enforcement officers face in the quest to provide us with a safe community. We thank them all.

Sincerely,
Phil Davidson

To the Editor:

This is an open letter to the former students at Broad Ford Elementary kindergarten students from the years 1975-1998. I worked there as a teacher assistant. Since February is the month of hearts and love, I would like to recognize and let the readers (hopefully former students) know how much they meant to me as students then and how proud I am of whom they have become.

In my daily life journey I meet up with quite a few people whom I recognize even though time has changed both our appearances. We have both grown a little older and more beautiful. Most of the students remember me as Mrs Wolfee, or Aunt Wolfee. I affectionately called many of them by pet names also. Needless to say there were many hugs given and received at that time. We learned to cry together, to laugh together, and what candy can do to mend broken hearts. Along with how to tie, zip, and snap, our letters and numbers, the pledge to the flag, grace, and manners, what fun we had.

It doesn't matter what stage of life you are in or where you are. Mrs. Wolfee, or Aunt Wolfee, still thinks about, cares for and loves you. I have kept track of a lot of you by reading this very newspaper– the honor roll, the marriage and birth records of the next generation, etc.

Recently I was sent a sheet of paper from a dear friend who wrote, "Thought this might interest you, as I remember this was one of your former students" Yes, Joshua Fitwater, son of William and Shirley Fitzwater, was in my class a few years back. He is now attending Hampton Master's Commission, getting a biblical foundation on which to build the rest of his life. He has the privilege and opportunity to go to China and spread God's word. He will be leaving on spring break. If you would like to support Josh, mail a check to him, c/o Hampton, Master's Commission, 1705 Todd's Lane, Hampton, VA 23666.

I know he would appreciate the money and I'm sure he will share (as he learned in kindergarten, should he receive more than he needs). Also I would like for you to pray for Terry and Gina and Tawny and Jamie, former students going through a difficult time as many know the family health problems. When one suffers the whole family suffers.

Remember, once a student, always a student, and you are never too old to learn. God bless each of you, and wherever we meet, stop and say hello.

Love and Hugs,

middle and high schools will be given the matrix to help determine the final selection. After the numbers are tallied, the students will present the new information to the commissioners, who will officially adopt the bird and wildflower. Lantz said their hope is to have the project finalized by spring.

Craig said that Garrett County will be the only western county to have a county bird and flower. She added that the interest for this project was heightened after receiving two grants: an Ornithological Society Grant and Chesapeake Bay School Yard Habitat Grant.

The students said they wanted to build interest in the birds and wildflowers of Garrett County, and to make people more aware of them so they will learn more about them.

"I think this is a great idea, and you gave a wonderful presentation," said Commissioner Dave Beard.

Because of time constraints, the students only discussed the birds, and had the commissioners fill out their matrix. Lantz briefly mentioned the four wildflower choices.

"This is an innovative and great project," said Commissioner Ernie Gregg.

The descriptions and details of the matrix can be viewed on the Swan Meadow section of the board of education's web site at www.ga.k12.md.us.

"IF IT WAS TEA I WAS THINKING OF"

"Tea! Thou soft, thou sober, sage and venerable liquid!" I used that quotation in my second newspaper column 22 years ago. When did I discover tea? It might have been during our family vacation in New England the summer of 1974, the summer I turned 14. We ate at a country inn where I ordered tea. That was in a small, New York borough on the way home. Watertown it was, I think.

All these years later, Paris is in the full throes of discovering tea.

Paris is a coffee town, and France is a coffee country, though not in the way that the U.S.A. is a coffee country. In America, coffee is the drink for all times and seasons. In France, coffee is an anchor of breakfast. It is a beverage that provides a quick jolt after the midday or evening meal. It is the excuse for people-watching at a table of a small restaurant, named for coffee, a "café."

When I first came to Paris 30 years ago tea was something disgusting which the English (also disgusting) drank. The French have begun a love affair with tea, if not with the English.

A new class of small restaurant now adorns Parisian streets, the "salon de thé," the tea-room. While there are also plenty of restaurants where you can get a cup of tea for a buck or less (at an Algerian couscous restaurant I frequent, a glass of sweet mint tea is included in the price of the meal) the Parisian salon de thé is an up-market invention. A pot of tea cost six or seven dollars, the price of the entire meal at the Algerian restaurant.

Tea, Parisian style, is an aesthetic experience, like most things in Paris. There are between five and 25 varieties of tea listed on the menu, each a nuanced delicacy. The English manner of drinking tea, with a little milk, is a habit which the French still deplore. There is the color, the bouquet, the balance, and even, yes even the taste of the tea to be considered. To the French, milk reduces those various subtleties into indistinguishable brownness. I'm not agreeing, just reporting.

This rhetoric of tea is reminiscent of something, namely, the French attitude to wine. At a certain level, certainly, tea is an alternative to coffee. At another level, however, tea is a cousin to wine.

There was a Tea Convention in Paris a few months ago. There were posters in the Metro advertising the convention. The convention had its own web site. On the poster was the following message, accompanied by pictures of corresponding glassware: "With respect to antioxidants, 2 cups of tea=1 glass of red wine=7 glasses of orange juice= 20 glasses of apple juice."

Voilà! The only thing better for you than a cup of tea is a glass of red wine, which is twice as good for you. There you have it, the nub of the French tea philosophy! Who needs fruit juice?

In addition to the salons de thé there are also shops dedicated solely to selling loose tea. Britain offers a large selection of teas which demand a premium price, but nothing like the prices demanded in Paris.

There are several of these emporia near my house, one of which is styled "The Palace of Tea." Exclusive teas are priced like exclusive wines. The cheapest, an English blend called "Strong Breakfast Tea" (the name is given in English) sells for $4 per fifth of a pound. Get the message: English=strong=cheap=not-very-good. An exotic white tea, called "tenderloin of silver" (my translation) costs $53 for the same quantity.

Tea is not only a beverage in Paris, it is a metaphor. There is a line of lingerie sold in independent shops bearing the name of one of the principal tea-producing regions of India, "Darjeeling." When a perfume maker names a perfume "Opium," and pictures the new perfume with a size twelve woman in a size ten dress, I get the point. When lingerie is named for a tea, to me at least, something is missing.

In the interests of science and sound journalism I made a survey of lingerie shops along the Rue de Rennes in the shadow of the Montparnasse Tower. As I gazed upon the lacey, gauzy, revealing, concealing extrapolations of nothing, if it was tea I was thinking of, I cannot say that I was thinking more of tea in front of the Darjeeling window than in front of the others. If you know what I mean.

For those who are worrying that I am blowing my budget on fancy tea, calm yourself! The Scots taught me to drink tea, with an able assist from the English. In that fair isle known as Great Britain (I believe this habit is shared by the Welsh as well), the stolid, evening, family meal is called "tea." "Have you had your tea?" is to ask if someone has had supper (or dinner as our urbanized counterparts like to say).

I buy my tea with the Africans and Asians in a shop where there are a dozen varieties of tea, but most of them for $3 per half pound – that's loose tea, not tea bags. I buy Darjeeling – tea, that is – and I drink it with milk: soft, sober, sage, venerable, and all in a cup.

Bill Introduced To Penalize Those Who Refuse To Take DUI Test

by Sarah Abruzzese
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Nearly a third of the people arrested for drunken or drugged driving in Maryland refuse to take a breath or blood test, often enabling them to plead to a lesser charge — and that's a problem according to one Maryland lawmaker.

Delegate Luiz Simmons, D-Montgomery, has introduced HB 103 to impose greater penalties on drivers convicted of driving under the influence who refused to take a breath or blood test. The convicted driver would then face a fine of up to $500, a prison term up to six months, or both. The arresting officer would be required to inform the driver of the additional penalties should the test be refused.

State Police report that of the 22,597 people arrested in 2004 on suspicion of impaired driving, 31.5 percent refused to be tested, enabling many of them to plead to a lesser penalty than had a test established their intoxication level.

The problem of driving under the influence wasn't just a problem in 2004. Annually between 22,000 and 24,000 people are arrested in Maryland, with more than 6,000 of them refusing testing, according to State Police.

Simmons's proposed legislation isn't the first proposal to attempt to end this practice. This year's bill is designed to resolve issues that the House Judiciary Committee chairman said weren't addressed in last year's version.

"You could be convicted for refusal, not the underlying issues," Chairman Joseph F. Vallario Jr., D-Calvert, said. "He's addressed the issue that was a concern." But Vallario said the committee will wait to see what prosecutors want in the bill before progressing.

Such caution is in keeping with the committee's history.

"Historically the Judiciary Committee has always been a conservative committee," Simmons said. "It has not made changes in the law unless you can demonstrate a need to make that change."

AAA, MADD, the Century Council, and Washington Regional Alcohol Program all testified briefly Tuesday.

"Without question, 'career drunk drivers' in Maryland are well aware of the state's most frequently used escape route in attempts of beating either a DUI or DWI rap in the state: the refusal of a breath and or chemical test," said WRAP President Kurt Erickson in written testimony.

A drunken driving conviction in Maryland, where a driver has .08 percent blood-alcohol level or greater, can carry fines of up to $3,000 and up to a prison term of three years, as well as a license suspension.

Drivers convicted of a lesser offense can go to jail for up to two months and fined up to $500. Certain aspects of the bill concern Judiciary Committee member Michael D. Smigiel Sr., R-Caroline, because he is a civil libertarian. But "I do support it. I want to do everything I can to curtail drunk driving," he said.

"A lot of fine tuning (is needed but) it's a good bill," Smigiel said.

But he added there needs to be a clear understanding of how it will work and how prosecutors will use it, especially with recidivists.

But another legislator said the bill should not pass. Delegate Curtis S. Anderson, D-Baltimore, said the current penalty of a license suspension for those who refuse the test is enough.

He added that there is a new increase in court costs from $10 to more than $100 to contest the suspension.

"Once (the hearing cost increase) starts filtering through, I think you will see fewer people refusing to take the test," Anderson said.

However, Simmons was pleased with the hearing. "Let me say that with regard to the bill, in all candor, I am optimistic about its passage," Simmons said. "I feel that there is an emerging consensus in the committee that something should be done about the driver who refuses to take the Breathalyzer test."

Pa. Man Injured, Charged After Finzel Collision

A Pennsylvania man was injured yesterday in a two-vehicle crash on Finzel Road, according to the Maryland State Police McHenry barrack.

At approximately 4 p.m. Jesse Garlitz, 24, Meyersdale, was traveling south when he attempted to make a left turn onto the eastbound ramp of Interstate 68. Troopers said that Garlitz pulled his 1997 Oldsmobile into the path of an oncoming 1989 Ford F-150 pickup driven by Blaine Wilhelm, 63, of Lonaconing, causing a collision.

Garlitz was transported to Cumberland's Memorial Hospital, and later charged with failure to yield to oncoming traffic. Wilhelm escaped injury.

Thursday Crash Caused By Slick Road Conditions

Two Grantsville women were taken to the hospital following a single-vehicle accident on Westernport Road last Thursday, Jan. 27. No charges were filed by Maryland State Police troopers who investigated the 10:40 a.m. mishap, which occurred south of Lower New Germany Road.

Elizabeth A. Fischer, 18, was driving a 2002 GMC south when it when out of control and traveled across the northbound lane and hit a tree off the north shoulder.

Fischer and her passenger, Amanda R. Knox, 18, Grantsville, were taken to Cumberland Memorial Hospital by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad. The Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department assisted at the scene.

Oakland Town Elections Slated

Others now serving are councilpersons Kenneth Gotsch, Margaret Jamison, and Christopher Todd, along with Mayor Asa McCain.

The last day to file for office is Friday, March 4.

Any resident of Oakland over the age of 18 may register to vote in the municipal election at Oakland City Hall during regular office hours until 4:30 p.m. on Friday, March 4. The deadline for obtaining absentee ballots is Monday, March 7, at 4 p.m.

President's Reform Plans for Social Security Divide Md. Lawmakers

by Kathleen Cullinan and Kevin W. McCullough
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON — President Bush's call for Social Security reform drew the only audible grumbling during his State of the Union address Wednesday — grumbling that was echoed by members of Maryland's Democratic delegation.

The president's Social Security plan "just won't withstand analysis," said Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., after the speech. "This was a real sales job."

But Rep. Roscoe Bartlett, R-Frederick, said he was happy to see the president addressing the issue.

"It was a tough sell, but he did a good job selling it," Bartlett said. The first State of the Union address of Bush's second term in office came just days after the elections in Iraq, but the president only touched on foreign policy. He dedicated most of the 53-minute speech to his domestic agenda.

The president called for health savings accounts for individuals, renewed funding for AIDS programs, and plans to stem gang violence, among other initiatives.

But it was the president's call for Social Security reform that drew the biggest response.

Bush said Social Security is headed toward bankruptcy and he outlined his plan to turn that around, in part by allowing younger workers to divert some of their earnings toward personal savings accounts.

The president was interrupted 64 different times by applause, but his characterization of Social Security system as bankrupt drew some jeers from the House chamber.

Sen. Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., said the president's plan for privatization of Social Security was driven by a "phony crisis."

Mikulski called Bush's plan for Social Security a "flawed solution that is designed to 'send money' to Wall Street." She said it would create millions of dollars in debt, and that Americans should have a guaranteed solution, not a "guaranteed gamble."

Rep. Steny Hoyer, D-Mechanicsville, challenged the suggestion that the system is heading to bankruptcy, and said the president's plan would "do absolutely nothing to solve Social Security's challenges."

And Sarbanes accused Bush of "trying to frighten . . . the American people" about the condition of the system.

"The fact of the matter is that the Social Security system can pay full benefits until 2055, and even after that the money coming in will pay 80 percent of benefits," Sarbanes said.

"Way out in the future there's a shortfall and it's reasonable to address that, but not to undertake an absolutely radical restructuring of the system." he said.

Mikulski and Sarbanes both noted that Social Security is not just a retirement account, but also provides disability payments to families.

Rep. Dutch Ruppersberger, D-Cockeysville, echoed that sentiment, saying Social Security is "not a hand out." He said he was concerned about the cost of the plan -- which the president did not mention but which Ruppersberger put at $2 trillion.

Rep. Benjamin Cardin, D-Baltimore, said he is worried about the fiscal 2006 budget, which is scheduled to be released Monday, adding that from what he heard Wednesday the budget could be difficult and "disappointing for our region."

He expressed concern over Bush's pledge to eliminate many government programs. "One of these is the Hubble (space telescope) program, which is deeply important to our region and our country," Cardin said.

But Rep. Wayne Gilchrest of Kennedyville, one of two Republicans in the state's congressional delegation, called the address "one of the best speeches President Bush has ever given."

"I was satisfied with the way he presented the Social Security issue because he didn't ring it up in a very narrow way, he expanded the options that we in Congress will consider," Gilchrest said. He said the thought the president "set a very broad agenda, a challenging agenda, but a doable agenda."

Democratic Reps. Elijah Cummings of Baltimore, Chris Van Hollen of Kensington and Albert Wynn of Mitchellville all found something to like in the president's plan, such as his call for anti-gang programs and his push to renew AIDS funding under the Ryan White Act. But all said they split with Bush over Social Security.

."We will try to work with the president where we can, but Democrats will fight to preserve Social Security where we must," Cummings said.

Van Hollen said the president's plan would destroy Social Security, not fix it, while Wynn said he was "disappointed" in what he called the administration's "risky investment scheme" for the retirement system.

"There were some good ideas," Wynn said, but privatizing Social Security is "absolutely the wrong thing to do."

But Bartlett applauded the president for at least tackling the "third rail" of American politics.

"Now we're talking about it and we don't have to," he said.

Dec. 27, 1994 - January 4, 2004

It has been a year since you left us,
It was so sudden we did not have a chance to say goodbye.
We only have your smile that you left behind for everyone to remember from morning to night.
We do not understand what God has planned for us,
We only must accept it even through our tears.
We think of you every day.
We know your life on earth is no more and it makes us very sad, but we know God took you to heaven to be an angel forever more.

"Just Move It" Health Prog. To End July 1

The Garrett County Health Department's Just Move It exercise-promoting program will end on July 1, 2005, according to a health department spokesperson. It is hoped, the spokesperson said, that a new exercise program will take its place.

The sequel to the Walk-A-Weigh program, Just Move It debuted on Oct. 1, 2001. Both programs were designed to encourage residents and employees of the county to be more physically active by rewarding active people with a variety of incentives.

To date, Just Move It has 1,107 participants enrolled in the program, the spokesperson said.

"Despite the program's success, it is time to move on and look at other possible ways to motivate people of all ages to be more physically active," said Amy Ritchie, nutritionist, and coordinator of the program. "Stay tuned for information on the new program as details are developed.

"If you have vowed to exercise more this year and you are not already enrolled in Just Move It, now is the time to do so," Ritchie said.

Incentives are awarded for 100 miles (JMI sweatshirt), 250 miles (JMI water bottle), every 500 miles (JMI embroidered patch for sweatshirt), and 1,000 miles (JMI sweatpants).

For every 100 miles a person submits between now and July 1, his or her name will be entered into a drawing for a gift certificate for a pair of walking shoes.

"If you are not already enrolled in the exercise program, you still have plenty of time to earn some incentives," Ritchie said. "If you joined the program some time ago and you have not been submitting your log forms, stop by the health department and pick up the log forms, or go to the department's web site at www.garretthealth.org for a copy of the form."

Ritchie said participants may start where they left off, and do not have to log their miles all over again. Every 20 minutes of aerobic activity is equal to one mile.

"If you exercised the equivalent of 1 mile/day you could be wearing a Just Move It sweatshirt by the middle of May," said Ritchie. "Do something good for yourself and Just Move It before it is too late."

National Children's Dental Health Month

GOOD ORAL HEALTH STARTS EARLY

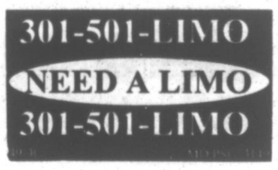
Dental decay is the most common chronic disease found in children–five times more common than asthma. Each year, more than 51 million school hours are lost because of dental-related problems. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, over 40 percent of 5-year-olds in the United States have cavities in their baby teeth. Baby teeth are important because they are the foundation for healthy adult teeth. Poor oral health in children can lead to low self-esteem, and problems with speaking, eating, and concentrating.

Good oral hygiene starts early. Pregnant women who have untreated dental decay can have poor pregnancy outcomes. Studies have shown that untreated dental decay during pregnancy can lead to premature birth. Good dental health habits in parents will lead to good dental health habits in their children.

Maryland has three times the national average of untreated tooth decay. More than half of children in kindergarten and third grade in Maryland have untreated decay in their baby teeth. Baby teeth are important and should be taken care of from the start; children should see a dentist when their first tooth appears, or by their first birthday.

The first dental visit is important for identifying possible problems, and provides a good opportunity for parents to learn more about promoting good oral hygiene for their child. A dentist or a dental hygienist can instruct parents on topics such as: proper brushing techniques, tooth-health diets, the use of fluoride, and habits that can influence their child's teeth.

If you are a parent, grandparent, or about to be a parent and have questions about children's dental health, please call the Garrett County Health Department's Dental Care Center at 301-334-7660.



Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

I know too well how my poor darling horse Joey felt when we tried to defend our championship of the Capital Regional Pony Club B rating, as we had an even more cool and rainy summer here in Garrett County. He did not understand that he could not go full blast on the horrible hot and humid summer day in Ijamsville near Frederick. He wanted to be the best on his cross country course, as he was always. After two miles of uphill galloping he did something he never did before when he just stopped dead at a very insignificant, easy fence. Even when I used my crop and spurs he did not even try to go on. I was horrified and also really scared. All I could think of was, what was wrong and what should I do. I wanted so much for him to act like himself, but I should have known he would never let me down if he could help it.

I felt bad enough blaming myself because everyone at the competition knew I rode the best horse in our region of Maryland and Virginia, so of course it must have been that I did not help him enough and did not condition or train him hard enough. However, I did put in as much time as possible because there was nothing I would rather do than gallop him. But I had two summer jobs the last month before departing to college and it was not a good summer for hay making. Maybe I assumed too much based on our past performances.

What does that incident more than 30 years ago have to do with now or life in Bittinger in 2005? Recently I hear more criticism from my family and friends like I did using the whip and spurs to try to make one perform to previous standards. Joey taught me to give one hundred percent to overcome any obstacles, but sometimes even one hundred percent is not enough to triumph over circumstances. The only thing I could do to help Joey finish the course was to dismount, loosen his girth, lead him the last half mile to the finish line, and pour comforting words in his ears. I had to face the stern and horrified look on the face of Janet Auchincloss, who was Jackie Kennedy's mother, as she had judged and poured on me a penalty for finishing with an exhausted horse. Worst of all, I fainted myself and that provided another 100-point penalty.

However, the next day was the final day of stadium jumping, which was the easiest element for Joey and me. I guess my overconfidence was too much, as I failed to go around a mandatory red flag placed to assure that riders did not try to save too much time by cutting close to the next fence. The penalty points for that mistake eliminated us from the regional team. After that round I collapsed in tears, and the strictest judge ran over and hugged me and assured me that I deserved the "A" rating more than any other rider. As always, all the other riders were dying of envy of my horse, and I always treated him like the king he was.

But even after many failures I still have not learned to fail. I let everyone down, including my horse, my parents, who sacrificed so much for us, and even the whole region because Joey and I were the strongest pair in the national competitions in past years and the best hope for them that year. But I failed even to make the team. Even if I would have beaten Joey (which I would never do), he could and would give me more than he had to give.

Why I am so poor, depressed, and why I can't find a way back to myself, I ponder! If I do not get back to top form, people who do care about me would be disappointed and distant as families tend to be when expectations are not met. I am like one of the 13 colonies that had as its motto "Live Free or Die."

But as much as overextended people do for me they can't give any more help to me than I could do to help Joey on that dreadful July day in Frederick. All I know is that I felt exhausted, disgusted, and hopeless. I was very lucky that day that Joey did not surmount some tiny burst of strength and go on and die from a heart attack. I am sure he was already heartbroken because the one who loved him more than anything punished him. I am grateful for that long walk to the finish line, and at least we did finish the course. At least no one called us quitters. So you can be assured that I will finish my course, probably not triumphantly, but at least cross the finish line in one piece and maybe go on to the next phase.

The first finish line was succeeding in raising my children, not as well as I wish I could, but good enough. It is somewhat disappointing that I was, in their eyes, as stated on their homemade Mother's Day card "The Greatest Mother in the World," as I know I am not. But no one can truthfully say I have not given one hundred percent to the most important job I ever tried to do, and I must not have done too bad a job of it because they have so far turned out just wonderfully, in spite of everything.

Tomorrow is Ground Hog Day, and in New Orleans the Mardi Gras is in full swing, as the Lenten season begins. The Bittinger Lutheran Parish will join our friends in the Accident Parish for midweek Lenten services on Wednesday evenings at 7:30 p.m. The first one will be on Ash Wednesday, Feb. 9, at St. Paul's in Accident, followed by Feb. 16 at Emmanuel in Bittinger, Feb. 23 at St. John's in the Cove, March 3 at St. John's, Meadow Mountain, March 9 at Grace Lutheran Church in Friendsville, and March 26 at Zion in Jennings. Pastor Pat Pittsnogle encourages everyone to join us and come and receive strength for your journey with Jesus to the cross. The theme for this year is "Forgiving." It sounds like I should attend all of them, but don't count on it because I do not like to go anywhere in the evenings, especially in the winter. But I could use some lessons on forgiving, and I could use a refreshing of strength, too.

It is a wonderful thought that here it is February, the last bad month of winter. Hallelujah! It came in like most winter days, and we can hope it goes out like a lamb. You can't describe winter without using a lot of chills, snow sparkling like diamonds, the sky blue as a robin's egg. This morning I saw a looping pattern of freshly spread manure on a corn field on the Owen Stanton farm, and the strange pattern of shadows from my maple tree branches on the snow below. They are an abstract, like dark brush strokes of a modern abstract painter. Our last stretch of cold weather probably froze some of our ponds, but will need a couple hours of shoveling to sweep off the snow before they are ready for skating.

It is strange to report that our snow did not draw brother Barry to Bittinger to go cross country skiing. Maybe the downstate region got enough snow to ski on there. Today is a picture-perfect ski day.

I have heard no social news for several weeks since our holiday season, so have nothing to report. But the January soup project was a huge success from all points of view. The Angel Bell Crew made a tidy sum, and the purchasers were positively delighted with the quality of the soup. So there is a good chance they will do it again soon, so be thinking about getting your order in.

Of course my mother Ruth was on the road again to visit her friend, Betty Sacra in Winchester, for several days last week. Her cousin, Lucille Ritter, is still hospitalized in Cumberland, and she visited her several times last week.

Pastors Pat and Keith Pittsnogle will be winging away this Wednesday to Tampa, Fla., for her niece's wedding. It will be the first plane flight for Pat. She was a little nervous about it, or probably just excited. They will enjoy Florida for about a week and then be back in time for the midweek Lenten services starting next week.

GLOTFELTY FOUNDATION DONATES TO ROTARY'S CHEMBE PROJECT – The Scott Glotfelty Foundation recently made a donation to Rotary's Chembe village project. The endeavor targets children from age 6 to 14 in the village of Chembe, located in central African county of Malawi. The project includes the production of a cartoon story book using native animal characters to teach about AIDS prevention. "Our goal is to influence children to change their cultural lifestyle to put them less at risk," said Doug Riley, past governor of Rotary District 7350. Like most of the rest of central Afica, Chembe has been the victim of the AIDS epidemic. Most of the children in the village are being reared by their grandparents, since their parents died in the epidemic, noted a Rotary spokesperson. The Rotary project also supports a water filtration system for the community that is plagued by waterborne parasites. "Donations like this will help us change the lives of a lot of children," Riley said about the Glotfelty gift." The check presentation was made by Carol (Glotfelty) Bass and Rodney Glotfelty to the Oakland Rotary Club. The foundation was started in memory of their brother, Scott Glotfelty, who served in the Peace Corps and dedicated his life to helping people and animals. Pictured, left to right, are Riley, Oakland Rotary president Brenda McCartney, Glotfelty, and Bass.

HUSKY POWER DOGSLEDDING

Dogsledding rides and other canine-related services are newly available near McHenry and the Wisp Ski Resort. Linda Lee Herdering and her husband Mike Herdering opened Mountain Maryland Kennels LLC, home of Husky Power Dogsledding, during the fall of last year. Located just two miles from the lake and three miles from the ski resort, the kennel is conveniently located for dogsled rides, educational kennel tours, a "Siberian puppy romp," dog obedience classes (in the spring), and/or to purchase mushing related gifts and equipment.

"Just imagine...you and your family behind a team of beautiful Siberian huskies...mushing along a winter wonderland surrounded by tall pines dripping blankets of snow," said Linda. "It's eerily silent except for the swishing of the sled runners, the dogs' panting and the tapping of dogs' feet on the snow. Suddenly the stillness is broken by your voice, 'Gee!' (turn right.) Or, 'Haw!' (turn left.) The dogs respond and your sled glides around the curve and continues down the trail. No other method of moving over snow can come close to dogsledding. Try it once and be hooked forever. It's undeniable – you'll love traveling at the speed of dog with your four-paw-drive!"

Husky Power Dogsledding's nine working Siberian and Alaskan huskies will entertain and thrill riders with their obvious enjoyment of pulling a sled or cart, along with their northern sleddog beauty, smarts, and antics. The Herderings said they believe that the total dogsledding experience should not only include exciting rides, but also a chance to see how the huskies live, play, and train. All tours beginning at Mountain Maryland Kennels start with a kennel visit along with a presentation of dogsledding tidbits, lore, and facts.

"Ask a million questions! Pet the puppies! Assist them in harnessing the dogs if you like! Then enjoy a ride (or try driving the sled) on the pristine wilderness trails of Garrett County," said Mike.

Dates and times for any Husky Power Dogsledding visit or adventure are flexible, and reservations are made with the guest's needs and priorities in mind.

The couple said they plan to offer dog obedience training courses in the near future.

Husky Power tours use a toboggan style touring sled, custom built with lower side rails to make it easier for people to get in and out. It also is longer and lower to the ground so it doesn't tip over easily. They also have smaller, basket-type traditional sleds for those who want custom trips driving their own sled.

Linda grew up in Maryland and always planned to return to Garrett County. After her husband retired from the Marines, they worked at big, commercial sled dog kennels for two years to learn the trade. The couple worked with a 120-dog kennel and a 60-dog kennel, even training a team of dogs to run the Iditarod in Alaska.

"That gave us incredibly in-depth knowledge of not just running dogs, but also of nutritional needs and methods of training and psychology.

"Since the snow season is so short, we also give rides on a cart during the shoulder season," said Linda. A cart is like a sled with wheels. "The ride is exactly the same. People can see the dogs pull and run. It's sometimes not as pretty without snow, but the fall and spring colors can be beautiful," said Linda.

The dogs are trained pulling ATVs and wheeled carts when there is no snow to keep their muscles in shape. Mixed breeds are generally better at racing. Since the Herderings do not race anymore, they can have more Siberians, which they consider the pretty dogs of mushing.

Educational programs are available through the business, and they welcome an opportunity to talk about the dogs and equipment.

Linda also enjoys skijoring, which is cross-country skiing by being pulled by a dog or multiple dogs. That sport and other related activities may be offered by the business in the future.

They are also Nature Tourism vendors, enabling them to run tours from the Discovery Center and elsewhere on state land as well.

Persons may visit www.HuskyPowerDogsledding.com, e-mail Linda@HuskyPowerDogsledding, or call 301-746-7200 for more information.

MUSHING ALONG – Just last Saturday, Linda Herdering shared the many secrets of sleddogs with young kennel visitors Hannah Hutchinson and her friend Natalie, pictured above. Linda and her husband Mike recently opened Mountain Maryland Kennels LLC, home of Husky Power Dogsledding in McHenry, and offer dogsled rides, educational kennel tours, and a "Siberian puppy romp," among other things. Snow is not required for these rides. "You'll love traveling at the speed of dog with your four-paw-drive," said Linda. See story for more details.

Alice served previously on the town council and said she was amazed to find out what it takes to keep a town moving smoothly. Owner and operator of Discount Liquors, she also served many years for the Board of Education as a teacher's aide and secretary of the Friendsville Elementary School.

"I feel lucky to be a resident of Friendsville and would not want to live any other place. If chosen for the town council, I would like to work together with other people to get more businesses into our town," she said.

Joseph Sessa has been a resident of Friendsville since 1971 and has been "Joe the Barber" since. In those 24 years, he has served as town council president for six years, and while serving, acquired the property from Harry Guard that would become the Town Park. He is owner and operator of the Sunset Inn, an 18-unit motel along with his wife Mary Ellen, and they are finalizing construction for a coffee shop on their motel property.

"I will work again to help the town residents and the community fulfill to our needs," he said.

Agnes Lichtner is a first-time candidate for the town council. Born in Philadelphia, she and her husband have traveled from place to place to find the "perfect residence" to serve all of their needs. Their journey brought them to Friendsville where they purchased an old hotel and are renovating it into a bed and breakfast.

"I decided to run for town council to get someone from the outside with new views and optimism," she said. "I am someone who likes fresh beginnings and I see lots of potential in Friendsville."

Agnes has served on the Friendsville Revitalization Task Force, which was instrumental in getting new street lights, trash cans, and the façade grant that helped many area businesses improve their frontal property. "I think that Friendsville is a very worthwhile community and hope to do something positive for its future growth," she added.

Frances Friend has been a council member for four years. "I would like to stay on as council member to help hold the town together and to see the park expand," she said.

During her time as a council member, Frances has served to help with the town lighting and the Christmas lights. She has also helped with the planting of flowers. She is retired after 31 years with the Board of Education and says she enjoys being a member of the Town Council.

Jane Fox is a lifelong resident of Friendsville and is well known in the community. Since her retirement as principal at Friendsville Elementary School, she has served on several county boards and is presently serving on the Garrett County Historical Society board and as treasurer for the Retired Teachers Association. In the two years that Jane has served as town council she has been committed to the recycling project that was started and she was one of those instrumental in developing a newsletter for the residents of Friendsville to be kept informed. She is also chair of the Tree Committee, which has provided tree trimming and removal to create a better environment.

"I would like to make this an ongoing project and to be a 'tree city,'" stated Jane. "Trees are such an important part of the environment. I would like to remain a council member so that I can continue these projects that I am passionate about."

Jane said she is also anxious for younger people to become involved and participate in the community. "The younger people need to make time for the future of the community and the future of the children. I have learned a lot by being a council member and would really appreciate it if I were able to continue," she said.

Herschel Allen III has been a resident of Friendsville for 15 years and is married, with a son who attends Friendsville Elementary School. He served in the U.S. Army, with two years of duty in Vietnam. He has previously served on the town council for two years, at which time he says he "got the ball rolling on the handicapped sidewalks and also headed the project for the energy-saving street lights." Herschel says he is running for council again because he feels that he would work for the people.

"I care about the people and the town," stated Herschel, "and I've seen what other towns have received through grant money and feel that we can do the same in this town."

Sponsors Sought For 2005 Little Yough Music Fest

Plans are being made for this 2005 Little Yough Music Festival, which marks the ninth year the annual concert series has been offered in downtown Oakland. The free series relies on the support of organizations and individuals, and organizers are seeking assistance as they plan for the outdoor community event.

This summer's Little Yough Music Festival concert schedule is tentatively slated to span the five Friday evenings of the month of July, and return for one final summer-ending concert on the Friday of Labor Day weekend. Details will be announced as the schedule is completed.

"This past year's concerts broke all previous attendance records with a total of more than 4,000 people enjoying the outdoor music," said Oakland Main Street Program manager Cherie Ross. "We again are striving to continue to provide these concerts to the public without charge. In order to do this, we are asking for support from our businesses and our residents. The concert series requires about $30,000 each year in cash donations and donated services."

Series sponsors, who Ross said are key to securing contracts with performers, are listed in all publicity materials for the series. The series is advertised throughout Garrett County and beyond via posters, flyers, brochures, press releases, materials distributed at visitor welcome parties, and program guides. Sponsors are mentioned on a rotational basis in radio advertising spots, and also have the opportunity to provide banners or other advertising at all concerts.

Two additional sponsorship levels – Diamond and Bronze – have been added this year. Diamond sponsorship is awarded for a $2,500 donation, and banners provided by the festival committee will be displayed at all concerts denoting the Diamond sponsors. The new Bronze sponsorship will be bestowed for a $250 donation. Other sponsor levels available are Platinum at $1,500, Gold at $1,000, and Silver at $500.

Patrons who wish to donate up to but less than the Bronze sponsorship level will be listed on a patron page in the program. Advertising space is also available in the program guides, with prices ranging from $110 to $35. A "builders page" will be featured this year at $100 per listing, and will also be included with materials handed out at welcome parties.

In addition to monetary support, the concert series relies upon the in-kind donations of support. Any service that is donated that is the equivalent of a monetary sponsorship level will receive a sponsorship listing in exchange for services. Other donated services will be listed in the program designating their donated service.

Some examples of in-kind donations a business can provide are printing, photocopying, laminating posters, room and board for performers, banners and signs, beverages and snacks for the performers at the concert, and set-up and tear-down of the concert area at the Mtn. Fresh Farmers' Market Pavilion at Rotary Park. Individual volunteers are also needed to help with mailings, distribute print materials, and assist at the concerts.

For further information on the Little Yough Music Festival, or to request a donor form, persons may contact Ross at 301-616-3026.

NEW ARTWORK DISPLAYED AT VISITORS CENTER – Steve Schlosnagle, executive director of the Garrett County Arts Council, and Sue Arnson hang watercolors painted by Arnson at the Visitors Center in McHenry. The Arts Council has provided paintings or photographs from local artist to decorate the center since its opening in 1999. "This arrangement gives more exposure to area artist, adds to the beauty of Garrett County's showcase, and provides visitors with a glimpse of Garrett County through an artist's eyes," said a Chamber spokesperson. The artwork is changed each quarter.

Book Clubs To Meet At Ruth Enlow In Feb.

Three different book clubs for students ages 9 to 18 will meet during the month of February at the Ruth Enlow Library in Oakland.

The Young Readers Club, designed for youngsters ages 9 to 11, will meet on Thursday, Feb. 10, 4-5 p.m. This club will discuss Pippi Longstocking by Astrid Lindgren.

"Pippi has crazy red pigtails, no parents to tell her what to do, a horse that lives on her porch, and a pet monkey named Mr. Nilsson. Whether Pippi's scrubbing her floors, doing arithmetic, or stirring things up at a fancy tea party, her flair for the outrageous always seems to lead to an adventure," a library spokesperson said.

The new Tween Club, for persons age 11 to 14 years, will meet on Thursday, Feb. 17, 4-5 p.m. This club will discuss Hidden Talents by David Lubar. The book is about Martin Anderson and his friends, "who don't like being called losers, but they've been called that for so long even they start to believe it. Then Martin makes an incredible discovery...."

The Teen Club, for 14- to 18-year-olds, will meet on Saturday, Feb. 12, 2-3 p.m. The group will discuss Cut by Patricia McCormick. The book jacket description talks of Callie's need to cut herself, "never too deep, never enough to die. But enough to feel the pain." She goes to a residential treatment facility full of girls struggling with problems of their own.

Persons interested in any of the book clubs are invited to stop by or call the Ruth Enlow Library to reserve a copy of any of these books. The book club schedules and book descriptions can be found online at www.relib.net.

For more information, persons may contact Megan Shewach at megan@relib.net, or call 301-334-3996, ext 105.

OTT Announces Auditions For Next Production

Our Town Theatre will hold auditions for The Twilight of the Golds, a controversial play by Jonathan Tolins, according to Jane Avery, director. The production, which is tentatively scheduled for the second week of March, involves five actors: one male and one female in their 50-60s, one male and one female in their 20-30s, and one male in his 20s.

Auditions are scheduled for Sunday, Feb. 6, 2-5 p.m., and Tuesday, Feb. 8, 7-9 p.m.

Persons who wish to audition but cannot attend one of these times are asked to call the theatre (301-334-5640, option #3) to schedule an audition appointment.

"This play deals with extremely sensitive issues that impact our modern world," Avery said. "If your parents knew everything about you before you were born, would you be here? That is the question posed in this entertaining drama."

Avery said the storyline begins with Suzanne Gold and her close New York family when they discover that she is pregnant. All is well until a prenatal test reveals that the baby will most likely be homosexual. The news forces the entire Gold family to confront issues of bigotry, evolution, and the limits of love.

"This beautifully written play is thoughtful, and almost eerily topical," Avery said. "It should not be taken lightly, even though there are several very humorous scenes."

and participants will attend the 13th annual On Our Own of Maryland conference in Ocean City on June 9 and 10. On Our Own is a statewide mental health consumer education and advocacy network. The conferences often include workshops on various mental health issues such as confronting discrimination and stigma.

In addition to supporting the consumers themselves, Harvey House's mission is to challenge discrimination toward mentally ill persons, help educate the public about mental health, and to advocate for and promote the human rights of persons with mental illness.

The center offers no counseling, but help is sometimes available in other areas. For example, some consumers recently received assistance in getting their Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits, Schrock said.

Harvey House opened in 2002 and was said named in honor of the late Louise Harvey, a local advocate for mental health for more than 30 years.

The center is a program of the Office of Consumer Advocates Inc. and funded by the Mountain Top Mental Health Associates Inc. For more information, persons may call 301-334-1314.

Mountaintop '05 To Host Gospel Artist Greene

Southern gospel artist Buddy Greene will be the featured musician at Mountaintop 2005, the 19th annual getaway conference for men and women, sponsored by Living for Christ Conferences. The event will be held March 4-6 at Oglebay's Wilson Lodge in Wheeling, W.Va.

A wide variety of traditional American influences are brought to Greene's music, from country and bluegrass to folk, gospel, and traditional blues. In addition to his reputation as a fine guitarist, songwriter, and singer, Greene's world-class virtuosity on the harmonica has made him an in-demand session player for some of the industry's top recording artists, according to a conference spokesperson.

Greene, who grew up in Macon, Ga., spent his childhood learning folk songs on the ukulele and soon advanced to acoustic guitar, immersing himself in popular music mainstays of the time such as Elvis Presley, the Beatles, and Motown. "Their infectious beat and obvious nods to roots music fueled Buddy's intense interest in the deeper historical origins of country, bluegrass, and rhythm and blues music that are so evident in his music today, the spokesperson said.

In 1992, Greene's songwriting collaboration with Mark Lowry on "Mary, Did You Know?" not only earned him a Dove nomination, but has since become something of a modern-day Christmas standard. His albums include Minstrel of the Lord, and Simple Praise.

Greene will team up with well-known speaker, author, and theologian Steve Brown, the featured speaker for Mountaintop 2005. The topic for the weekend is Born Free, which is designed to "help attendees serve the Lord with freedom, infectious joy, and authentic faithfulness."

"Mountaintop is a place away from the everyday stress of life where attendees can gain a different perspective at a beautiful place, in fellowship with believers from many denominations. Through the teaching of Steve Brown, the music of Buddy Greene, and the drama of Peculiar People, folks will truly receive nourishment for their souls!" said Anne Robinson, co-founder of the weekend.

For more information or to register, Living for Christ Conferences may be contacted at 304-455-5322 or www.mountaintopconference.org.

Huskies Down Rams In OT; Knock Off No. 2 BW By 16

The Northern High School boys' varsity basketball team turned in one of its biggest weeks in recent memory with two major upsets, a 70-68 overtime thriller at Southern Friday night and a 52-48 defeat of visiting Beall Tuesday. The Huskies' record now stands at 8-7.

Northern and Southern treated a packed gym to a classic Friday in Oakland, where the underdog Huskies used a highly disciplined approach to take NHS's first win over the Rams in the last 10 years. After SHS knotted the score at 68-all with 6.5 seconds remaining in overtime, Northern's Blake Walker drew a foul and went to the line to sink two free throws and bring the curtain down in one of the hardest fought battles in the 50-plus years of the cross county rivalry.

"It was a great effort by both teams, and a great night for Garrett County basketball," NHS head coach Paul Edwards commented. "I'm especially proud of our guys for playing up to their potential. They kept their focus and concentration from the start, chose their shots carefully and made a high percentage of them, and committed only five turnovers the whole night.

"You could almost see that our players had made up their minds that they were going to win, and nothing was going to stop them," said Edwards.

Northern got in its groove early by jumping out to an 18-13 first-quarter lead. Southern had implemented a game-opening defensive strategy that softened up on guard Aaron Rawe while the Ram defenders tried to zero in on some of the Huskies' top shooters; however, Rawe single-handedly thwarted that scheme when the NHS senior nailed some early shots.

"Aaron's early shooting success was key for us, because after he hit a few Southern had to extend their defense out to go after him, and that left some of our other guys open for scoring opportunities," Edwards observed.

Southern trimmed Northern's lead to two points, 31-29, at the half, then grabbed a slim 48-47 advantage going into the final stanza.

The fourth quarter was a dogfight right down to the last second. NHS was down by one, 56-55, before SHS's Cory Bosley sank two free throws with 47 seconds remaining to widen the Rams' lead to three. Six seconds later Northern freshman Kory Gibson hit a three-point to knot the score at 58-all, where the score still stood as the buzzer sounded the end of regulation play.

The see-saw battle continued throughout the four minute overtime. The Huskies got on the board first with a Brent Beachy jump shot from the lane, but Bosley then hit another pair from the charity stripe to tie the game with 2:29 remaining.

Northern responded when Beachy sank two free throws of his own, but SHS's Evan Lantz hit an inside jumper with 1:50 on the clock. Beachy struck again by snagging an offensive rebound off an errant Husky shot and putting the ball up and back in the bucket.

Trailing by two, 64-62, Southern's Corey Tressler narrowed the gap to one, 64-63, when he split a pair of attempts from the foul line. Strategy began playing an ever-bigger role as the Rams were forced to foul with 51 seconds remaining, and NHS's Matt Bass rose to the occasion by nailing two free throws to put the Huskies up 66-63. After the Rams missed a field goal attempt, SHS fouled Walker and the junior hit the first of his two attempts to give the Huskies the biggest lead of the overtime stanza, 67-63.

A jump shot by Bosley pulled Southern to within two with 19 seconds on the clock. NHS guard Chris Speicher was immediately fouled on the inbound pass, and made one of two to put Northern up 68-65.

The drama continued when Southern's Chris Tressler brought the SHS house down by connecting on a trey with 6.5 ticks remaining. With the score tied at 68-all, a second overtime period looked likely, but a mid-court collision led to a referee's whistle as, NHS's Walker drew the foul with one second showing. Under the most raucous conditions imaginable in the opposing gym, Walker hit both free throws to put the Huskies up by two. A long Southern shot as time expired missed its mark, and Northern picked up the victory.

"That was one of the best-played games you'll ever see, especially considering it took place in a great playoff-type atmosphere," Ram coach Tom Bosley remarked afterward. "Both teams played as hard as they could, shot well, and had minimal turnovers.

"We didn't find their top shooters fast enough on defense, largely due to their great transition game and execution. Our hats are off to Northern's coaches and players for their efforts before a tough crowd, although they had plenty of Husky fans there to root for them," the Southern skipper stated.

SHS's Tressler, who hit five shots from three-point range, led all scorers with 29 points, while Beachy paced the Huskies with 20. Rounding out the top end of the NHS scoring list were Walker with 17, Speicher with 10, and Rawe's eight points. Cory Bosley added 18 points, including a perfect eight-for-eight free-throw tally, to the Rams' offensive output.

Northern's junior varsity dropped a 47-28 contest as SHS's Tim Reams scored 14 points and Mike Edwards contributed 11. Lucas McMillen led the NHS jayvees with 10 points.

On Tuesday the Huskies notched a big upset, and took revenge for an earlier one-point loss, as they downed second-ranked Bishop Walsh by 16 points. Northern blasted the doors off the Huskies' Igloo in the first quarter in running out to a 16-7 lead, but BW roared back over the second stanza to pull within one, 26-25. The Huskies rebounded over the third period to snag a 37-31 lead as the final stanza opened, then ran away with the contest with a 21-11 tally over the final eight minutes.

The contest got physical in the fourth quarter as the Spartans sent Northern to the foul line for 18 attempts, and the Huskies responded by coolly sinking 15 free throws to help ice the game.

Walker put up a game-high 17 points, Beachy added 16, and Rawe contributed nine. Walker and Beachy also snagged nine rebounds apiece. J.B. Neubauer had 14 points and Blake Raley 13 for the Spartans (17-5).

The Husky JVs took a 51-46 victory behind a 21-point performance by Dan Miller. Grant Riggleman turned in 18 for BW.

NHS has a busy week ahead, as the Huskies visit Salisbury tonight and Union tomorrow night. Fort Hill pays a visit to Accident Tuesday, then Calvary Christian will be the Huskies' guest on Thursday, Feb. 10. Junior varsity contests get under way at 6 p.m., with the varsity tip-off following at 7:30 p.m.

Northern was just three points off the pace, 13-10, after one quarter of play with fourth-ranked Beall Monday, but the Mountaineers widened the gap to 28-17 at the half and were up 39-23 as the fourth quarter got under way.

NHS center Lakin Weimer turned in game high double-double tallies of 17 points and 14 rebounds, while the Mounties' Kacey Kahl led a balanced Beall (12-5, 7-1 WMIL) offense with 13 points and teammate Sara Harris added nine.

Rams Play In Three Nail-Biters; Fall To NHS; Edge Beall, Keyser

The fingernails of Southern High School fans are currently gnawed down to the cuticles, as the Rams have been in three consecutive thrillers the past week, falling 70-68 to county rival Northern in double overtime last Friday (see other story for details), edging host Beall on Tuesday, 51-49, in Frostburg, and rallying for a 47-44 win last night at Keyser.

The 2-1 effort gave the Rams a 12-4 record overall, and the victory last night at Keyser was the 300th in the career of Ram head coach Tom Bosley.

Tuesday's game against Beall was close from the opening tip-off all the way to the final buzzer, as the Rams led by a 15-13 margin at the end of the first quarter, was on top by four, 29-25, at halftime, and found themselves deadlocked with the Mountaineers, 37-37, at the end of the third period.

It was an excellent effort at the foul line that ultimately gave the Rams the two-point win, as they made good on 14 of 17 attempts, while Beall converted four of nine from the free-throw line. The Mountaineers finished with a 22-17 advantage in field goals.

Southern's Cory Bosley emerged as the game's top scorer with 17 points, while teammate Corey Tressler was close behind with 14 points.

Leading the Mountaineers in scoring was Carter Dickel with 15 points. Corey Greig and Adam Eshleman also reached double figures with 14 and 11 points, respectively.

The loss dropped Beall to 8-7 overall and 2-5 in WMIL play.

The top scoring Ram of the evening was junior varsity player Ryan DeWitt, as the SHS jayvees topped the Beall junior varsity, 53-42, in the preliminary game.

DeWitt finished with 21 points, while Clifton Martin led Beall with 20 points.

The Southern varsity trailed throughout much of last night's game at Keyser before finally knotting the score at 34-34 by the end of the third period and then out-scoring the Golden Tornados in the final stanza by a 13-10 margin for the win. Keyser held leads of 15-10 and 24-18 at the conclusion of the first two periods.

Bosley was again the scoring leader for the Rams, as he poured in 20 points.

The Keyser defense did a good job on Southern's Tressler, limiting him to just five points, all recorded in the third period from the free-throw line.

However, Brad Reese stepped up and finished in double figures with 10 points, while center Evan Lantz recorded eight.

The scoring leaders for the Golden Tornados were Donnie Marple, Chris Szafran, and Aaron Amtower with 12, 11, and 10 points, respectively.

The loss dropped Keyser to 7-9.

The Rams will stay busy, as they are scheduled to play three games in the next five days. They will host Tucker County on Friday, entertain Williamsport Saturday in a make-up game, and play at Petersburg next Tuesday. Friday's and Saturday's home games with Tucker County and Williamsport will begin at 6 p.m. (jayvee) and 7:30 (varsity).

BEHIND ALMOST EVERY OPEN SHOT there's a good pass, and these photos provide two shining examples from the Southern High School girls' varsity win over visiting Beall. Senior Jasmine Scheffel (#33) is pictured above after she sliced through the key to draw a Beall defender away from teammate Sarah Cosner (#14), who Scheffel then hit with a pass for an easy lay-up. Shown below is sophomore Sarah Stevens (#11) as she gets off an overhead pass from the top of the key to Kendra McLaughlin (#31), who has gotten behind her defender and who appears to have an open path down the lane to the basket. Ram Girls Fall To Alco In OT; Vault Past Beall By 15 Points

The Southern High School girls' varsity basketball squad stands at 10-5 after being nipped by Allegany in a 45-44 overtime barnburner Monday night, before taking a 54-39 win over Beall last night. The loss to Alco was the Rams' first in league play, and their WMIL mark is currently 7-1. Both games were played on the SHS floor.

Monday's thriller featured a gritty come-from-behind Southern comeback, as the Rams had to fight back from deficits of 12-7 after one quarter, 20-17 at the half, and 37-33 after the third stanza. Southern outscored Alco 8-4 over the final eight minutes, with Caitlyn Brown's field goal knotting the score at 41-all with just three seconds remaining in regulation.

The two squads engaged in a defensive death struggle over the extra period, as the Campers outscored SHS by one, 4-3. Ram sophomore Sarah Stephens accounted for Southern's output when she sank her fourth trey the night to put Southern on top 44-41, but the Rams were unable to score again as Alco went on to hit a pair of field goals.

Jasmine Scheffel scored a Ram-high 13 points, and Stephens netted a dozen points, all from three-point range. Allegany's Erin Wilson netted 14 points and teammate Erika Earnest had 12.

Southern won a junior varsity thriller earlier in the evening, as Jessica Petrella led the Rams to a 24-23 victory.

Last night against Beall junior Kendra McLaughlin dominated the frontcourt by scoring 23 points to lead the Rams to a 15-point win and back into sole possession of first place in the WMIL.

SHS was up 12-9 after the first quarter and 25-19 at the half. The Rams then exploded over the third period to take a 40-27 lead into the final eight minutes.

Southern's Sarah Cosner added 13 points to McLaughlin's team-high tally. McLaughlin hit 10 field goals and made three of four chances from the free throw line. Kacey Kahl led all scorers with 24 points for Beall (12-6).

Southern dropped the JV contest, 34-27. Brittany Boyce had nine points for the Rams, and Amy Farris netted 11 for the Mounties.

The Rams are slated to visit West Virginia powerhouse Hedgesville Saturday, then return home to host Westmar Monday. SHS will attempt to avenge a December defeat when Petersburg pays a Wednesday visit. Varsity home game tip-offs are set for 7:30 p.m. (6 p.m. junior varsity).

Lakers Lose Heartbreakers To Highly Rated Hawks And Cecil

Back-to-back Maryland JUCO Conference heartbreakers were experienced this week by the Garrett College men's basketball team, as the Lakers were nipped by host Hagerstown Saturday, 73-72, and then fell to conference leader Cecil CC last night at the buzzer, 71-69.

The losses dropped the Lakers to 15-6 overall and 9-4 in JUCO play.

The Lakers found themselves down by as many as 18 points in the second half Saturday against Hagerstown before staging a furious rally in the final minutes, only to fall a couple points short.

Some key three-point shooting by Tyrice Watkins led the Laker rally, and he and his teammates put themselves in a position to win the game in the closing moments, but missed five of six free-throw attempts down the stretch.

Watkins and Lavonti Jeter paced the Lakers in scoring with 14 points apiece. Watkins hit all three of his three-point shots, and Jeter also pulled down five rebounds.

Tristan Largent also reached double figures with 13 points, as did Adam Morgan with 10 points, plus five rebounds. Nine of Morgan's points were also recorded from three-point range.

The Hawks were powered offensively by David Miner, who finished with a game-high 23 points and hit four of seven attempts from long range. Alonzo Patterson also reached double figures with 13 points.

"This team needs to regain its defensive intensity," stated GC coach Dennis Gibson. "We are not playing like a typical Garrett team from the past few years with execution and rebounding down the stretch. The potential is there, but we have one of the toughest schedules in the league, playing four top teams in a row. Prince George's and Cecil are leading the league, and Hagerstown and Frederick are in second or third.

"I think once we get back home we can regain our confidence and play with some pride heading into the tournament."

With last night's two-point loss nearly at the buzzer to once-beaten Cecil CC (17-1), coming home and playing their next couple of games on their own floor will be even sweeter for Gibson and the Lakers.

Cecil was ranked #1 in the NJCAA Division II poll last week, and was ranked fourth this week.

Garrett led throughout most of the game, despite playing without 6-7 forward Watkins, and losing 6-6 sophomore Jeter to injury with 12 minutes to play.

The Lakers held a 33-28 lead at intermission, and were up by 12 points with eight minutes to play. But Cecil rallied to tie the score at 60-60 on a lay-up by Adam Gonzalez.

The Lakers were back on top by three, 69-66, with 25 seconds to play, but a turnover set up Cecil's Craig Winder for a bucket that closed the gap to one.

Yet another Laker turnover on a pass to near midcourt would be prove to be fatal, as Chris Wehye ultimately hit his only three-pointer of the night with just three seconds to play, giving Cecil the victory.

Adam Morgan paced four Lakers in double figures with his game-high 21 points. Marco Van Pelt followed with 13, while Doyle Brown and Jeter each recorded 11. Jeff Washington pulled down seven rebounds, and Tristan Largent was credited with five assists. The Lakers finished with nine three-point shots, with Van Pelt and Brown hitting three each.

Pacing Cecil's scoring effort were Gonzalez and Winder, who each hit 13 points. Victor Akinyanu and Wehye each added 11.

"Despite the very disappointing loss, I am proud of our guys for the effort they gave," said Coach Gibson. "Playing without two of our top players and still nearly pulling off a win against a team the caliber of Cecil says a lot about our team."

The Lakers will host Frederick this Saturday and entertain Prince George's next Wednesday. Both contests are slated to tip off at 7 p.m.

GC Ice Fishing Contest Begins; Winners Noted

The annual Garrett County Ice Fishing Contest is now under way, with the winners of the first week (ending 1/30) being announced.

They were Dave Gordon, Grantsville, with a catch of a yellow perch measuring 14.75 inches, and Robert Caldwell, Eighty-Four, Pa., with a catch of a 25-inch walleye.

Winners will be announced weekly for largest catches of bluegill, chain pickerel, crappie, largemouth bass, northern pike, rainbow trout, smallmouth bass, walleye, and yellow perch. Certificates are presented to each weekly winner, and the tournament winner in each category will be awarded a plaque at the conclusion of the contest. The length of the fish is the first consideration.

"'Hard-water fishing' has been gaining in popularity in recent years," stated Charlie Ross, president of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce. "Deep Creek Lake ice fishing was featured in last week's Washington Post. The chamber is working with Deep Creek Outfitters to sponsor this competition to make this winter sport even more enjoyable."

The contest will continue for as long as the lake is frozen, according to a chamber spokesperson. To participate, anglers must take their catches to Deep Creek Outfitters along Deep Creek Drive

Huskies Place 11th At Bedford; Kamp And Glotfelty Win Titles

Led by undefeated and state champion wrestler Casey Kamp and once-beaten Brock Glotfelty, the Northern High School wrestling team placed 11th among 23 teams in the highly competitive Thomas Chevrolet Wrestling Tournament in Bedford, Pa., held this past Friday and Saturday.

Perhaps the most thrilling match of the day was the 112-pound division final between Kamp and Robbie Derveit, who came into the event ranked second in the state of Pennsylvania in his weight division. Kamp is ranked first in the Maryland 112-pound listing.

The two battled to a 2-2 tie, sending the bout into overtime. After a scoreless first OT period, Kamp won the match in the second extra period when he recorded a reverse on Derveit.

Kamp is now 19-0 so far this season.

Glotfelty captured the title in the 189-pound division when he recorded a hard-fought 1-0 decision over Matt Lepley in the championship clash. The Husky sophomore now has a 20-1 personal record.

Also garnering points for the Huskies were Mike Wolf, who placed fifth in the 152-pound division, and Andy Ganoe, who finished sixth in the 135-pound class.

Chestnut Ridge won the team title with 172 points, followed by: Northern Star, 158; Claysburg Kimmer, 156.5; West Branch, 150; Central Cambria, 137; Penn Cambria, 135.5; Fort Cherry, 133; Bedford, 128.5; North Schuykill, 108; Richland, 105.5; Northern, 105; Penn Valley, 99; Berlin Brother Valley, 98.5; Cambria Heights, 91.5; Hyndman, 85.5; Somerset, 79.5; Northern Bedford, 74; Newport, 68; Tri-Valley, 67; Tussey Mountain, 46.5; Conemaugh Township, 44; Jefferson Morgan, 29; and Beth Center, 28.

The Huskies also rolled over Fort Hill last night at the Cove (see separate story). They will face a tough challenge this evening when they host county rival Southern in a 7 p.m. match.

Ram Grapplers Crush Westmar, Elkins For 10th, 11th Victories

Continuing to mow down opponents on the mats is the Southern High School wrestling team, which upped its regular-season record to 11-1 this past week by annihilating visiting Westmar last Thursday, 84-0, and flattening host Elkins on Friday, 76-6.

Earlier on Friday, students raised more than $1,400 simply by asking each person who walked into Southern High School to donate $1 to the cause.

"I am very impressed that our students were able to raise over $2,000 in a one-day fundraiser," said SHS principal Tom Woods. "They were organized and determined. Working together out of a sense of sympathy and concern for our fellow human beings, Southern High School will be able to make a difference in helping the people harmed by this horrible natural disaster in Asia."

Students from Dave Bender's world history classes researched information about the nature of the tragedy, contacted embassies of two of the affected countries, developed daily announcements promoting the campaign, hung posters and signs throughout the school, visited classrooms to explain their campaign, and developed a seven-minute video presentation which was shown on the school's closed-circuit television during advisory period.

"Despite what some people may think," Bender said. "these kids proved again why Garrett County is a great place to live. Their effort in this cause surpassed even their most ardent supporters' expectations."

The students are hoping to eventually develop a "sister school" relationship with a specific school in Indonesia, once life returns to normal there, Bender noted.

GC Health Dept. Offers Advice For A Safe Super Bowl Sunday from the Garrett County Health Department

The Governor's Highway Safety Office and the Garrett County Health Department will be teaming up with other federal, state, and local highway safety and law enforcement officials with this message: If you're planning to drink on Super Bowl Sunday, act responsibly by not driving while impaired.

Local law enforcement will be out in force during Super Bowl weekend. Please remember that if you plan on using alcohol, pass your keys to a sober, designated driver before the big game begins.

The national effort is lead by TEAM (Techniques for Effective Alcohol Management), an alliance among the National Football League, and other professional sports leagues, as well as entertainment facilities, concessionaires, and broadcasters, including RADD (Recording Artists, Actors, and Athletes Against Drunk Driving). TEAM is a coalition united by a shared mission to provide effective training to the public regarding responsible alcohol consumption.

Super Bowl Sunday has become one of America's biggest and most entertaining national sporting events, as friends and families gather to watch the big game each year. Yet, it is also one of the year's most dangerous days on the nation's roadways, due to impaired driving-related traffic crashes.

According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, nearly 50 percent of all traffic fatalities during the Super Bowl weekend last year were caused by impaired drivers with blood alcohol levels of 0.08 percent and above. But these crashes, and deaths, can be prevented.

SHS Stock Market Team Investments Pay Off With First-Place Dividends

The Southern High School stock market team, composed of students from the economics class of Lisa Bender, took first place in the western region of the Maryland Stock Market Game recently. Team members Michelle Holler, Kayla Nazelrod, Brittany Miller, and Emily Smith managed a stock portfolio that returned $37,675 over the course of the 10-week game, the top dividend among the region's 76 teams, and good for an eighth-place finish among the state's 643 competing teams.

Team advisor Bender also participated in the investment game, taking first place among 48 teacher competitors as she placed fourth overall in the game, which is an academic competition featuring interactive and interdisciplinary activities that help teachers engage students in the study of business and finance.

"Taking part in this academic competition is an ideal way of making economics come alive for students," stated Bender. "Business markets are analyzed, and students buy and sell with real time quotes. They realize their role as a consumer much better as they investigate companies and see how supply and demand plays a role."

The students prepared for the statewide competition by studying the history of the stock market and its role in the U.S. economy, and principles of investing. The students also conducted their own market research.

In addition to Bender, the SHS team is advised by local stockbroker Rob Sharps of PrimeVest Financial Services and First United Bank. Sharps who also works with Athena Wilson's Accounting II classes during the spring semester, visited the economics classroom during the fall to discuss investment strategies for short-term and long-term investing. He has been partnering with Southern High teachers and students for 10 years, and the school has earned several state championship over that span.

Sponsored by the Maryland Council on Economic Education, the Stock Market Game is an academic competition available to high school and college students, and adults, throughout the state and nation. The game is the only market simulation endorsed by the National Council on Economic Education, and it involves more than 700,000 students and 25,000 teachers across the U.S. each year.

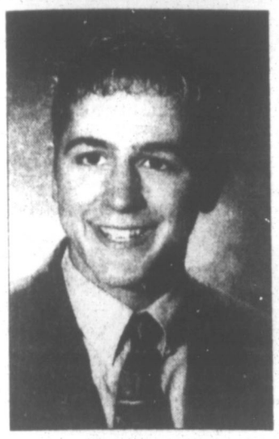
Earns Dean's List Recognition At SU



Local resident Joshua Bosley has been named to the 2004 fall semester dean's list at Shenandoah University in Winchester, Va., where he is a business administration major.

Bosley was also again named Most Valuable Player of the Shenandoah Hornets baseball team and was selected to the USA South Athletic Conference All-Academic Team.

The 2000 Southern High School graduate is the son of Todd and Craig Bosley of Oakland.

SHS Graduate Returns To Tutor Econ. Students

New York City financial research analyst Hillary Garris, a 1996 graduate of Southern High School, returned to her old SHS economics classroom recently to share an insider's view of the stock market with 18 students who had competed in Maryland's Stock Market Game. A former student of Southern economics teacher Lisa Bender, Garris was invited to visit her alma mater by the SHS Alumni Association.

Garris, who lives and works in New York City, is an emerging industry research analyst with Oppenheimer Inc. After graduating from Southern, she attended Lehigh University in Bethlehem, Pa., where she majored in finance and earned a degree in business and economics in 2000. She spent her junior year studying in Italy.

Shortly after graduating from college, Garris went to work at the trading desk for ING Funds. She subsequently accepted a position as a research analyst in the Emerging Markets Group at Oaktree Capital Management.

Garris is an active volunteer with such organizations as the Leukemia and Lymphoma societies, which raise funds for cancer research. She is an avid runner, and has competed in the San Diego Marathon.

The economics students at Southern discussed career issues and investment strategies with Garris during her visit. "Our students were thankful for the opportunity to learn how high school pathways and college majors fit into the world of work," Bender commented. "They immediately saw Hillary as a positive role model for their long-term business pursuits."

MVA Announces New Procedure For CDL/HME

Commercial driver's license (CDL) holders in Maryland seeking a Hazardous Materials Endorsement (HME) are now subject to a fingerprint-based background check, the Maryland Motor Vehicle Administration announced this week.

This new procedure is a result of federal legislation (the Patriot Act) and the Safe Explosives Act, enacted in the wake of 9/11, and regulations developed by the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) to implement these laws.

Beginning Jan. 31, any individual applying for a new HME for his or her CDL will have to undergo the fingerprint-based threat assessments background check. Fingerprint records will be forwarded to federal and state authorities for a criminal history background check.

Individuals who currently possess a CDL with HME who wish to renew or transfer their endorsement are also subject to these new procedures; however, their screening process will not begin until May 31.

The MVA noted that all current Maryland CDL holders were mailed a notice detailing the new rule change, procedures for renewing a CDL with HME, and procedures for applying for the endorsement, including information on all fees and charges.

The MVA will initially provide this service only at its Glen Burnie branch, but will establish additional locations to accommodate applicants from other regions later this spring. An appointment is necessary to begin the background check and may be scheduled by calling the MVA at 1-800-950-1-MVA.

For additional information on TSA's Hazmat Driver Threat Assessment Program, persons may visit online at tsa.gov, or for general information, one may visit the MVA web site at marylandmva.com.

TIGER CUBS VISIT HISTORICAL SOCIETY – The Tiger Cubs of Pack #95 visited the Garrett County Historical Society last fall, where they were treated to a tour of the local history museum and asked the staff questions about the many informative exhibits for all ages. Each pack member also received a coloring book courtesy of the museum staff. Pictured from the left are Payton Dixon, Lucas Stahl, Dakota Hinebaugh, and Mitchell Taylor.

of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, was concerned about the proposed fee's possible negative effect on local businessess and their chances of bringing broadband and other telecommunication services to the county.

"We feel its justified to make it (the fee) a $1 a foot," Ross told the commissioners.

Following a discussion with Nelson, Ross, and others on Tuesday, the commissioners set the building permit fee for towers at $1 per foot.

DNR Warns Of Treacherous DCL Ice Conditions

Maryland Park Service personnel at Deep Creek Lake are advising against the recreational use of Deep Creek Lake at this time. A large upheaval of ice surfaced on the main body of the lake Tuesday, resulting in exposed water and ice chunks of varying height on the surface, neither of which will be visible at night, the park service said.

The upheaval stretches between Bill's Marina and the state park boat ramp. The ice below the surface of the lake continues to vary in thickness and condition.

Volunteers Sought To Assist Local Girl Scout Troops

The Girl Scouts Trillium Council (GSTC) is greatly in need of volunteers to assist troops throughout the area, the GSTC recently announced.

A variety of short-term and long-term positions are available, and hours can be flexible. Some current opportunities include finance, training, and management volunteers.

"Girl Scouting gives girls the opportunity to participate in new experiences while making friends and having fun," said Deb Alley, director of membership for GSTC. "An adequate amount of volunteers is crucial to the success of our programs."

GSTC serves adult volunteers and girls in nine counties in three states: Garrett County; Monongalia and Preston counties in West Virginia; and Allegheny, Fayette, Greene, Washington, and portions of Somerset and Westmoreland counties in Pennsylvania.

For more information, persons may call Donna Simpson, local membership coordinator, at 724-435-7918.

FITNESS AFTER 55

by Elaine Kackley
Flowery Vale Health & Fitness Center

The February calendar of activities is now available at Flowery Vale Health & Fitness Center for the Mature Adult.

The public is invited to join us for our walk-aerobic sessions on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, 9-10 a.m. We challenge you folks who are under age 55 to come in and see if you can keep pace with us in our 3-miles program. A $2 donation by non-members is suggested for each session.

Yoga with Peggy remains on our schedule for Tuesdays and Thursdays, 9-10. The public is also invited to participate in these drop-in classes at a cost of $3 per session.

The second session of CPR/AED certification training will be held Wednesday, Feb. 9, from 10 a.m. to noon, followed by a covered-dish luncheon.

We have some new faces and new equipment at the Fitness Center. Brian Tisler and Stephanie Carrigo are serving their internships with us. Both are seniors at Frostburg State University majoring in exercise and sports science. Stephanie and Brian have created a new floor plan for our center and are working on some new fitness programs for us. Among the classes being developed is water aerobics. Watch for details!

Our newest piece of equipment is an elliptical or cross-trainer. This combination stair-climber and cross-country ski machine features pedals that follow an elliptical pattern. This machine is easy to use and has very low impact on joints. Exercisers on an elliptical perceive less exertion than they do when performing comparable exercise at the same intensity.

New members continue to call us and stop in to learn about Flowery Vale Health & Fitness Center. We are always happy to tell people about the super program we offer to those 55 and over. Please stop in to see us on your way through Accident.

Dept. Offers

sure friends don't drive drunk are just two of several things that the coalition of highway safety advocates urge you to do. These simple things can help you avoid a tragic crash or an arrest for impaired driving.

If. you are attending a Super Bowl party:

•Avoid drinking too much alcohol too fast. Pace yourself – eat, take breaks, alternate with non-alcoholic drinks.

•Designate your sober driver before the party begins and give that person your car keys.

•If impaired, don't even think about getting behind the wheel. Ask a sober friend for a ride home; call a cab, friend, or family member to come and get you; or stay where you are and sleep it off until you are sober.

•Remember, "Friends Don't Let Friends Drive Drunk." Take the keys and never let a friend leave your sight if you think he or she is about to drive while impaired.

If you are hosting a Super Bowl party:

•Serve lots of food – particularly high-protein dishes – and be sure to include lots of non-alcoholic beverages.

•Stop serving alcohol at the end of the third quarter of the game – and begin serving coffee and dessert.

•Be sure all of your guests designate their drivers in advance, or help arrange ride-sharing with sober drivers.

•Keep the numbers for local cab companies handy, and take the keys away from anyone who is thinking of driving while impaired.

Nationally, more than 17,000 people died in impaired driving-related highway crashes during 2003. Every 30 minutes, nearly 50 times a day, someone in America dies in an impaired driving-related crash. Hundreds of thousands are injured each year.

Driving impaired or riding with someone who is impaired is simply not worth the risk because the consequences are serious and real. Impaired driving crashes carry traumatic and financial costs and could result in an arrest, a serious injury or even death. It's just not worth the risk. You drink and drive. You lose.

For more information, persons may visit StopImpairedDriving.org and TeamCoalition.org.

A son, Dylan Hunter, was born to William and Melissa (McCloud) Stemple, Oakland, on Jan. 22 at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

A son, Bryn Douglas, was born to Eric and Tracy (Shank) Savage, Oakland, on Jan. 25 at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

A daughter, Ashlynn Jade, was born to Dana Stemple and John McEwan, Oakland, on Jan. 27 at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Animal Shelter Report

The Garrett County Office of Emergency Management reported that the following animals were recently picked up as strays and are now housed at the Garrett County Animal Shelter:

An adult tri-color beagle mix, male, found along Springs Road in Grantsville; and an adult gray domestic short-haired cat, female, found along Center Street in Oakland.

These animals must be claimed within 72 hours. For more information, persons may call the Garrett County Animal Shelter at 301-334-3553.

Breakfast Set To Benefit Frostburg Boy Scout Troop

A "sweetheart breakfast" will be held Saturday, Feb. 12, at the Frostburg United Methodist Church Fellowship Room from 7 a.m. to noon.

The breakfast, open to the public, will benefit Troop 42, Frostburg Boy Scouts of America.

The meal will include unlimited pancakes, two sausage patties, scrambled eggs, coffee, and juice. The cost will be $5 for ages 13 and up, $2.50 for ages 6 to 12, and free for ages 5 and under.

A fresh flower will be given to the first 50 ladies in attendance.

The church is located at 48 West Main Street in Frostburg. Parking will be available in the rear and upper side of the church off Mechanic Street.

Adorable Adoptables

KIND OF SHY AND HAS BEAUTIFUL EYES is how the mixed border collie pictured above left is described. He was picked up as a stray and is waiting at the Garrett County Animal Shelter for a new home. Also picked up as strays were an energetic black female Lab and a friendly male beagle-hound. The black Lab pictured below was given up because she didn't like her owner's dog. She, therefore, may need a home without dogs. "As you can see, all of this week's dogs are strays. None of them had identification tags, and they still have not been reclaimed, so they are up for adoption," said a Humane Society spokesperson. "Please remember to provide fresh water to all outside pets several times a day and adequate shelter from the wind and snow. Straw to put in doghouses is available at the shelter. It is free, but please only take what you need!" For more information, persons may call 301-334-3553.

New Category of Psoriasis Drugs

Psoriasis is a non-contagious inflammatory skin disorder that affects between 3 and 4 million people in the United States. Skin lesions (called plaques) are typically thick, dry, cracked, and silvery in appearance. While lesions can occur anywhere on the skin, they tend to occur primarily at the elbows, skin folds, knees and in the scalp. Most health experts agree that psoriasis is an inherited disorder that is probably related to an immune response to the body's own cells. Flare ups (inflamed plaques) seem to occur with injury to the skin, infections, obesity, lack of sunlight, stress, and decreased immunity.

Mild psoriasis flares can sometimes be managed with different types of topical medicines such as coal tar shampoos, steroids, antibiotics, and antifungals. Oatmeal baths may provide soothing to inflamed tissue and help loosen scales. Moderate inflammation may respond to ultraviolet light. In severe cases, physicians may prescribe immunosuppressive drugs such as methotrexate. The newest category of psoriasis drugs is called biologicals which include etanercept, efalizumab and alefacept. This category of drugs seems to turn off or block specific steps in the immune process associated with causing psoriasis.

Corn, Soybean and Small Grain Update

Garrett County has a great diversity of crop production which has traditionally included corn, oats, and barley but a few new crops are coming into the picture. One such crop is soybeans. With new and improved short season varieties, farmers can realize soybean yields approaching 50 bushels per acre in Garrett County in a good season. To learn more about new varieties and production information in both traditional crops and the new ones, Robert Kratochvil, University of Maryland, Extension Specialist for Agronomic Crops will be the featured speaker at the February 10 Crop Workshop sponsored by Maryland Cooperative Extension.

Dr. Krotochvil has served as the Extension Specialist for Grain and Oil Crops since January 2000. He grew up on a diversified crop and livestock farm in Montana where he learned the importance of attaining good yields while minimizing costs. He has used this concept of maximum economic yield as a cornerstone of his applied research program generating production practices information that farmers can readily use to improve their bottom lines. In this session he will review basic crop production factors for corn, soybeans, and small grains that can assist farmers to attain maximum economic yield. Learn about keys to variety selection, hear about the influence of planting dates, rates, and row spacings on yield, review the importance of good fertilizer management, and discuss issues that you may have for your operation.

This is the second meeting in the series and will be held Thursday, February 10 at two locations. The first location will be at the Pleasant Valley Community Building from 1 p.m. - 3 p.m. and the second will be at the Grantsville Senior Center from 7-9 p.m. There will be a $5 registration fee that will be collected at the door. Personnel from the Maryland Department of Agriculture and the Natural Resource Conservation Service will also be on hand to give farmers updates of programs and activities. This meeting will qualify for Nutrient Voucher re-certification for MDA. To register for the meeting please call the Garrett County Cooperative Extension office at 301-334-6960.

Referendum For Lamb Checkoff Now Under Way

Michael R. Kozier, executive director for USDA's Farm Service Agency in Garrett/Allegany counties, announced this week the final procedures for a continuance referendum under the Lamb Promotion, Research, and Information Act, more commonly known as the Lamb Checkoff Program, by the USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service. Kozier also announced that the referendum is under way and will continue through February 28 at USDA's County Farm Service Agency (FSA) offices.

"To be eligible to participate, persons must certify and provide documentation, such as a sales receipt or remittance form, that shows they have been engaged in the production, feeding, and/or slaughtering of lambs during the period of January 1 through December 31, 2004," said Kozier.

Through February 28, persons may obtain form LS-86 to vote in the referendum from county FSA offices either in person, by mail, or facsimile. Forms may also be obtained via the Internet at http://www.ams.usda.gov/lsg/mpb/rp-lamb.htm.

Persons are to vote in the referendum at the county FSA office where their administrative farm records are maintained. For persons not participating in FSA programs, the opportunity to vote will be provided at the county FSA office where the person owns or rents land. Form LS-86 and supporting documentation may be returned in person, by mail, or facsimile to the appropriate county FSA office. Form LS-86, and accompanying documentation returned in person or by facsimile, must be received in the appropriate county office before the close of business on February 28. Form LS-86 and accompanying documentation returned by mail must be postmarked no later than midnight on February 28, and received in the county FSA office by March 7.

For the program to continue, it must be approved by a majority of voters who also represent a majority of the volume represented in the referendum. The Lamb Checkoff Program is authorized by the Commodity Promotion, Research, and Information Act of 1996. This program provides for assessments on the sale of lamb and lamb products and for an industry board to carry out promotion, research, and information programs designed to increase the demand for lamb and lamb products.

The referendum is mandated by the act and requires that the secretary of agriculture conduct a referendum either before its going into effect or within three years after assessments first begin under an order. The order provides that the referendum be held within three years after assessments first begin. Assessments began July 1, 2002. AMS oversees the activities of the program.

The procedures and notice for the referendum were published in the December 27, 2004, Federal Register. For more information, persons may contact Kenneth R. Payne, Chief, Marketing Programs Branch, AMS Livestock and Seed Program, USDA, at Stop 0251, 1400 Independence Ave., SW, Washington, DC, 20250-0251 or by telephone at 202-720-1115.

IN THEIR QUEST TO HONOR GOD, Leslie and Donna Arndt have opened the Gospel Depot in the former train station in Mtn. Lake Park. Hours are Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. They offer a variety of products, from Bibles to home schooling supplies. Pictured above in front of the store are Melinda Arndt, Leslie, and Donna. See story.

Let's Get Down To Business!

GOSPEL DEPOT

When Leslie and Donna Arndt discovered that the train station in Mtn. Lake Park was available, they thought it would be ideal to open their business, Gospel Depot, there because depot actually means meeting place, said Donna.

Gospel Depot opened its doors in September, and offers a variety of products such as Bibles, new and used books, CDs, children's toys, crafts, gifts, and videos. A wide selection of church supplies, including Vacation Bible School kits and home schooling curricula, is also available.

"Our vision is to honor God and equip believers with the armor they need to live a victorious Christian life by providing Bibles, books, and other items for Christian edification," said Donna. "We want to provide a place for Christian fellowship and encouragement as well as discipline and evangelism."

In the future, they plan on expanding their line of products, and make room for a separate fellowship and Bible study area as well as a coffee shop.

Donna is a native of the Deep Creek Lake area, and both have worked in retail for many years. Also employed at Gospel Depot is their daughter, Melinda Arndt.

"With God's help and the help of God's people, we hope to serve our community for a long, long time," said Donna.

Their hours are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and they can be reached at 301-533-0300.

SHS Graduate Meets With Uzbek Business Leaders

Former Garrett County resident Dwayne L. Rodeheaver and representatives from the U.S. Department of Commerce recently met with leaders of Baqqollik, reportedly the largest product distribution company in Uzbekistan, one of the five central Asian republics of the former Soviet Union. The meeting took place in the United States.

Rodeheaver is the founder and president/CEO of AmRus Ventures Inc., Baltimore, and is currently working on several projects involving the exportation of U.S. goods to Russia and central Asia.

He is a 1982 graduate of Southern High School and is the son of Lonnie L. Rodeheaver, Oakland. He lives in Baltimore.

AmRus Ventures helps small domestic companies that are unfamiliar with exporting to "find a niche for their products abroad."

"The exporting of U.S. goods is the strongest method possible for maintaining our domestic job growth and overall manufacturing stability," Rodeheaver said. "Not only is international trade great for the U.S., we enjoy helping new and developing countries import products which lead to their own growth."

He said it took several months to bring the Uzbek group over from its capital, Tashkent. But by the end of March, Rodeheaver expects to have contracts for product sales worth nearly $3 million.

"It's amazing how many products the U.S. has for export, but the problem has been for small domestic companies to take the time to find international buyers," he said. "AmRus Ventures is able to do that for them and at a reasonable cost."

The company currently has 12 projects underway, including those involving mining/quarry equipment, agribusiness machinery, soy meal, medical equipment, and even used automobiles.

Another unique project involves a new type of wind power generator, which will be located in Kazakhstan, a central Asian republic three times the size of Texas.

"It's a single column design and takes up less space and is less obtrusive than traditional three-blade generators," Rodeheaver said about the generator.

The U.S. company that manufactures the generators also has a patent on a cellular relay system which is integrated into the generator column, he noted.

"I truly enjoy my work finding a niche for U.S. products in the international marketplace and helping strengthen U.S. manufacturing, particularly with those companies who are creative and realize that ingenuity in product design and technology is of the utmost importance," Rodeheaver said.

RODEHEAVER BRINGS UZBEK TRADE GROUP TO UNITED STATES – Former Garrett County resident Dwayne L. Rodeheaver recently met with representatives from the U.S. Department of Commerce (USDOC) and representatives from Baqqollik, a product distribution company in Uzbekistan. Now living in Baltimore, Rodeheaver is the founder and president/CEO of AmRus Ventures Inc., which helps other domestic companies that are unfamiliar with exporting to "find a niche for their products abroad. See story for details. Pictured, left to right, are Charles Raether, USDOC; Jamshid Akhmedov and Dilshodjon Zairov, both of Baqqollik; Rodeheaver; Chris Christov, USDOC; and Rustam Shadimetov, Baqqollik.

Midweek Lenten Services Slated At Shepherd Of Hills

Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church will hold midweek Lenten dinners and worship services beginning on Ash Wednesday, Feb. 9. Soup suppers, prepared by Will O' the Wisp, will be served in the Sitzmark Room at 6:15 p.m. Worship services will follow at 7 p.m.

The Lenten midweek services will be held on the following Wednesdays: Feb. 16 and 23, and March 2, 9, and 16. Members of the community are invited to attend.

Reverend Matthew Riegel will lead the worship on Ash Wednesday, as well as each of the Wednesdays during Lent. He is the Lutheran campus minister of West Virginia University, Morgantown, W.Va.

Members of Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church recently received word that the Church Council of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America (ELCA) approved their grant for mission development. This will be the first mission congregation in the West Virginia/Western Maryland Synod since the merger of the ELCA in 1987.

Helen R. Harms, mission director, said the Division for Outreach/ELCA has initiated the search for a leader to become the mission developer for the new congregation. The development of the new word and sacrament ministry will be funded through a variety of sources, including the Division for Outreach's budget and Mission Founders.

Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church holds services each Sunday at 5 p.m. in the Sitzmark Room of Will O' the Wisp, located along Route 219, just north of Glendale Road. Following the worship service, at 5:45, there is fellowship, youth Sunday school, and adult reflection on the sermon and scripture readings. The congregation welcomes tourists, newcomers, and individuals seeking a church home.

Further information about Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church can be found on its web site: www.shepherdofthehills-lutheran.org, or by calling 301-387-0400.

Omission Noted

The name Carmen P. DelSignore Jr. was omitted from the list of members of the Carl DelSignore Charitable Foundation in last week's article "Local Foundation Donates $35,000 To Crellin Project."

The money will be used to design and construct a playground at Crellin Elementary School as part of a project to reclaim a former coal tipple and stockpiling site near the school.

Carmen DelSignore is vice president of the foundation and played a major role in the donation process. The Republican regrets the omission.

Guidelines For Winter Debris Burning Noted

Landowners or contractors outside incorporated towns who are interested in burning brush, debris, etc., are encouraged by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources to take advantage of the winter weather that the area is experiencing. According to the Open Air Burning Regulations, Title 8, DNR, Subtitle .07, Maryland Forest Service, "burning may occur at anytime when the ground is covered with snow, if all other requirements are met."

The open air burning regulations apply to activities in woodland and within 200 feet of woodland, or a flammable material that could carry fire to the woodland. There should be a firebreak at least 10 feet wide around the fire, and adequate personnel and equipment present to control the fire. The fire should be out cold before all personnel leave the scene.

Landowners who wish to do some open air burning while the ground is covered with snow are still required to obtain a burning permit from the Health Department. These permits can be obtained by contacting the Garrett County Health Department, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., at 301-334-7760. Once this permit has been obtained, the landowner should contact Garrett Central Alarm at its non-emergency number, 301-334-1929, prior to burning. This is intended to reduce the chances of one of the local fire companies being called out on a false alarm.

For further information, persons may contact the DNR Forest Service office at Mt. Nebo at 301-334-3296.

MTN. LAKE PARK WATER SYSTEM
Surface Water Treatment Technique

The Garrett County Department of Public Utilities is providing the following notice regarding the Mtn. Lake Park Water System. The springs for the water system have been evaluated for protection against surface water influence as required by the Surface Water Treatment Rule (SWTR), as adopted in the Code of Maryland; COMAR 26.04.01 – Quality of Drinking Water in Maryland. The spring was determined to be under the direct influence of surface water by the Maryland Department of the Environment. As a result, this source requires additional treatment, such as filtration, or replacement with a protected water source. Federal and state regulations require that the Mtn. Lake Park Water System install filtration.

What is the Department of Public Utilities doing?

The Mtn. Lake Park Water System disinfects the drinking water that is produced from the spring. The drinking water is tested monthly for coliform bacteria and results have met state and federal standards.

The Department of Public Utilities is in the process of testing the design for a new water treatment facility. After the pilot test is completed, design for the project will proceed.

What should I do?

People with severely compromised immune systems, infants, and some elderly may be at increased risk. These individuals should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. General guidelines on ways to lessen the risk of infection by microbes are available from EPA "Safe Drinking Water Act Hotline" (800-426-4791). If you have specific health concerns, consult your physician.

What does this mean?

This is not an emergency. This notification is provided to advise Mtn. Lake Park Water customers of the treatment requirements for their water system. Any questions or concerns should be directed to Allen Festerman at 301-387-9141. Please share this information with others who may find it useful.

Herbal Alternative to Flu Vaccine Shortage

The American Botanical Council (ABC) recently published information that may be helpful to millions of individuals who were not able to receive the flu vaccine this year, due to the nationwide vaccine shortage announced a few months ago. ABC points out that at least two herbals offer options to healthy adults who want protections this winter against a possible infection from the flu virus. Those two herbs are echinacea and elderberry. While study results with echinacea have been mixed, a recent study in Canada showed that the herb lowers symptoms in people who have the common cold, another respiratory tract infection caused by viruses. A European study completed recently, indicated that people who took elderberry had less severe symptoms and recovered from the flu several days earlier than those who did not take the herb.

The ABC is a 16 year old, nonprofit organization involved in research and educational issues related to herbs that have demonstrated potential medicinal value. They can be reached at 512-926-4900. Their website address is www.herbalgram.org

Completing God's Work

"Having gifts that differ according to the grace given to us, let us use them: if prophecy, in proportion to our faith; if service, in our serving; he who teaches, in his teaching;...he who contributes, in his liberality; he who gives aid, with zeal; he who does acts of mercy, with cheerfulness." Romans 12:6-8

God has given us individual abilities and talents, tools with which to build His kingdom upon the earth. Not only does God want us to be happy and enjoy our lives, but He has also given us work to do. What an honor that our Heavenly Father has placed us upon the earth to serve Him with gifts we have been given.

One excellent way to serve God is through your local church or synagogue. We each have a unique gift we can contribute to God's body of believers. As you worship this week, perhaps you can discover what strength you have. By serving with your strength, you can do your part to complete God's work.

Underestimating Ourselves

Occasionally, we may be faced with a task we feel is impossible for us to perform. We may believe that we do not have enough time or skill to handle the job, and in such situations, we are usually defeated before we even try. However, we should keep in mind that it is performing life's difficult tasks that really help to make us grow. Although most of us have necessary simple tasks to perform, we usually learn very little or nothing at all by doing them. It is only when we are challenged with a job that takes all of our ability, either mentally or physically, that we become a stronger and more effective person. Always underestimating ourselves, and having the mindset of not ever trying to perform difficult tasks combine, often unwittingly, to form a negative attitude that will only help to defeat our character. The personal success that we attain from performing and/or completing tasks that truly challenge us will be reflected in our greater enjoyment of life. In fact, we may surprise ourselves by learning that our ability is indeed up to the challenge of performing these so_called impossible jobs, and when we perform well, we are doing exactly what our Heavenly Father expects of us: to be the best that we can be.

The Lord will give strength to His people; the Lord will bless His people with peace.

New K.J.V. Psalm 29:11

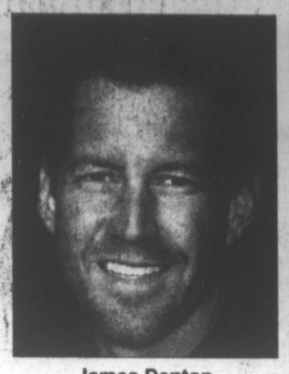
TV PIPELINE

Is 'Desperate' Denton an ex-'Pretender'?

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it



James Denton

Q: I would like to know if James Denton of "Desperate Housewives" is the same actor who played "The Pretender." –Shirley Hadju, Chico, Calif.

A: He didn't play the title role – that was Michael T. Weiss – but as Jamie Denton, the actor was a regular on that series as the sinister Mr. Lyle. Between that job and his current one, he also appeared on the ABC shows "Philly" and "Threat Matrix."

Q: We love "CSI: Crime Scene Investigation." We know the star of the show, William Petersen, starred in other shows. Can you help us with the names of those shows? –Sandi, Charlotte, N.C.

A: We'd be glad to if there were any ... but there weren't. Except for his work in the occasional TV movie or miniseries, such as "The Beast" and "The Kennedys of Massachusetts," Petersen was almost exclusively a feature-film and stage actor before CBS brought "CSI" his way.

Q: We were watching a commercial for a New York newscast, and it showed a person named Jodi Applegate. Is she related to Christina Applegate? They look like sisters to me! A dinner's riding on the answer. –Donna, Holbrook, N.Y.

A: Sorry ... something tells us you're going to be the one buying or making dinner. They aren't related. For those who have inquired if former NBC News correspondent Jodi is Christina's mother, Mom is actress Nancy Priddy.

Q: On "Veronica Mars," the creator and executive producer is listed as Rob Thomas. Is this the Rob Thomas from the music group matchbox twenty? –Margie O'Brien, Attleboro, Mass.

A: If it was, he wouldn't have time to breathe ... at least, not this TV season. They're two different people with the same name. The Rob Thomas who's currently on "Mars" previously produced "Cupid" (the 1998-99 ABC drama series, not the unscripted 2003 CBS dating show).

Q: One of my guilty pleasures – "Beverly Hills, 90210" – has disappeared from the FX schedule. It had been on Saturday and Sunday mornings. Do you know if it will return? Perhaps on another cable channel? –Julie, New Jersey.

A: It already has. A couple of weeks ago, SoapNet began running the popular Aaron Spelling-produced drama about Brandon, Brenda and the gang, and it now can be seen there every weekday afternoon. It makes sense, since SoapNet already had the "90210" spinoff show, "Melrose Place," which follows it Monday through Friday.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• Those who estimate such things claim that more than 500 billion cups of coffee are consumed every year across the world.

• The Internet is ubiquitous in all corners of the globe these days. As proof, take this story: A Romanian couple met online, dated over the Internet for three months, then got married. They recently had their first child, a boy. They were so grateful, they wanted to somehow honor the means by which they found true love, and they decided to do so in the name they chose for their son. After discussing their options at some length, the proud parents finally came up with a name: Lucian Yahoo.

• It was beloved humorist Josh Billings who made this sage observation: "As scarce as truth is, the supply is always greater than the demand."

• The word caffeine originally meant, simply, "something found in coffee."

• John D. Rockefeller Jr., who inherited the fortune made by his father, the Standard Oil tycoon, wanted his son, John D. Rockefeller III, to learn about how to manage money. To that end, in 1920, Jr. started giving III an allowance of $1.50 per week. There were, however, some strict rules that went along with the allowance: For example, the 14-year-old was required to put at least 20 percent of the money into savings. Also — perhaps unsurprisingly considering the father's dedication to charity work — the boy had to use at least 20 percent of the allowance for "benevolences."

• Fred MacMurray — perhaps best-known for his role on the TV show "My Three Sons" — was considered to play the lead role in "Perry Mason."

• The longest shark in the world is larger than a railroad boxcar.

Paw's corner

by Sam Mazzotta

DEAR PAW'S CORNER:

I just wanted to write to you about our dog, "Jeffrey." We had an awful time trying to train him in basic obedience skills, including housebreaking. At the advice of a friend, I sent him to a two-week, intensive course with a professional trainer. Since his return, the change in Jeffrey's behavior is remarkable.

He responds promptly to verbal commands and is perfectly housebroken, to the point that I don't need to put him in his kennel cage at night to prevent "accidents." He no longer tugs at his leash, and does not rush over to other dogs while being walked. Jeffrey even lost a little weight during his stay, thanks to the trainer keeping him on a special diet.

Jeffrey's training was a complete success. We reinforce the trainer's work by working with our dog daily, using the commands and reward system the trainer taught us. I can't say enough good things about Jeffrey's trainer. Please let your readers know that they shouldn't be afraid to contact a professional for help when having difficulty teaching basic obedience skills. — Frank T., Cartersville, Ga.

DEAR FRANK:

You just told them, Frank, and I thank you.

Professional pet trainers can be found in nearly every community in the country, and they offer a variety of programs to fit owners' schedules and their pets' needs. To find a trainer in your area, check your local newspaper or phone book, call or visit local kennel clubs, do an Internet search, or contact a veterinarian.

Q. I have several books by O. Henry that were published during the early years of the last century. Are they valuable, and who can I contact to sell them? — Rosemary, Odessa, Texas

A. William Sidney Porter was born in North Carolina in 1862. During his lifetime, he wrote at least 300 short stories that were published under the pen name of O. Henry. His short stories and novels established him as one of the country's most important writers.

Typical prices for first editions listed in Collected Books: The Guide to Values, by Allen and Patricia Ahearn, include "Roads of Destiny," $150; "The Four Million," $250; and "The Hiding of Black Bill," $500. First editions are rather scarce, and what you might have are later printings, which are worth much less.

To find out more about the books in your collection, you might want to contact an established dealer. Three that specialize in American authors are Tom Haydon, Wessex Books, 558 Santa Cruz Ave., Menlo Park, CA 94025; Howard Weetall, Antiquarian Bookworm, 4562 Skyland Drive, Las Vegas, NV 89121; and Jim Owens, Thorn Books, 5721 North Killdeer Drive, Tucson, AZ 85743. Always enclosed a SASE when contacting experts mentioned in this column.

Q. Is there a flea market directory for the United States? I plan to spend this summer visiting as many as possible in the Northeast. — Carol, North Canton, Ohio

A. One of the better reference books is the Official Directory to U.S. Flea Markets, which lists about 500 individual markets. It provides accurate and up-to-date information about each. You can order a copy through the publisher: House of Collectibles, 201 East 50th St., New York, NY 10022. The toll-free telephone number is 1-800-733-3000.

Real Estate Facts by... Don Nuce

SMOOTH MOVE!

Planning to buy a home? One question you may ask is, "When can I move in?" This question may have many possible answers.

Real estate purchases are created with an Agreement of Sale or Purchase Contract. This document spells out all items agreed upon by both buyers and sellers, including basics like the purchase price, the terms of payment and the closing date.

The closing date is that day on which the buyers transfer funds to the sellers, and the sellers deed the property to the buyers, concluding the transaction. Another important item is the "possession" date, when the sellers transfer physical possession of the property to the buyers.

Often, that date coincides with the "closing" date – once the buyers have paid for the home, and have a deed, it is logical that they should also be allowed to occupy the home. Nevertheless, other dates are sometimes chosen for possession, allowing the sellers time to move after the closing, or to accommodate special needs of the buyers to move early.

If any day other than the "closing date" is chosen for possession, a temporary occupancy agreement should be attached to the purchase agreement, including conditions of occupancy, rent to be paid, and the responsibilities of all parties. Be certain the "possession date" is spelled out clearly in any purchase agreement, and enjoy a smooth move!

If you'd like to buy a home, but feel "out of touch" with what's happening in real estate, give me a call today!

TIGER CUBS VISIT SOUTHERN RESCUE SQUAD – The Tiger Cubs from Pack #95 visited the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad hall recently, where Barbara Tichnell gave the Cubs a tour of the facility. She also took them aboard a fully equipped ambulance to explain how the equipment is used and showed them the various supplies that are kept in the ambulance. Each child received a coloring book and crayons courtesy of SGCRS. Pictured above, from the left, are Mitchell Taylor, Dakota Hinebaugh, Lucas Stahl, Payton Dixon, and Tichnell. Not pictured is J.P. Pysell, who showed the boys the cutting equipment used in the event of an entrapment.

Women's Hall Of Fame Seeking Nominations

The Garrett County Commission for Women is seeking recommendations of outstanding Garrett County women for induction into the Garrett County Hall of Fame. This year marks the 10th anniversary of the Garrett County Women's Hall of Fame, which "represents a permanent means to recognize women who have made our community vibrant," stated Beverly Beard, one of the hall's founders.

The purpose of the Hall of Fame is to honor county women who have made substantial contributions to the economic, political, and cultural life of the county. Nominees should represent women who have made "outstanding contributions to Garrett County and serve as examples for tomorrow's female leaders," according to the nomination criteria.

"The Hall of Fame is very competitive, and the independent selection committee has to have time to adequately review and verify the information before notifying the Commission of the women to be inducted", said commission founder Phyllis Trickett.

Nomination packets are available at each branch of the Ruth Enlow Library or can be obtained by contacting Pam Nelson at 301-334-9431. Completed packets must be postmarked no later than Saturday, Feb. 12. The commission will announce the inductees later, then they will be awarded for their contributions during a ceremony set for Saturday, March 12.

by Dr. Thomas P. Sheahen

HYDROGEN AS A FUEL

Q. Last week you described the hydrogen car, and called it a hope for the future. But where do you get the hydrogen to run the car with?

The hydrogen car demonstrated at an auto show seems just wonderful, especially since it causes no pollution; but the big problem is that hydrogen as a fuel is not readily available today.

There is an awful lot of hydrogen out there – oceans of it – in the form of water (H_2O). Unlike oil or natural gas, we are never going to run out of ocean water. Unfortunately, hydrogen bound up in water has no value at all as a fuel. It is necessary to convert it into a useful form, such as the gas H_2, and doing that requires the input of considerable energy. You might say it is "uphill" energetically to produce hydrogen fuel.

The pathway that is easiest to understand is to electrolyze water: Pass an electric current through a vat of water and you'll get bubbles of oxygen at one electrode and bubbles of hydrogen at the other electrode. Collect the hydrogen and you've got your fuel. But this raises the question "Where does all that electricity come from?" You can't just answer "out of the wall socket" – producing electricity requires power input, and most electricity in America comes from burning coal at generating plants. So you haven't reduced pollution at all if you power a car with hydrogen that required burning coal, oil, or natural gas to produce it.

When electricity is produced from sources other than fossil fuels, then it is possible to electrolyze water without increasing pollution. Such alternate sources of electricity include windmills, hydroelectric dams, solar collectors, and nuclear power plants. Of these, the only type that produces great quantities of electricity is nuclear power. The others don't contribute enough of the national electricity budget to provide the amount of hydrogen needed for millions of cars. Therefore, to produce hydrogen by electrolysis would mean building many more nuclear power plants.

Another route for producing hydrogen is to start with natural gas (methane, CH_4) and carry out a process called reforming, which uses some energy from methane to produce hydrogen gas (H_2) and carbon dioxide (CO_2). Although CO_2 is not a pollutant, it is a greenhouse gas and we would prefer not to produce great quantities of it. Following this route would eat up lots of natural gas and leave us with lots more CO_2.

Once the hydrogen gas (H_2) is produced, the next task is to get it into a car. There needs to be the equivalent of gas stations where a vehicle can pull in and quickly get more hydrogen. The fact that there aren't any such stations yet is a problem that can be overcome in the future, but the hydrogen still has to get to the refilling station.

Storage and delivery are two major problems for hydrogen. The customary way that industry stores hydrogen is in highly compressed form in steel cylinders. The trouble is, strong metal cylinders are very heavy and would greatly increase the weight of an automobile. Moreover, the idea of delivering millions of such cylinders via trucks running all over the roads is a very poor solution to the problem. Hydrogen itself is no more hazardous than gasoline, but moving all those highly compressed cylinders would be dangerous. The best way to transport hydrogen is via a pipeline, the same way that natural gas is delivered to homes and factories. Such pipelines haven't been built yet, and there are serious technical obstacles to be overcome first.

For the time being, gasoline holds a great advantage over hydrogen as a fuel. To begin with, gasoline comes from oil, and the distance "uphill" on the energy scale is tiny for gasoline compared to hydrogen (from either methane or water). That's a basic fact of chemistry that is not going to change. So as long as oil is available at a reasonable price, the gasoline engine will win out economically.

However, the world is going to run out of oil someday, and that inevitable "someday" is probably only a few decades away. The best way to get ready for that day is to start working now toward making hydrogen a realistic fuel. The hydrogen car built by the auto manufacturers is an important step in that direction.

Chamber Seeks Submissions For Events Calendar

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce is gathering information for its 2005 Spring-Summer Calendar of Events. The forthcoming calendar will include listings occurring from April 1 through Sept. 31, 2005. The deadline for submitting events is Friday, Feb. 18. There is no charge to list an event.

The calendar provides any organization planning to sponsor a public event in Garrett County with the opportunity to reach a large volume of residents and visitors. "The Calendar of Events and the annual Garrett County Vacation Guide are the most popular brochures the chamber produces," a spokesperson said.

"Together they showcase the unique opportunities our area has to offer."

Approximately 30,000 calendars will be distributed through the two county visitors centers, state welcome centers, and local businesses. The calendars will also be mailed upon tourists' requests. The activities may also be posted to the Chamber web site, www.garrettchamber.com.

Forms are being mailed to organizations that previously have listed items. Others who would like to post an event and have not received an application form, or who seek further information, may contact Karen Reckner by calling 301-334-5093, via fax at 301-334-5095, or via e-mail at Karen@garrettchamber.com.

Local Company Awarded Bid For DCL Plant Project

Beitzel Corporation of Grantsville has been awarded the construction bid for the Deep Creek Lake Wastewater Treatment Plant Expansion Project. The Garrett County commissioners approved the corporation's bid of $11,988,911 on Tuesday.

Brian Bowers, procurement officer for Garrett County Department of Financial Services, noted that Beitzel was the only bidder for the project.

Previously, the Garrett County Department of Public Utilities, Rural Development, and the engineering firm for the project – Whitman, Requardt, and Associates – reviewed the bid and recommended that the commissioners award it to Beitzel.

Bowers noted that Beitzel's bid was $9,451 below the engineer estimate prepared by Whitman, Requardt, and Associates.

"That's good, based on the fact that we only had one bid," said Commissioner Ernie Gregg.

Construction to expand the treatment plant is expected to begin in early May and will take 18 months to complete. Public Utilities wants to have the project finished by November 2006.

"This is a project that has been a long time in planning," said Commissioner Dave Beard. "We look forward to getting it started."

The commissioners also awarded a bid to First Choice Armor of Brockton, Mass., for nine ballistic and stab resistant vests. The tactical body armor will be used by the Special Response Team of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

The vests will be purchased with a $17,000 Homeland Security grant. Bowers said there were three reponses to the county's bid request for the vests.

Though First Choice Armor's bid of $16,578, was the highest, the company received the award because of the high quality of the vest.

Bowers obtained a sample vest from Southern Police Supply, the lowest bidder, and First Choice. Sgt.

TAKING AN EARLY DUNK – Lt. John Newnan, a longtime Special Olympics Maryland (SOMD) volunteer and director of the Maryland Law Enforcement Torch Run to benefit SOMD, took a dunk in Deep Creek Lake Tuesday in order to keep his dunk streak intact. Newnan, a 19-year veteran of the Howard County Police Department and part-time resident of Garrett County, will be absent from this year's dunk because he is part of the International Final Leg Team in Japan that is escorting the Special Olympics "Flame of Hope" to the start of the Opening Ceremonies for the Special Olympics World Winter Games. Officially, the seventh annual Maryland State Police Deep Creek Dunk presented by Uno's will take place on Saturday, Feb. 26, with registration at noon. To date, approximately 250 dunkers are pre-registered, and event organizers expect to exceed the numbers from the 2004 dunk, which boasted 412 dunkers and raised $75,000 for SOMD. Newnan is pictured above taking his chilly dip while being cheered on by dunk committee members and members of the Maryland Park Service.

Woman, Infant Injured In Single-Vehicle Accident

A Grantsville woman and her 10-month-old infant were transported to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, following a single-vehicle accident last Thursday on Rt. 495 near Durst Road in Grantsville, according to Maryland State Police.

According to the driver, Brandy Lynn Glisan, 18, Grantsville, an unknown blue passenger car pulled out in front of her Chevrolet Cavalier. Glisan took evasive action and lost control of the vehicle on the wet road, causing it to roll over before coming to rest on its roof. Grantsville firefighters and Northern Rescue Squad responded to the 10:51 a.m. scene.

Police are requesting that any witnesses to the accident contact Tfc. D.T. Wagoner at 301-387-1101 with any information.

Two Kentucky Men Arrested On Drug Charges

Two Kentucky men were arrested on drug charges after their vehicle was stopped for traveling 81 mph in a posted 65 mph zone on I-68 west of Finzel Road early Friday morning, according to Maryland State Police.

Joshua Arnold Willoughby, 22, and Patrick Wayne McClanahan, 24, both of Georgetown, Ky., were charged with possession of CDS and possession of paraphernalia. According to police, a slight odor of burnt marijuana was detected coming from inside the 2001 Chevrolet Cavalier. A search of the vehicle recovered a plastic bag and a Marlboro cigarette box containing marijuana. Both admitted to drinking a six-pack of beer and smoking three joints, police said.

Girl Receives Injuries From ATV Accident

A 12-year-old female was injured when she was ejected from a four-wheeler near Potomac Camp Road Saturday afternoon, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

The juvenile was transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries. According to police, the girl was ejected after her ATV skidded on an icy-covered private driveway. No citations were issued by police.

In a separate incident, charges are pending against an Eglon, W.Va., man who rolled his vehicle after attempting to flee from police early Saturday morning.

Deputies attempted to stop a 2002 Chevy truck on George Washington Highway west of Garrett Highway after it was observed traveling at a high rate of speed. The truck then continued to travel at speeds of 90 mph, police said. As the

Garrett County To Receive $300,000 For Rural Legacy

Gov. Robert L. Ehrlich Jr. announced on Tuesday the allocation of $7.25 million in grant agreements for 16 Rural Legacy areas, including $300,000 for Garrett County.

Locally, the funds will be used to purchase a conservation easement on a 165-acre farm in the Priority I section of the Bear Creek drainage area, said Garrett County commissioner Fred Holliday, who attended the announcement. The purchase will help preserve the property as farmland.

Although the Board of Public Works approved the 14 grants in June 2004, the agreements were not signed and executed by the state until this week.

Other Rural Legacy areas receiving grants on Tuesday included Land's End in Queen Anne's County, $900,000; the Agricultural Security Corridor on the Eastern Shore, $850,000; and Little Pipe Creek in Carroll County, $750,000.

Under the auspices of the Department of Natural Resources, the Rural Legacy Program encourages local governments and private land trusts to identify areas that are rich in natural, forestry, and agricultural resources and which are key components of Maryland's landscape for designation as Rural Legacy areas..

Local government and land trusts competitively apply for funds to conserve resources and protect water quality, mainly through conservation easements purchased from willing landowners in the area.

This year's grant agreements were the first to be evaluated using the governor's new criterion for land conservation, which calls for land to be strategically identified and prioritized for purchase, based on the evaluation of the property's ecological value.

"Using this new criterion focuses our land preservation toward the most ecologically sensitive land in a fiscally sound way," Ehrlich said on Tuesday. "This is a perfect example of using qualitative, scientific data to help the state and our local partners strategically preserve the properties that maximize the benefit to Maryland's environment. Restoring the Chesapeake Bay will take an integrated approach with cooperation, commitment and a passionate desire to do the right thing from local governments; the strength of the Rural Legacy program is that it is all three of those. Edwards Submits Legislation To Put Black Bears In All Maryland Counties

Del. George Edwards has introduced a bill in the General Assembly that would require the secretary of the Department of Natural Resources to introduce black bears in each Maryland county by Oct. 1, 2012.

Edwards stresses that the bill is no joke. He said a DNR map indicates there is good-to-fair bear habitat in every county.

"Moving bears can work, and it will give the people in the Baltimore-Washington corridor a taste of what we live with daily," he said. "We'll share our bears with them and see if they still want to stop the hunt."

Edwards added that he trusts the DNR to manage the bears, most of which live in the two counties he represents – Garrett and Allegany.

He submitted the bill (HB 463) after Del. Barbara Frush (D-Prince George's and Anne Arundel counties) introduced legislation (HB 371) to stop all bear hunts in the state. She introduced a similar bill last year, which failed to win approval.

The DNR held a limited black bear hunt in Garrett and Allegany counties last fall. Twenty bears were harvested in the one-day hunt, which was the first in the state since 1951. The DNR estimates that there are nearly 500 bears in the state.

Frush's new bill would classify black bears as "nongame mammals" and prohibit the DNR from reducing the black bear population in the state and prohibit the department from establishing an open season to hunt bears.

The legislation would allow the DNR to reduce the population in any county, election district, or other identifiable area of the state, but only "after a thorough investigation reveals that protected wildlife is seriously injurious to agricultural or other interests in the affected area." The method of reducing the population would be at the department's discretion, but the bill stresses that that trapping would be "preferred whenever feasible."

The DNR would not be allowed to reduce the black bear population in any area except in defense of a person or a person's property and domesticated animals and after "exhausting all nonlethal methods of resolving chronic documented agricultural damage or depredation caused by the black bear."

Frush's bill is cosponsored by 24 other delegates. All but two are Democrats. They are all from Baltimore, Montgomery, Prince George's, Anne Arundel, or Howard counties.

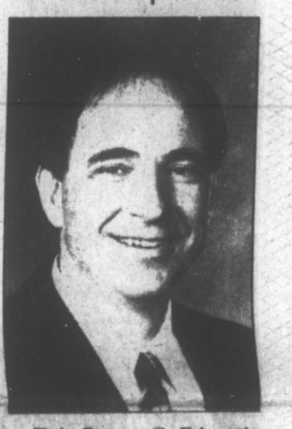
The House Environmental Matters Committee will hold a public hearing for the Edwards bill on Monday, Feb. 28, in Annapolis.

The committee heard Frush's bill on Tuesday (Feb. 8), but as of this morning (Feb. 10) has not rendered a decision on whether to amend it, kill it, or allow it to proceed through the legislature as it is currently written.

More than two dozen supporters of Frush's bill, including animal-rights advocates, urged the committee to ban black bear hunting in Maryland. They called last fall's bear hunt an excuse to permit a "trophy sport" under the guise of a population-control method.

The DNR opposes HB 371. Representatives from the department, several farmers, and the president of the Maryland Sportsmen's Association spoke against the bill during the public hearing and urged the committee to vote against it.

Edwards Receives Community Action Partnership Award



Del. George C. Edwards (District 1A), House minority leader, received the Maryland Community Action Partnership's 2005 Legislative Leadership Award last Wednesday. The award is in recognition of his continued "dedication to improving the lives of the low-income individuals and families" throughout the state.

"I am honored to accept this award, and I'm grateful for the work of the Community Action Partnership," Edwards said. "I've seen the work of this organization make a lasting and meaningful impact in Garrett and Allegany counties through the years."

"We can all cite specific pieces of legislation that Delegate Edwards has shepherded over the years," said

TACO BELL DONATES TO RESCUE SQUAD – The Oakland Taco Bell recently donated $3,132 to the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad to support the squad's new building campaign. Taco Bell pledged 20 percent of all sales made at its Garrett Highway restaurant between the hours of 5 and 8 p.m. from July through December 2004. The restaurant paid an additional $50 bonus when the 20 percent figure exceeded $60. Supporters boosted sales above the 20 percent level 22 times during the campaign's 26 Tuesdays, earning bonuses totaling $1,100, noted a Taco Bell spokesperson. Pictured, left to right, at the check presentation are Oakland Taco Bell manager Olive DeWitt, Barbara Tichnell, SGCRS financial secretary, and David Moon, SGCRS president. Taco Bell plans to kick off a series of "Dog Day Mondays" beginning Feb. 21 to raise funds for the Oakland City Police Department's purchase of a new K-9 dog. The new dog is necessary to replace the department's current K-9, Uro, who is 7 years old and suffering some health problems. The cost of certifying a new K-9 and its handler is estimated at $10,000, noted the spokesperson. In the past, the K-9 has been instrumental in investigating narcotics violations, building searches, and tracking burglary suspects.

4-H CLUB GETS A SKI LESSON – Max Dubansky of the Backbone Mountain Cross Country Ski Farm in Pleasant Valley gave members of the Country Explorers 4-H Club ski lessons recently. He taught the youth the basics of cross-country skiing – how to glide, slow down, turn, and most importantly, how to get back up. The group also were given a lesson and trip around the beginner green loop trail with Max and his wife Katharine. President Eric Tichnell and secretary Caitlin Carrico presented Jon Boone with a thank-you gift for a Garrett County bird slide show he presented to the group.

GCHD Links Nat'l Child Passenger Safety Week With Valentine's Day

Motor vehicle crashes are the number one killer of children ages 2-14. But children ages 4-8 who use booster seats are 59 percent less likely to be injured in a car crash than children who are restrained only by a safety belt.

That's why the Garrett County Health Department is joining with the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), the Ad Council, and others around Valentine's Day this year to commemorate National Child Passenger Safety Week (Feb. 13-19). The purpose is to place special emphasis on reminding all parents and other adults responsible for children traveling in motor vehicles that youngsters under 4'9' should ride in a booster seat.

The safety week coincides with Valentine's Day, and the health department is making the link with child passenger safety.

"Some parents or caregivers may regard booster seats as a hassle to use, or a pain to convince their children to use. But we want to remind them this year at Valentine's Day that truly protecting the ones they love means getting past the temporary complaints and perceived hassles because their children's lives are really at risk," said Diane Lee, highway safety coordinator at the Garrett County Health Department.

"While 94 percent of America's toddlers are now regularly restrained, not enough kids ages 4-8 are properly and safely restrained," Lee said. "Only 10-20 percent of kids ages 4-8 who should be using booster seats to protect them are actually in them. This puts children at an unnecessary risk of being injured or killed in crashes because they are simply in the wrong restraint for their size."

The health department will schedule appointments at their offices in Oakland and Grantsville during Child Passenger Safety Week to evaluate a child's need for a booster seat and to check for correct child safety seat use. Appointments will be available at Grantsville on Tuesday, Feb. 15, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Appointments will be available in Oakland on Wednesday, Feb. 16, and Thursday, Feb. 18, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

To schedule appointments, persons may call 301-334-7730 or 301-895-3111. Other dates and times are available upon request.

Children need to be in the right restraint for their size and age, Lee said. One study showed that children ages 2-5 who are moved to safety belts too early are four times more likely to sustain a serious head injury than those restrained in booster seats.

In a traffic crash, the shoulder strap of a safety belt will hit a child shorter than 4' 9" across the neck or face rather than the chest, and there is also a greater risk of internal injury because an adult belt hits across the child's stomach rather than his/her lap. These children need a booster seat, which raises them up so that adult safety belts fit over their chests and hips properly and protect them in the event of a crash.

Lee said as children grow, how they sit in a car, truck, van, or SUV should also change. For maximum child passenger safety, parents and caregivers need to remember and follow the 4 Steps for Kids:

- Use rear-facing infant seats in the back seat from birth to at least 1 year of age and at least 20 pounds;
- Use forward-facing toddler seats in the back seat from age 1 and 20 pounds to about age 4 and 40 pounds;
- Use booster seats in the back seat from about age 4 to at least age 8, unless the child is 4 ft. 9 inches or taller; and
- Use safety belts in the back seat at age 8 or older or taller than 4 ft. 9 inches. All children age 12 or younger should ride in the back seat.

"Many parents are under the impression that children who have outgrown child safety seats can move right into safety belts, but nothing could be further from the truth. Safety belts, which are designed to fit adults, won't fully restrain a child in a crash," Lee said.

For more information about the proper use of booster seats, persons may visit this web site: www.boosterseat.gov.

THE BEST VALENTINE parents can give is to make sure their children are buckled into the proper car safety restraint for their size and age. Kendra Todd is pictured as she checks the harness for her daughter Kaysi. To make sure their children's car safety equipment is age and size appropriate, persons may call the Garrett County Health Department to schedule an appointment to have it all checked out. The health department will be commemorating National Child Passenger Safety Week Feb. 13-19 by offering these appointments. See story.

truck approached the Maryland and West Virginia state line, the driver lost control, struck the guard rail, and overturned. The driver, Robert Lee Frantz Jr., 28, was ejected.

Frantz was transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries. Also responding to the 1:50 a.m. accident were Preston County Sheriff's Office, West Virginia State Police, and Aurora and Gorman firefighters.

In other police news, John Manning, 25, Oakland, lost control of his vehicle on Herrington Manor Road near Markwood Drive because of the icy road, struck a fence, and overturned. He suffered minor injuries and refused treatment at the scene. Manning was charged with improper passing.

LOCAL POLICE OFFICERS, CANINES RECOGNIZED – Two local police officers were recognized for their outstanding canine accomplishments by the United States Police Canine Association Inc. at the association's Region Three Annual Awards Banquet held in Greenbelt recently. Garrett County Sheriff's Deputy David McLaughlin received an award for placing first at the narcotic detector dog trials which were held earlier in Cumberland. McLaughlin and canine Tara finished first place out of approximately 40 canine teams that were present at the competition. They finished with an overall score of 199.3 of a possible 200 points. Cumberland Police Department Sergeant Rocky Reed received an award for first quarter patrol dog case. Sgt. Reed and canine Oris were called to Interstate 68 to assist with a suspect who had fled on foot from the police after a traffic stop. Reed and Oris were able to track the suspect and made an apprehension of the suspect in a building, resulting in the recovery of suspected cocaine, a weapon, and an amount of U.S. currency. In addition, both Sgt. Reed and Dep. McLaughlin received awards as part of the Western Maryland Canine Team, which finished second in the competition. The team finished second out of approximately 15 teams, and was composed of Reed, McLaughlin, and Corporal Randy Cutter and canine Ladd of the Allegany County Sheriff's Office. Pictured above, left to right are, Reed; Mary Davis, vice president Region Three, United States Police Canine Association Inc.; McLaughlin; Major Gary Berkebile, Garrett County Sheriff's Office; and Garrett County Sheriff Dick Sanders.

PAWS PASSION FOR PETS CHALLENGE will be launched tomorrow, Feb. 11, with the purpose of raising funds for the continuing spay/neuter effort of PAWS (Partners for Animal Welfare and Safety). The challenge will run from Feb. 11 through Feb. 28. Several participating businesses will offer paper hearts for sale to their patrons, at $1 each. Purchasing patrons will then sign the hearts, which will be displayed at the business, showing support of the spaying and neutering of pets. PAWS has issued a challenge to each business or organization involved to sell as many hearts as possible. The location selling the most hearts, or contributing the most money, will win the honor of receiving a perpetual plaque to display at its business for a year until the next Challenge winner is announced. The plaque will have the engraved name of each year's winner added as it travels. Some of the businesses/organizations where collection jars will be located are Countryside Animal Hospital, Black Bear Tavern and Restaurant, The Restaurant at Fantasy Valley, and St. Paul's Methodist Church in Oakland. An updated list of participating businesses will be published next week. Buddy, pictured above, appreciates the support. Photo by Annette Robinson.

School Bus, Jeep, Van Involved In Mishap Friday

An SUV, a van, and a school bus were involved in an accident Friday afternoon at the intersection of Fourth Street and East Memorial Drive, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies. No students were injured, said Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent of the schools.

Joanna Sisler, 73, was operating a Jeep Cherokee southbound on Fourth Street. After stopping at the stop sign, the Jeep attempted to cross Memorial Drive, and then collided with a 1994 Ford school bus operated by Debra Bennett, 40. The Jeep was then propelled into a 1997 Dodge van operated by Daniel Tice, 33, which was stopped at the stop sign northbound on Fourth Street.

All vehicles sustained significant property damage. Bennett and Tice were not injured. Sisler and five bus passengers were taken to the hospital for evaluation, said police.

Oakland firefighters responded to the 3:35 p.m. scene. An investigation of the incident continues and traffic charges are pending, police said.

GBI Seeking Information From Public

The Garrett Bureau of Investigation is currently investigating and is seeking information about an incident that occurred in the area of Oakland Sang Run Road, Mayhew Inn Road, and Shingle Camp Road on Wednesday between 1 and 3 p.m.

According to GBI, unknown suspects left collectible coin cases along these roads as they traveled from Mayhew Inn Road to the McHenry area. Persons traveling or living in this area who may have information on the vehicle or persons involved are urged to contact GBI at 301-334-1911.

at 89 mph in a posted 65 mph zone on I-68 east of Sand Spring Road. An odor of burnt marijuana was detected and a search of the vehicle resulted in the seizure of a small amount of marijuana and a smoking device. Steven Pfister Jr., 19, Alexandria, Va., and Rami Saleh, 18, Lorton, Va., were arrested, and charged with possession of marijuana and possession of paraphernalia.

In a separate incident, Joshua Ryan Phillips, 18, Oak Hill, W.Va., was arrested and charged with possession of marijuana and possession of paraphernalia after his vehicle was stopped for speeding on I-68 near Old Morgantown Road.

Awarded Bid

Mike Bittinger, Det. Clark Warnick, and other members of the Special Response Team examined them. The commissioners also examined the vests prior to the bid award.

Bittinger said the team understood that the First Choice vest was more expensive, but that it was "far superior" than the lowest bidder's vest. He added that First Choice's bid was within the Homeland Security grant.

"This vest (First Choice's) is the only product which meets or exceeds all the specifications of the bid," Bittinger said. "This vest will provide the maximum level of protection to our deputies in a tactical environment."

Southern Police Supply's bid was $8,392.

The commissioners also awarded a $120,000 bid to the EADS Group of Cumberland to provide engineering services for the Friendsville Sewer System and an $88,795 bid to Thrasher Engineering of Clarksburg, W.Va., to provide engineering services for the Trout Run main interceptor replacement project.

Additionally, U.S. Municipal Supply Inc. of Huntingdon, Pa., was awarded a bid for a trackless machine. At $116,141.84, the company was the lowest of two bidders.

The 110-horse power diesel multiple-use machine will be used at the Garrett County Airport to mow grass and plow runways. It will be purchased, in part, with grant funding.

am excited to support it today."

Ehrlich also announced on Tuesday the allocation of $14.9 million in Rural Legacy funding for fiscal year 2006 to continue land preservation.

Since 1998, the Rural Legacy Program designates Rural Legacy areas and awards local governments and private lands trusts with competitive grant money to conserve land within these areas.

"Governor Ehrlich's commitment to preserving land in a way that makes the most sense environmentally and fiscally benefits present and future generations of Marylanders," said DNR Secretary C. Ronald Franks, who is the chair of the Rural Legacy Board. "The Rural Legacy Board stands squarely behind the governor in his commitment to protect the Chesapeake Bay and the state's most strategic resources."

Department of Agriculture Secretary Lewis Riley and Department of Planning Secretary Audrey E. Scott are also on the board.

"I am very pleased with the way the Ehrlich administration has begun to sharpen its focus upon the environmental needs of our state and especially the Chesapeake Bay," said Bruce W. Fleming, chair of the Rural Legacy Program Advisory Committee. "This administration has proposed a dramatic increase for Rural Legacy in 2006."

Forget the Underwear...

So, an elected official in Virginia is trying to make it illegal for persons to allow their underwear to be seen in public (while being worn, that is). The fine will be $50 per offense if this bill passes, and we assume that repeated offenses could ultimately cause one to do hard time in the slammer. Wow.

Despite the fact that the showing of one's underwear can, at times, be a bit offensive, we're pretty sure that such a law would never withstand a constitutionality challenge. And, once again, there are so many other far more pressing issues that desperately need legislative attention.

An extremely important one that we have harped on before, but has still not been "fixed," is the medical malpractice crisis, plus frivolous lawsuits in general. The Maryland legislature met in special session in December, but came up with nothing more than a lame, short-term, band-aid solution to our state's medical malpractice problem. They perhaps have bought just a little more time, but that's all.

What is sorely needed, of course, is significant reform of our tort laws and zero tolerance on lawsuit abuse.

According to a recent study shared by the Maryland Citizens Against Lawsuit Abuse, the U.S. tort system cost our country $246 billion in 2003. That translates to $845 per citizen, per year, a cost that each and every one of us is paying. Lawsuit abuse is damaging to small businesses and our economy in general. It raises the cost of every single good and service that we must purchase, and in the health care arena, it jeopardizes our access to quality care.

A bill has been introduced by a Baltimore County delegate called the Common Sense Food Consumption Act, one of many that are now being referred to as cheeseburger bills. The legislation would prohibit lawsuits against food sellers and manufacturers by those who claim the food they ate contributed to their obesity and other related health problems (e.g., the two New York teens who field a lawsuit against McDonald's for "making them fat"). We are anxious to see if our lawyer-dominated Maryland legislature will have the guts to pass it.

And guess what. In Virginia, where the underwear scourge is raging, the state legislature has already passed its own cheeseburger bill. Maryland needs to follow suit.

To the Editor:

As I read the news, "Springfield Mourns A Lost Son," my eyes are cloudy with tears, and sadness fills my heart for the loss of our beloved Springfield son. It is times such as this when we wonder how our commander in chief can celebrate and dance while some of our troops are being blown to bits, or injured in such a way that their entire life is ruined. For what, we do not know!

All of this flashes through my mind and reflects back to the statement the English made, after our recent election: "The Americans are simpletons to re-elect Bush as their president." Isn't it time to wonder where our commander in chief is leading us in the next four years?

Sincerely,
Rita Williams
Springfield, Pa.

To the Editor:

The family member of a victim of a serious crime in Garrett County recently contacted my office to inquire about the defendant's parole. This defendant was convicted and sentenced prior to the enactment of legislation mandating victim notification and, therefore, his victim/victim representative, or my office, was not advised in advance of his pending release.

The Office of the State's Attorney can easily determine the status of an inmate in the Maryland Division of Corrections. Therefore, I invite any victim or victim's family member to contact our office for updated information. Ms. Mona Metz, Victim/Witness coordinator, will make the inquiry and provide accurate current information as to the inmate's location, status, possible release dates, and parole eligibility. She can be reached at 301-334-1971.

Sincerely,
Lisa Thayer Welch
State's Attorney

To the Editor:

Please publish this letter as a remembrance to our precious daughter, Virginia Ellen Brady, who was murdered on February 14, 1993.

February 14, 1993, sure wasn't a happy Valentine's Day for our family. Cold and snowing, sometime in the early morning, two police officers came and pounded on our door and informed us that our daughter Virginia was shot and had died. Virginia was shot outside Razzbe[illegible]'s Sports Bar at Deep Cr[illegible] Lake.

V.J., as her friends knew her, was a free-spirited person who was loved by her family and many friends. She was a real people person. She was a Navy veteran who loved life. This may be a holiday for some, but it will always be remembered as the day our daughter was taken away from us at such a young age.

It is now known that the individual who murdered our daughter has been released from prison and possibly will move back to Garrett County. This is devastating to our family. He served only 12 years of his 20-year sentence. Our daughter was given the death sentence; life without parole.

Our family was not informed of a parole date or a release date for this individual. We now know that legislation was not passed until October 1996 for victims of serious crimes to be notified concerning these precious dates. If you or someone you know has been a victim of a crime prior to 1996, please make contact with the State's Attorney's Office as soon as possible so you won't be left without this precious knowledge.

To the Editor:

Let's first get the intended tax facts correct regarding the flush tax:

1. It will include all Garrett County, Maryland.
2. It will be for the benefit of the Chesapeake Bay.
3. It will be charged to those poor home owners who use the septic system, instead of public sewer.
4. It will be $30 per year – at the beginning.

Now that we have the facts correct, let's now address the question of logic of this latest fiasco:

1. A tax charged to the home owner who has a septic system is comparable to charging one who owns a bicycle for car emissions! The waste of a septic system stays in the area of the drain field.

2. The Chesapeake Bay is on the east side of the continental divide. Let's understand what this means: Backbone Mountain runs from the southern area of Garrett County to the northern area, and generally along the eastern border of the county, in a northeasterly direction. Take a look at any map which has topography on it, or study the terrain of the mountain. What does this mean? It means that should you spit into the Yough River which goes through Oakland, that liquid may possibly travel up (north) the Yough River, into the Ohio River (west), which works its way to New Orleans (south)!

We in Garrett County (most of the county) have nil to do with the Bay. Again our legislators have let us down in a big way. Where is the justice? Where is the fiscal sanity? My good brothers and sisters of Garrett County, we have again been had! Call the governor, or write to him.

To the Editor:

I noticed an article in The Republican last week about Harvey House, a "consumer-run drop-in center" for consumers of mental health services. I noticed a few questionable things, the first being the average number of those attending on a regular day. I used to be a part of Harvey House, and I still associate with fellow consumers who are. I'm sorry, but 20 consumers do not attend on a regular day. About the only time that I have seen 20 in attendance is when special events take place (with consumers transported from Allegany and Washington counties), on "Family Day," and so on.

The second thing is "transportation." Harvey House is funded by the Mental Hygiene Administration through the Garrett County Core Service Agency, and monies are designated for transportation. However, fellow consumers have said that transportation was refused to them because they live too far out of Oakland, they come in on their own too late (perhaps via a relative or Garrett Transit Service),

VALENTINE DOLDRUMS? NEVER FEAR!

So you've been married a long time, huh? Years of togetherness, friendship, secret jokes, pillow talk, complete irritation/exasperation, finishing each other's sentences, so in tune to each other that you have started to look alike. Or perhaps you're brand new in a relationship, still in the nervous time, your stomach constantly housing butterflies, your palms sweaty, your heart beating a little too fast. The sound of your sweetie's voice on the phone makes you giddy. Or then again, maybe you're somewhere in between — maybe with a kid or two, trying to make house payments or rent, excited about the prospect of maybe having an evening alone together some month, keeping up with vaccinations and diaper pails, and falling asleep mid-goodnight-kiss.

If you're in a relationship, you probably fit in at least one of these categories, or close to it, and you should be aware that certain time of the year is looming. Yes, it's almost time for another Valentine's Day. Stupid Valentine's Day. Oh, okay, if you're in the "new relationship" category, it still looks good, but you want it to be really good, really unique for your incredible new lover, right? You in-betweeners probably don't have time to think about it much, even though you'd like to. You might toss a card to each other while passing in the hallway, one to help with homework and the other to bathe the baby. And you long-timers (and I think John and I fall into that — almost 16 years of marriage, plus four years before taking that leap), well, you guys are just sort of tired of it. You've reached that stage of complacency, that place where there are only two unchanging truths: Women can't spontaneously parallel park, and men can't find anything, ever, even when it's right under their big noses. (Oh, don't write letters. It's the truth and you know it.) The cards to you people are often sort of hokey, and you might be at the place where they mostly represent more clutter in your house already bursting with it. Going out to dinner is always problematic — too crowded, no babysitters available because they're all going out to eat, too, or it's just too cold to go out late like that in the middle of a Garrett County February. And candy? Hmm. The size of one's rear end this far into marriage is quite often a deterrent for that sort of gift. (Just look at Cupid. Tubby little guy, isn't he?) What about flowers? Okay, I have to say that flowers, to me, are still good, but I've heard other women complain that they just dry up and drop pollen all over the place — more to clean. And, boy, are we sick of cleaning. So what in the world is a Valentine to do?

No worries. We have you covered. And by "we," I mean the Garrett Choral Society. It's something new, and something fun for you and your favorite Valentine. It's called "Sweets for My Sweetie," an afternoon concert of romantic songs and special desserts. It'll be held on Sunday, Feb. 13, at St. Paul's United Methodist Church in Oakland, beginning at 2 p.m. Tickets are $8 for adults and $5 for kids 12 and younger. We're going to sing a few tunes together, and then we're going to launch into solo work. We'll sing you a whole bunch of love songs, ones like "Embraceable You," "Moon River," and "Thanks for the Memories" — you know, cheesy but sweet ones like that. And that is not all, oh no it's not. Your tickets also cover your relocation to the church social hall downstairs, where you and your mate will be served tasty chocolate desserts (just forget the rear end issue). As you share these treats, you will be serenaded some more by us choral singers. There are exceptionally nice door prizes to be won throughout the afternoon. And finally, you will be able to — get this — buy a singing valentine for your lover. At just three bucks a pop, you can bring on the romance, and how. And guys, go ahead and buy one, and when it gets to the good part, just sort of nudge your girl and whisper, "That's exactly how I feel." And she'll get all teary-eyed, because music does that to us, and she'll be pretty sure she didn't make a big mistake hooking up with you after all. And then everyone's happy.

So come on out on Feb. 13 for something new. You can hardly pass it up if you like this sort of music even a little bit. Where else are you going to get Dave and Wayne Callis to serenade you — yes, both of them together — with "Unchained Melody"? How about George Scheffel and "Love Letters"? Or Adam Sincell (my dear nephew) and pretty Leah Warnick singing "16 Going On 17"? And that's just a sample of the show. All this romantic fun is for a great cause — to keep the Garrett Choral Society up and running well, and to be able to offer a variety of music and a number of different concerts throughout the year. And to also provide something new and .... sweet for you Valentines out there. Tickets are available from any of us singers, or at Gregg's Pharmacy in Oakland. You may also just show up that day and buy them at the door, and then whisk your Valentine in for an afternoon of love notes. (Love notes. Get it? Whoa, doggy, I'm on roll .... Inspired by Cupid, I guess.)

See you Sunday!

IN SEARCH OF WORDS

Light shapes life. From the 21st of December the days lengthen in the northern hemisphere. The increase of light is so incremental that for the balance of December and into January the days continue to seem dark. Suddenly around the first of February the burden of night lightens.

Perhaps it is not the light only that one notices but also a certain freshness in the air. We say, "fresh air," not "fresh light," but it is a kind of freshness of light which lifts spirits. Words falter precisely at the point where the spirit mounts. The annual surprise of fresh light is said better by the holy day which closes Christmas, the lovely feast of Candlemas.

The Biblical warrant for this observance is given by St. Luke in chapter two, verses 22-38. The Blessed Virgin and Joseph presented Jesus to the Lord at the Temple, and there offered on his behalf two turtledoves, the offering of the poor. The day chosen for that presentation was the fortieth from his birth, the day appointed in the Jewish Law for the ritual purification of women after childbirth.

By latitude Paris is hundreds of miles north of my home on the Maryland side of the Mason-Dixon Line. Because the dark days of early winter were all the darker here, the light of Candlemas was all the more welcome.

I went to the Church of St. Sulpice, a magnificent seventeenth century Palladian pile, for the mid-day mass. Instead of turtle doves there were baskets of candles from each worshipper took at least one. Perhaps two was the best number in remembrance of the absent turtledoves.

The priest led us in an opening litany which we celebrated Jesus as the light of world. Throughout the service we returned to this theme or perhaps it returned to us. Again the words spoke less clearly than the lit candles.

That was just eight days ago, but now an entire season of the Church in the past. Yesterday was Ash Wednesday, opening upon the season of "Lent," which is a short form of "lengthen," for the lengthening of days.

As early as Ash Wednesday falls this year, it can occur as early as Feb. 4, leaving but one entire day between Candlemas and the beginning of Lent. This year one week separated the fire atop candles and the ashen remains of a fire marked upon our foreheads. Candlelight reminds us of the life we can live; ashes remind us of the death we must die.

Candlemas and Ash Wednesday spoke antiphonally: "light," "ashes," "life," "death." The resolving chord is the everlasting lengthening of days in Jesus Christ.

Giambattista Vico, an eighteenth century Italian philosopher, tells us that there was once the language of the gods of which we now have only vestiges. There followed the language of the heroes as we find it in Homer's Iliad and Odyssey. In the descent of language to earth we have finally the language of men, mere prose.

In this vision of language we can situate Shakespeare on the border between heroes and men with occasional glimpses of the divine.

I manage to live most days without feeling the limitation of mortal language: commuting, shopping, classes, the mundane intercourse of life. In fact, when standing in line seems to take forever or some special rudeness hits me, I can sometimes think of more words than are really appropriate to use.

There are, however, consistent occasions when our linguistic poverty is evident and even palpable. At those times we need some sign beyond words and usually simpler than words: lighting of candle, smearing ashes on a forehead.

Even Shakespeare-who had three times the vocabulary of the average college-educated American, who used words more powerfully than any other poet since Homer-ran out of words. The Winter's Tale is one of his most philosophical plays. At the same time, it is one of his least successful works as a piece of theatre. Even Shakespeare reached a point where his life experiences and his ideas outstripped his vocabulary.

There is a reality of life which exceeds language. Sometimes that reality is as simple and repeated as the annual lengthening of days; sometimes it is a once-for-all-time occurrence like God becoming a human being.

I have been consistently pleased and surprised at how full the churches are here in Paris. Part of the surprise arises from how mediocre the services are aesthetically. Often the liturgy is said or sung poorly. The music itself is typically pathetic. The sermons run the fifty-seven varieties of "love one another" with all the spice of overcooked white rice.

The people come not to see the theatre and mystery for which the Catholic mass was once justly famous, but for that sign which not only points to a reality but which is the reality of Christ himself.

Christmas is fully over. Lent has begun. The days lengthen. Christ is among us.

Such words stumble, but they are the words we have.

Long-Term Fix For Med. Malpractice Crisis Still An Issue For Lawmakers

by Ryan Basen
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Despite passing a malpractice reform bill during a recent special legislative session, many Maryland lawmakers agree with lobbyists and doctors' advocates that the new law will not adequately solve the state's medical liability crisis in the long run.

Seeking to tweak the existing law, lawmakers have thus introduced several bills since the regular session started Jan. 12 and plan to introduce more before the Feb. 11 deadline.

"I think there's an appetite in the Legislature to do something," said Jay Schwartz, a lobbyist for the Maryland Medical Society. "There's a consensus," Schwartz added, that the new malpractice law "was a start and only a start."

Yet many leading lawmakers do not believe they will be able to pass legislation to solve the crisis during this session. Some say it may even take years.

Two chief factors are delaying a long-term solution: differing opinions and nastier-than-usual partisan politics.

Gov. Robert Ehrlich vetoed the malpractice reform bill after the special session, which he called. The General Assembly then overrode his veto to pass the bill, which caps malpractice awards and limits premium increases at 5 percent this year.

Many legislators — while championing the bill's role as a short-term fix — agreed with Ehrlich that it would have to be tweaked to be effective in the long run.

There are several issues that remain unsolved, including: how experts are chosen for testimony; how emergency care providers should be treated; what doctors' comments are on the legal record; and how damage awards should be determined, limited, and doled out.

Ehrlich has proposed reducing caps on pain-and-suffering damage claims (from $650,000 to $500,000), issuing damage pay-outs in installments (as opposed to one lump sum), taking taxes into account for lost wage claims, and requiring neutral experts in most court cases.

Don Hogan, Ehrlich's deputy legislative officer, said he thinks Ehrlich's plan would provide a long-term solution to the crisis, but fears political opposition from the General Assembly may block it.

"This is his effort to deal with a long-term solution," Hogan said. "Now it's a question of whether they want to address the long-term problems as well."

House Majority Leader Kumar Barve, D-Montgomery, said he does. Barve plans to sponsor three bills, to limit the percentage of contingency fees lawyers can receive in malpractice cases, require expert witnesses to be regulated by the Maryland Board of Physicians, and tighten economic damage calculation and distribution.

Barve noted that he has the support of MedChi and bipartisan support for his bills. They will be co-sponsored by Del. A. Wade Kach, R-Baltimore County, a member of the House Health and Government Committee. Barve said these bills combined with the current law would solve the malpractice crisis in the long run.

"More needs to be done," Barve said, "but I wouldn't say a lot more. We already accomplished significant progress."

Del. Robert Zirkin, D-Baltimore County, has also proposed malpractice solutions, including a bill that would create an expert panel to review cases before they go to court.

Barve expects the committees that review the bills to combine elements of many of them. But the new bills may then face stern opposition from the Senate — which could be the greatest obstacle to long-term malpractice reform.

Senate leaders maintain that no changes are needed this session. They prefer to monitor the effects of the new malpractice law before taking further action.

"It's highly doubtful that we're going to move forward at this time," said Senate President Thomas V. Mike Miller Jr., D-Calvert. "Right now we are not finished fully enacting the laws that we passed during the special session."

Sen. Paula Hollinger, chairwoman of the Senate Education, Health, and Environmental Affairs Committee, said the law is far from perfect but also wants to give it time to see how it works. Only minor technicalities in the law need to be cleaned up this year, she said.

House Speaker Michael E. Busch, D-Anne Arundel, disagreed with Senate leaders' resistance to immediate new legislation. "I don't know why they say that," Busch said. But Busch also defended the new law because he thinks it will aid health care consumers.

"It was a pretty comprehensive bill to begin with," he said. "This isn't just about doctors and lawyers; this is about access to health care."

Barve and Kach understand access to health care. They co-sponsored a controversial bill in 1995, the Patient Access Act, which became the first state law nationally to regulate HMOs.

Passing new malpractice legislation, Barve said, is no more severe a task than HMO reform.

"Everyone said we'd never pass it and we did," Barve said. "I expect this to be a multi-year process as well . . . . It takes a lot of work, a lot of patience, and it takes the willingness to stick it out over several years. And we've got that."

GARRETT COUNTY MEMORIAL HOSPITAL WAS WELL REPRESENTED at the recent annual Maryland Hospital Association Legislative Event. Don Battista, GCMH president and CEO, and Wayne Johnson, GCMH board of governors chairman, attended the event where the main topic of discussion was physician liability and malpractice insurance. The event also introduced the Maryland Community Hospital Group, a coalition of smaller community hospitals in Maryland that will work under the auspices of the Maryland Hospital Association. Bartlett Says Campaign Law Violates Free Speech; Tries Again To Block It

by I-Wei J. Chang
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON — Rep. Roscoe Bartlett, R-Frederick, said Wednesday that he will try again to repeal a prohibition on campaign advertising by certain groups, a provision that he said is unconstitutional.

The First Amendment Restoration Act would repeal a section of the Bipartisan Campaign Reform Act of 2002 that keeps groups such as labor unions and corporations from running broadcast ads that identify federal candidates in the days before primary and general elections.

"The founding fathers were most concerned with protecting political speech — speech that we are grossly violating here if we can't even mention a federal candidate's name 30 days before a primary and 60 days before a general election," Bartlett said. The "30-60" prohibition "is totally removing any possibility for our people to criticize the government," and violates First Amendment free-speech rights, said Bartlett, who tried unsuccessfully to reverse the advertising provision last year.

But leaders of government-reform organizations said the campaign law should be commended for undercutting the undue influence of special-interest groups by restricting their campaign contributions.

"It's not about free speech," said Fred Wertheimer, president of Democracy 21. "It's about money, what kind of money can be spent on campaigns to prevent the government from corruption."

Wertheimer, whose Washington-based nonprofit fights "big-money politics," said the campaign finance law and its provisions are important to prevent corruption and the appearance of corruption. Cecilia Martinez, executive director of the Reform Institute, credited the 2002 law with creating a more democratic political process in the last presidential election. The law "did a good job" of energizing small, individual donors and motivating political parties to reach out to new donors, said Martinez, whose organization advocates campaign finance and election reform.

The institute's advisory board is headed by Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., who was lead sponsor of the campaign reform legislation in the Senate with Sen. Russell Feingold, D-Wis. A House version of the bill was introduced by Reps. Christopher Shays, R-Conn., and Marty Meehan, D-Mass. The Supreme Court upheld most of the McCain-Feingold legislation in 2003, prompting Bartlett's first attempt to overturn the 30-60 ban. He announced his second try Wednesday, backed by representatives of the American Civil Liberties Union, Gun Owners of America and the National Rifle Association.

Larry Pratt, executive director of Gun Owners of America, said the disputed provision is unfairly applied to organizations such as his, while large media organizations are exempted.

"It's not an even playing field," Pratt said. While his ultimate goal is to completely overturn the 2002 law, Pratt said he will work with Bartlett and others to repeal the specific provision as a first step.

Bartlett's office said that 40 lawmakers had agreed to sign on to his bill as of Wednesday, more than had signed up in 2004 when his last bill was first introduced. He said it is vital that he try again to reverse the 30-60 ban.

"What bothers me about this, more than this totally unconstitutional infringement on freedom of political speech, is that we are willing to simply ignore the Constitution," Bartlett said.

All constitutional rights are at risk, he said. "Once you start down that road that you can rationalize ignoring the Constitution, where does it end?"

Ehrlich Pitches Slots Bill To Senate Budget And Taxation Committee

by Mike Torzalba
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Gov. Robert Ehrlich was in a familiar place Wednesday as he continued his third attempt to legalize slot machine gambling in Maryland.

"I do have a sense of deja vu, Mr. Chairman," Ehrlich said to Sen. Ulysses Currie, D-Prince George's, who presides over the Senate Budget and Taxation Committee.

The committee heard testimony from Ehrlich and numerous other supporters of the slots bill. It would place taxes and fees on slot machine operators and use the revenue to fund millions of dollars in improvements in public schools each year.

The bill is almost identical to Ehrlich's bill last year, which died in the House Ways and Means Committee, despite support from the Senate.

Starting this summer, a total 15,500 slots would be allowed for licensing in the state — 3,500 terminals each at Baltimore's Pimlico Race Course, Laurel Park and Rosecroft Raceway; and 1,000 at a planned track in Allegany County. A total 4,000 slot machines would be allowed at two non-track venues.

The bill creates a commission to determine those sites. The Republican governor had been in a Senate hearing on slots before, but this time, slots opponents sat this one out in protest.

"Our hope is that our absence will call attention to the obvious fact: The Senate is not considering the slots issue in a responsible and deliberative fashion and is failing the people of Maryland," said Aaron Meisner, coordinating chairman of Stop Slots Maryland.

He was joined by a handful of other slots opponents, including state delegates Peter Franchot, D-Montgomery, and Curt Anderson, D-Baltimore City.

"It's clear that the Senate has been hijacked and turned into a rubber stamp to legalize slots," Franchot said. With almost no opposition present, the committee heard a lengthy parade of racing industry envoys (who said slots would reju-

ANTIQUES DISPLAYED AT VISITORS CENTER – Sandie Cassidy of Mumbles & Squeaks Antiques and General Story (formerly the Emporium) in downtown Oakland shows some vintage skis she has on display at the Visitors Center in McHenry. Old snowshoes, a child's desk, and a china closet full of antiques also decorate a corner of the center this month. As a benefit to members of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, display space is offered as a showcase for their products. This gives an opportunity to chamber members to display their wares for one month and makes the Visitors Center more attractive to visitors, said coordinator Laura Reilly. Buggie Bear will provide next month's display. Member displays during the past year included those of High Mountain Sports, Grand Central Station, Rudy's, Country Treasures, Lou DiCarlo's Stained Glass, MountainMade, Bill's Marine Service, Advantage Florist and Cakes, Spruce Forest, and Adventure Sports Center International. Anyone interested in providing a display in the future may call 301-387-4386 or e-mail laura@garrettchamber.com.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

Kevin Pittsnogle, who is a close relative of Pastor Keith, played a big part in the surprise men's basketball victory of West Virginia over the University of Pittsburgh game on Saturday night. Unfortunately, Claire couldn't get any tickets for the big game for herself and her little sister Caitlin, who tasted campus life over the weekend. Even though they couldn't get into the game they still had a great time together. They are close as any two sisters could be. I look forward to having Claire home for next weekend. How lucky my parents were that when I was a college student it was a rare weekend that I did not come home. I doubt that they missed me as much as I miss my Claire because, after all, Dad and Mom had each other and a couple kids home with them full time.

LCRP To Hold Open Meeting

The Local Citizen Review Panel (LCRP) will hold an open meeting on Thursday, Feb. 24, from 9 to 10:30 a.m. at the Department of Social Services, 12578 Garrett Highway.

The LCRPs in Maryland provide oversight for the child protection system in Maryland by advising the State Citizens' Review Board for Children and the State Council on Child Abuse and Neglect on how effectively state and local agencies are fulfilling their responsibilities related to child protection. This is accomplished by ongoing local system reviews and individual case reviews.

LCRP members include individuals with interest and expertise in the prevention and treatment of child abuse and neglect. All LCRP members have been appointed by the Garrett County commissioners.

All interested persons are invited to attend this meeting.

As our small snow cover starts to shrink it just looks dirty and dingy. Not in any way like a Christmas card that we recently looked at. This time when the day temperature rises above the freezing mark and then drops below freezing at night, we just get lots of ice on the ground. I hate ice much more than a little snow.

A lifelong friend of Lucille Ritter called me to inquire in which hospital Lucy was a patient. The answer is Cumberland Memorial. Speaking from my personal experience it is truly an excellent hospital with the most caring nursing staff imaginable, not to mention some world-class doctors and surgeons. If they would not have been, I would not be around to write this. Strange as it is to say, I was born there and then 41 years later they gave me a second chance at living, even though my life is barely qualified as living, according to my standards, at least.

If a doctor could hand me a miracle to cure and fix all the damages done due to my brain aneurysm and I would once again be well physically, I would learn to live again because the physical disability is the most noticeable. Much worse is that I am paralyzed with fear and hurt. If I can't trust my own body and brain, what can I depend on? The closest person told me, "No one could love me now," and I didn't believe it. If I am perfect physically, mentally, and emotionally, am I not good enough for anyone or anything except hiding away from other people? I was not really afraid of anything, but now I am very afraid of living, as everything I do is not good enough.

However, I must be as strong as possible for my girls' sake as they need a strong mother. It is so important that they have someone to have solutions to most of their problems. They were too young to really remember me as I wish to be remembered. I want them to be proud of me as much as I am proud of them. If anything would make the hell I have gone through the last 11 years worth it is if it gave them more character, more courage, patience, and able to love better. Even if it seems it is just too hard to keep on living, maybe a better day is around the corner.

I was right about Barry's unusual absence during snow season, as he spent his birthday on February 5 on a mountain near his home in Thurmont as well as with a small gathering of friends to watch our Maryland Terrapins suffer another loss.

I still do not have any news from any fellow citizens of Bittinger. I don't think we had any Super Bowl parties this year, without our Steelers involved.

Sheila Southerly is the latest victim of the bug that is going around. Whether it is the flu or just a cold, no one seems to know, but it hit several people, including those who had gotten a flu shot. Of course, flu comes in several varieties, and the one you get a shot for may not be the one finding a way into your system.

I had to call Claire (thank goodness for cell phones) to find out whether she will come home for sure this weekend. When she told me yes, I started to cry just because that little thing means everything to me and just the sound of her voice brought a tidal wave of emotion.

The only uncritical love I still have these days is Boo. It breaks her heart when I drive away, and her display of pure joy when I drive in my driveway jumping up and down and dancing is so welcome. Although it is not as pure a joy as when she sees her god, Claire.

Beside that of my babies and now little girls, the most important pure love I ever felt was from Little Joe. I can still see him standing by the gate waiting for me. I miss him so much. If he only would still be alive it would make my life so much better. But he gave me 31 years of everything that was wonderful. The years we had together were the best days of my life. He was so much better than any male beings I ever loved and lost, and his passing left a much bigger hole than any of them.

Pastor Pat and Keith Pittsnogle returned home after having a ball in Florida last week. They had perfect plane flights, perfect weather, and most importantly, a lovely, loving wedding. They are so lucky to have found a true soul mate.

This week's Lenten healing service will be held Wednesday night at St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Accident. Next Wednesday night, the Joint Service will be held at Emmanuel Lutheran in Bittinger at 7:30.

My girls were so excited when they came home from the Northern-Ft. Hill game at Northern. They were so proud of their cousin Matt Bass, as he made a three-point play to send the game into overtime. Then Northern went on to win the game, 69-67, with Blake Walker making the winning shot in OT play. What a game, and we are so proud of the Huskies! However, they barely made news in the Cumberland paper. I am sure if it would have gone the other way, it would have made big headlines.

Adorable Adoptables

LOOKING FOR NEW HOMES – Shilo, left, is a 1-year-old Pomeranian mix. He is an owner give-up and would like a home without other dogs. Also available for adoption from the Garrett County Animal Shelter is a male, black Lab, who was picked up as a stray. He is described as friendly and sat patiently while his picture was being taken. "Straw is still available at the shelter for in your dog houses," said a Humane Society spokesperson. "Now that the cold weather is returning, please make sure your outside pets have adequate shelter and warmth from the cold weather. Also, stray dogs are still being picked up that do not have a license or identification. If you care about your pet, then make sure it is spayed/neutered, vaccinated, fed, and watered, and has a collar with identification tags!" For more information about adopting these or any other pets, persons may call the shelter at 301-334-3553.

Animal Shelter Report

The Garrett County Office of Emergency Management reported that the following animals were recently picked up as strays and are now housed at the Garrett County Animal Shelter:

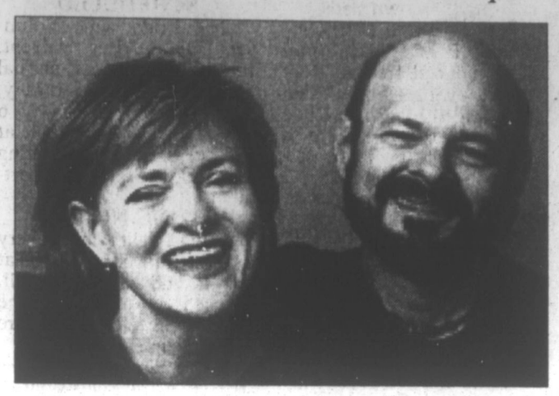
Conference To Host Peculiar People



Living for Christ Conferences has announced that a husband/wife drama team, Peculiar People, will perform at the 19th annual getaway conference, Mountaintop 2005, which will be held March 4-6 at Oglebay's Wilson Lodge in Wheeling, W.Va.

After 10 years of professional theater in Southern California, Charlie and Ruth Jones landed in Nashville, where they manage "Peculiar People," known as one of the most unique drama troupes in the country. Over the past 15 years, they have traveled the nation "providing whimsical entertainment intertwined with deep, spiritual insight," according to a spokesperson for the duo. They not only act, but also write their own sketches.

"For years we had an identity crisis of sorts," says Charlie Jones. "Are we a theater company that does ministry or are we a ministry that does theater to communicate God's delightful grace? God has called us to the latter. The objective of Peculiar People is quite simple — to experience the love of Christ deeply in our own lives, and then communicate the love songs we have heard to others through the dramatic arts. We sometimes call it 'Theatrical Theology.'"

"Peculiar People's drama is wonderful and very poignant," said Oakland native Anne Robinson, now a Wheeling resident and co-founder of the nonprofit, non-denominational sponsor. "Attendees from past Mountaintops found themselves laughing hilariously one minute and moved to tears the next. We're thrilled that they're returning for Mountaintop 2005."

The Joneses will be joining featured speaker Steve Brown for this weekend event. Brown is a radio broadcaster, seminary professor, and author, who previously served as a pastor for over 25 years. Also featured in the conference, titled Born Free, will be recording artist Buddy Greene.

Registration brochures and information are available through Living for Christ Conferences, 304-455-5322; website: www.mountaintopconference.org.

Gaither To Attend Leadership, Law Forum In Capital

April Gaither of Eglon, W.Va., was recently selected to participate in the National Youth Leadership Forum on Law (NYFL/Law) from Feb. 15 to 20 in Washington, D.C. Having demonstrated academic achievement and an interest in the legal profession, Gaither, a 16-year-old sophomore at Tucker County High School, will join approximately 250 high school juniors and seniors from across the United States at the Forum on Law.

"Through intensive simulations, Gaither will have the opportunity to exercise the skills used by Supreme Court justices who rule on key issues facing our country today, in addition to serving as the esteemed legal team that argue on behalf of and against those issues," said Donna Snyder, executive director of NYLF. "Because our legal system plays a vital role in our daily lives, the National Youth Leadership Forum on Law offers students the opportunity to learn directly from partners at law firms, criminal defense attorneys and prosecutors, as well as professors and other experts of the legal profession. This is where the future for many students begins to take shape."

The curriculum for NYLF/Law is based on actual events, which allows its participants to learn from the examples set by attorneys of law and court officials that range from municipal court to the U.S. Supreme Court. The process encourages participants to develop perspective and resolve. Throughout the forum, students will examine how court cases often change the legal system.

Gaither, an honor roll student and daughter of Martin and Lisa Gaither of Eglon, will graduate in June 2007. She is involved in many curricular and extracurricular activities at her school including Stduensts Against Drunk Driving, FCCLA, Drama, Young Christians, and the Varsity Club. She attends the Maple Spring Lutheran Church in Eglon.

In 2004 Gaither was inducted into the Who's Who of America's High School Students, received the girls' track participation award for the West Virginia state tourney in Charleston, W.Va., and was awarded the grand prize in the senior division at the Eastern Regional Science Fair hosted by Daivs & Elkins College.

by Jo Donaldson, Chamber of Commerce

Carolyn Harriger of Grantsville was the winner of the second annual Garrett County Photo Contest. Her photo of Savage River State Forest will be featured in the chamber's 2005 Vacation Guide.

It was very peaceful there; everything looked so serene, she said of the prize-winning shot of clear water rushing past the tall green trees. It almost had a spiritual feel, she said.

An active volunteer with Friends of New Germany State Park and former president of the organization, Harriger loves the out doors. Most of her good shots are scenic shots. She keeps a camera with her when she is out and about.

"It means a lot to me to be in the forests or by the river, and I take lots of pictures," she said. "I took that one (the winner) with a little point-and-shoot camera."

This was the first time Harriger submitted a photo for the contest. Now she has a digital camera and is excited to do more photography.

Lori Malcolm of Swanton took second with her Yough River and third with her Drane House. Five of her photos were in the top 10 spots.

She took the photo of the Yough River in winter after skiing.

"It was cold and crisp, and everything was hanging on the trees," she said. "It was the perfect time."

"The Drane House is one of my favorites. I'm tickled about that," she said. "I learned the history of the house and the gentleman who lived there."

"I do a lot of story photography. I take a picture of a landmark and research the history. I have developed a whole line of pictures that have the story with them," Malcolm added. "It is fun and I've learned a lot about Garrett County that I did not know."

Others judged in the top 10 were photos by Bob Browning, McHenry; Gary Joseff, Reston, Va.; Brenda LeMay, Grantsville; and Linda Gilbert, Oakland.

The contest will be continued next year. Shutterbugs are asked to submit their favorite photos of Garrett County to Deb Clatterbuck at the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce by Oct. 15, 2005.

Comedy Show To Be Given At Oak Park Church

A team of actors from the Brake Church of the Brethren in Petersburg, W.Va., will perform Hidden Treasures, a comedy with a spiritual meaning, at the Oak Park Church of the Brethren. The performance will be held on Sunday, Feb. 13, at 7 p.m.

There will be no admission fee, although a free-will offering will be collected to benefit a District Mission Team to Romania in June. The mission team will share drama, music, and Bible stories with children in an orphanage. They will also provide medical assistance at a clinic and do some building projects.

The public is invited to attend the program. The church is located across the street from Southern High School.

Popular Local Bands Schedule Concert At SHS

During the last six months, a number of local bands have been playing to sold-out crowds at the Loch Lynn Community Center, located in the old Loch Lynn Elementary School. The bands include Shades of Black, On Winter's Misery, Dead Bury Dead, the Goodfellows, AfterBirth, and the Hourlies.

All of these bands, except Dead Bury Dead, are scheduled to perform at Southern High School on Friday, Feb. 18. Doors will open at 6:30 p.m., and the concert should conclude by 10 p.m. Admission will be $4 at the door.

"These bands, composed primarily of high school age musicians, have been performing a variety of music not usually heard or appreciated in these mountains," said one musician's father.

"Their style of metal, grunge, punk, and alternative music appears to be hitting all the right notes with an increasing number of local fans."

Although the current line- up in this band only started rehearsing together in July of 2004, Zach and Andrew have been playing together for about two years. Almost all of the members have a background in music or theatre, with the exception of the youngest member, Patrick. The guitarist is an eighth grader at Southern Middle School and only started playing a few years ago.

Another local band that has performed numerous times in Loch Lynn is On Winter's Misery. The band members are Steve Schrock, Brendon Stevens, Mike Murphy, Nick Gwiazdowski, and Clinton Kitzmiller.

Other local bands include Dead Bury Dead from the Bloomington area. This Christian rock band has traveled throughout the area performing and is a favorite at the Loch Lynn concerts.

Two other new bands performed recently at the center. The Goodfellows are Jeff Gank, Chris Tepper, and Ryan Crosco. AfterBirth band members are E.J. Martinez, Chaz French, and Dusty Dillsworth.

"At first glance, the conservative onlooker would be shocked at the appearance of these concert attendees," said the father. "Black clothes, piercings, a few tattoos, spiked and colored hair, and even some highly questionable makeup are readily apparent."

But he noted that these were simply examples of personal expression and did not define the person underneath.

"As anyone who has attended one of these concerts will attest, the kids are well behaved and polite," the father said. "Their music talks about their political views, their belief systems, and the ongoing turmoil of youth. They seem to revel in the fact that they have a place to play, listen, and dance to their music."

He stressed that their music did not have any "demonic undertones glorifying suicide or the darker side of society. He added that many parents chaperone the concerts and enjoy helping their kids have a place where they can "be

The Ha-Ha* by Dave King

Someone told me the other day that the average man uses 2,000 words in a normal day, while the average woman uses 7,000 words in her daily conversations. It makes you wonder: who figures this stuff out?

What would you do if you could not read, write, or speak? How would you ask for directions, follow a recipe, or use the internet? How would you tell someone that they mean the world to you? In The Ha-Ha, the new novel by Dave King (c.2005, Little, Brown and Company), Howard Kapostash manages just fine – until his life is turned upside down.

Sixteen days, that's all. Howard was in Vietnam 16 lousy days when he was injured by a bomb that he barely remembers. He was in a coma for awhile, and he spent months in rehabilitation. When he got out, his leg dragged, but that got better. His head, though, was another story. The bomb left him with a crease in his noggin and a big pink scar that stands out like a neon sign. Worst of all, something happened, and Howard can't make his brain work with his lips or his eyes. Howard is unable to speak anymore, and written words no longer make sense.

Back when he was in high school, Howard was in love with Sylvia. She was sweet and innocent then, but while Howard was a soldier, Sylvia discovered drugs and booze. When he came home, things were never the same between them. They're still friends, though, and every now and then, Sylvia leans on Howard; like now, when she's heading for rehab once again, and she asks him to take care of her 9-year-old son Ryan for awhile.

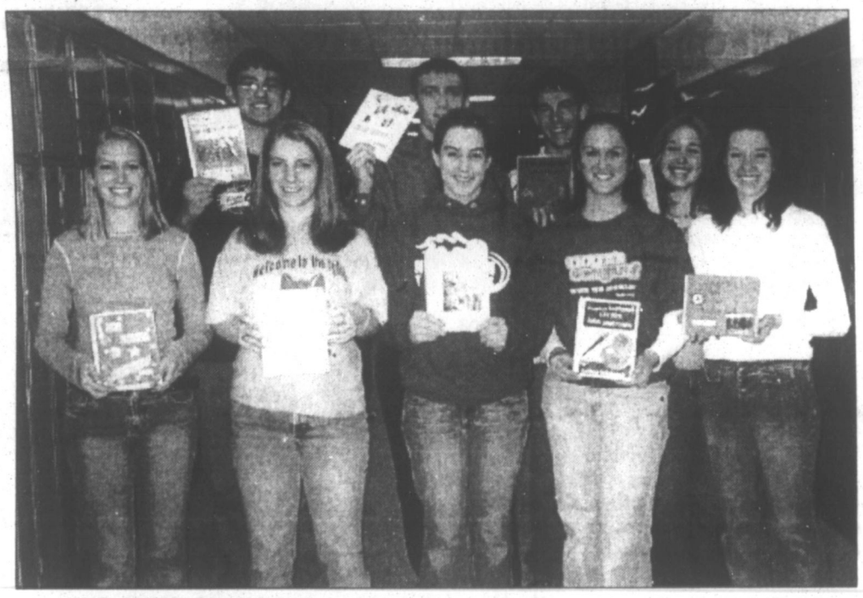
What does a childless middle-aged man without a voice know about taking care of a kid with an attitude? Not much, Howard decides, but he reluctantly brings Ryan home anyway, to the house he shares with Laurel, who runs a business out of the kitchen, and two guys Howard derisively thinks of as Nit and Nat.

Nobody in the house expected to be sharing living quarters with a kid. Nobody thought it was a good idea to have him around.

Nobody predicted they'd make their own family and learn to love a boy who needed them as much as they needed him.

Usually, when I read a book I like, I have no trouble racing through it, but The Ha-Ha was different, and I wasn't sure why. Then I realized that I dragged my feet because I didn't want it to end. Though Howard is mute, the story is told from his point of view, and he's funny and sarcastic, and I was intrigued by his intelligence mixed with his inability to show it. The other thing I liked is that author Dave King gives this book a Hollywood ending, but it's not the ending you think it's going to be.

Put this book on your "To Read" list. The Ha-Ha is one you won't be able to stop talking about.



NHS AUTHORS' BOOKS FEATURED AT CONFERENCE – More than 100 authors from Northern High School had their books featured during a presentation at the West Virginia Reading Conference in December by their teacher, Shawn Nicklin. The books were part of a children's book project for Nicklin's classes last year. The books will be donated in the spring to the four northern Garrett County elementary schools. Many of these students will be visiting elementary schools across the county in the spring to help younger students make books. More than 50 children's books are currently on display at the McHenry Book Store, located in Market Square. Pictured above are nine authors with their books. In the front, from left to right, are Keena Yommer ("History of Astrology"), Ashley Rounds ("Anne Frank"), Jessica Fratz ("Castles of Austria and Germany"), Esther Schmuck ("European Artists from 1400 to 1800"), and Heather Deem ("The Holocaust"). In the back are Adam Rounds ("Revolutionary War"), Blake Walker ("Ancient Civilizations"), Erik Wood ("Historic Battles"), and Holly Wampler ("Egyptian Pharaohs").

OBSERVING MARYLAND ARTS DAY – Two local arts advocates recently met with hundreds of others from around the state to observe Maryland Arts Day in Annapolis. Representing Garrett County were Beth Johnson, executive director of Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, and Steve Schlosnagle, executive director of the Garrett County Arts Council. Aris Melissaraos, secretary of the Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development, spoke of the vital contribution of the arts to the state's economic development agenda before introducing Gov. Robert Ehrlich, who reiterated his administration's firm commitment to public funding for the arts. Johnson and Schlosnagle also met with Delegate George Edwards and Senator John Hafer to discuss the state of the arts in western Maryland, and to urge their support for the governor's budget allocation for Maryland arts. Pictured above, from the left, are Johnson, Schlosnagle, Marilyn Orsinger, executive director of the Frederick Arts Council; Melissaraos, and Andy Vick, executive director of the Allegany Arts Council.

GLAF Organizes Trip To National Gallery In D.C.

Garrett Lakes Arts Festival (GLAF) will host a trip to the National Gallery Of Art in Washington, D.C., on April 2 for residents of Garrett County. This is a new addition to the many programs offered by GLAF's Arts Education Committee. Young Artists Workshop instructors Mark and Laura Stutzman have organized the trip in an effort to expand their education of the visual arts in the county. While at the gallery, they will be on hand to help participants get the most out of their trip.

The National Gallery of Art houses one of the finest collections in the world, noted the Stutzmans, illustrating major achievements in painting, sculpture, decorative arts, and works on paper from the Middle Ages to the present. Several special exhibitions will be on display for the April visit. Among them will be that of Gilbert Stuart (1755-1828), artist of the famed George Washington painting. This exhibit will include 90 other paintings of famous Americans from his era. Also, Paul Cezanne (1839-1906), a key figure in the impressionist and post impressionist movement, will be represented with 100 paintings.

The gallery's permanent collection offers works so broad that there is something for everyone to enjoy, said Mark. Additionally, early April is a prime time for the cherry blossoms' blooming season in the D.C. area, as can be viewed on the web site www.nationalcherryblossomfestival.org.

For more details or to make a reservation, persons may contact GLAF by calling 301-387-3082. Tickets are $20 per person, and museum entrance is free. Meals not included. Reservations are required by March 1 to ensure a seat.

Rams Go 3-0; Defeat Tucker, Williamsport, And Petersburg

It was an excellent week on the basketball court for the Southern High School boys' varsity and Coach Tom Bosley, as the Rams topped visiting Tucker County last Friday, 65-55, handed Williamsport a 60-47 defeat on Saturday in a make-up contest, also in Oakland, and edged highly talented Petersburg last night, 54-52, on the Vikings' floor.

The 3-0 streak upped the Rams' overall record to 14-4. They are currently 6-2 in the Western Maryland Interscholastic League standings.

A 24-point performance by senior point guard Cory Bosley, coupled with 19 successful shots from the foul line, led the Rams to their 10-point win over Tucker County on Friday, as the Mountain Lions finished with a 26-22 advantage in field goals.

Seventeen of Bosley's points he recorded in the first half of action, helping the Rams to build a 15-10 lead by the end of the first quarter and a 35-31 edge by halftime.

The Rams held the Lions at arm's length through the second half, holding a 49-44 lead at the end of the third stanza, and hit on 12 of 20 free-throw opportunities in the fourth quarter alone to secure the win.

It was not a particularly good night at the charity stripe for the Rams in terms of percentages, as they converted 19 of 33 shots, considerably below their team average. However, the Mountain Lions had only three shots from the line for the game, and made good on one.

Bosley also recorded six rebounds and six assists to go with his game-high 24 points, while Corey Tressler provided 14 points and seven rebounds, and Brad Reese contributed 10 points.

Jeremy Maxwell led Tucker County in scoring with 16 points, Cory Gsell finished with 11, and Daniel Ramsey chipped in with 10.

The Southern junior varsity coasted to a 48-21 victory in the preliminary contest, giving the Rams their 14th win in 15 starts. Ryan DeWitt and Erik Cussins paced Southern with 16 and 11 points, respectively. Leading the Tucker jayvees was Shawn Poling with 10 points.

Against Williamsport on Saturday, the varsity Rams built a 12-3 advantage over the Wildcats by the end of the first quarter, and led 32-12 at intermission. The visitors rallied to out-score the Rams in the third stanza, 13-5, but Southern went into the final period with a 37-25 lead.

Bosley again paced Southern in scoring, finishing with 12 in the first half and 18 for the game. Evan Lantz reached double figures with 12 points, and Tressler finished with 10 points and six rebounds.

Top scoring honors went to Williamsport's David Warrenfeltz, who netted 20 points, with 14 of those being recorded in the fourth quarter. He had three three-pointers.

The SHS junior varsity upped its record to 15-1 with a 49-40 win in the first game. Ryan DeWitt finished with a game-high 20 points for Southern, while Ted Dyson led the jayvee Wildcats with 14 points.

Tuesday night at Petersburg, it was a jumper at the buzzer by Cory Bosley that gave the Rams the big two-point victory over Petersburg, a team that came into the contest with a 13-3 record.

The Rams trailed throughout the first half, down 14-7 and 31-24 at the ends of the first two periods, but out-scored their hosts in the third stanza by a 17-7 margin to take a 41-38 lead into the final eight minutes.

The score remained tight throughout the final quarter, and was knotted at 52-52 when Bosley hit his game winner.

Corey Tressler hit three three-point buckets and led the Rams in scoring with 21 points, while Bosley was right behind with 20.

Pacing the Vikings offensively was Ben Whetsell with 13 points, while Caleb Rohrbaugh also reached double figures with 10 points.

The Rams won the game at the foul line, from which they converted seven of 10 shots, while the Vikings had but three opportunities and made good on one. Petersburg finished with a 23-22 edge in field goals.

The Southern junior varsity tasted defeat for only the second time this season, falling to the Viking jayvees in the preliminary game, 46-36

Ryan DeWitt led Southern in scoring with a game-high 16 points. A balanced attack by the Vikings was led by Lucas Geary with 12 points, and Jon Webster, Kyle Porter, and Joey Bensenhaver with 10 apiece.

The Rams will face a major test this Friday when they travel to Cumberland to face top-ranked Allegany (17-1) in a key WMIL game.

SHS Girls Fall To Hedgesville, Top Westmar, #1 Petersburg

After dropping a 49-39 decision to Hedgesville on Saturday, the Southern High School girls' varsity bounced back to record a 56-31 Western Maryland Interscholastic League defeat of visiting Westmar on Monday, and then pulled off a stunning, 45-43 upset of Petersburg last night at home. The Vikings were ranked #1 in West Virginia coming into last night's contest.

The Rams played well early against highly touted Hedgesville on Saturday, as the score was knotted at 12-12 at the end of the first quarter.

However, the home team's offense, behind a strong performance by Miranda Reed, grabbed the lead in the second period and held it the rest of the way. The Rams were down by seven, 26-19, at intermission and trailed 34-26 by the end of the third quarter.

Reed finished with a game-high 23 points, while her teammates Jenny Senafrock and Samantha Guell each netted 10 points.

Leading the Rams were Kendra McLaughlin and Jasmine Scheffel with 11 and 10 points, respectively.

Southern's Caitlyn Brown, who was limited to five points by Hedgesville, took charge in the Rams' game against Westmar on Monday and proceeded to score 25 points on a dozen field goals and a free throw. She also pulled down 10 rebounds for a double-double effort.

The Rams were never seriously threatened, as they led the Wildcats at the quarters by scores of 14-6, 26-9, and 42-25.

McLaughlin and Scheffel also reached double figures in scoring with 13 and 10 points, respectively. Scheffel also reached double figures in assists with 10.

The Wildcats, who dropped to 7-12 overall and 1-8 in the WMIL standings, were led in scoring by Jessica Marsh, who finished with 13 points, and Amanda Ziler, who contributed 11.

The win assured the Rams at least a share of the WMIL title. They will clinch the championship outright with a victory over Fort Hill next Wednesday.

The Southern junior varsity girls were also victorious in the preliminary game, topping the Westmar jayvees, 41-27, behind a 16-point effort by Brittany Boyce. Holly Williams led Westmar with 13 points.

A put-back shot by Caitlyn Brown last night with just 1.2 seconds left on the clock is what gave the Rams their big two-point victory over Petersburg, a team that arrived in Oakland riding a 16-game winning streak, a 17-1 record, and the #1 ranking, not only in the area, but also in the state of West Virginia.

The win also avenged an earlier 62-41 loss to the Vikings.

In the opening minutes of the game, it appeared that the Vikings were on their way to another runaway win, as they jumped out to a 10-2 lead. But the Southern defense stiffened, the offense began to click, and the Rams scored the final 12 points of the period to take a 14-10 lead.

The Rams stretched their advantage to eight points, 24-16, by halftime, but the Vikings pulled to within two, 34-32, by the end of the third quarter.

The lead began to seesaw in the final stanza, and Petersburg held a 43-41 advantage with 1:30 remaining in the game. A lay-up by Brown then tied the score, and there would be no more scoring until her winning shot off an offensive rebound at the 1.2-second mark.

Brown, a 6-3 junior center, not only hit the winning bucket, but also once again led the Rams in scoring and rebounding with 12 points and 12 boards.

Finishing with eight points apiece for the Rams were Sarah Stephens, Sarah Cosner, and Kendra McLaughlin, while Jasmine Scheffel dished out five assists.

Leading the Vikings with a game-high 16 points was Katie Lambert. Tara Feaster netted nine.

Huskies Cruise To Win Over Union, Top Sentinels In OT

A pair of victories, including a 69-67 Western Maryland Interscholastic League overtime win over Fort Hill on Tuesday, were recorded this past week by the Northern High School boys' varsity.

The Huskies also cruised to a 68-46 win over host Union on Friday. The two victories improved Northern's overall record to 10-6, and the win over the Sentinels evened the Huskies' WMIL mark at 4-4.

Recording 18-point efforts for the Huskies against Union were Brent Beachy and Blake Walker, while Kory Gibson and Eric Johnson just missed double figures with nine points each.

Northern took the lead early in the game and never looked back, as they were on top by four, 14-10, at the end of the first period, stretched their advantage to 27-18 by halftime, and led by a comfortable 17 points, 50-33, after three quarters were completed.

The Tigers were paced by Kenny Jones with 15 points and Isaac Riggleman with 12.

It was a successful shot by scoring leader Blake Walker with just eight seconds to play in overtime that gave the Huskies their victory over Fort Hill on Tuesday.

A key shot that sent the contest into the extra period was a three-point bucket by Northern's Matthew Bass in the closing seconds of the fourth quarter, which tied the score at 61-61.

The Huskies trailed much of the game, and were behind by six points with less than two minutes to play in regulation.

Walker, who led the Huskies in that late rally, poured in a game-high 23 points with 10 field goals and going 2-for-2 at the line.

Brent Beachy also provided a strong performance for Northern, netting 18 points, while Chris Speicher also reached double figures with 10 points.

The balanced Fort Hill offense was led in scoring by Robert Meckley, who paced five Sentinels in double figures. He scored 15 points, while Kevin Page finished with 12, and Jordan Fradiska, Antwon Kyler, and Ritchie Brandenburg each recorded 11.

Lakers Downed By Frederick, But Whip Top-Rated PG Owls

Disappointment followed by major joy could describe the week experienced by the Garrett College men's basketball team, as the Lakers dropped a disappointing 83-71, Maryland JUCO Conference loss to visiting Frederick on Saturday, but then recorded a convincing 74-57 victory at home last night over Prince George's CC, the #1 ranked team in the Maryland JUCO standings and #5 ranked team in the nation (NJCAA Division II).

The split left the Lakers' overall record at 16-7 and their JUCO mark at 10-5.

The win by Frederick, currently ranked among the top three in the conference, was the first ever in McHenry under Coach Dave Miller, who has been at the helm of the Cougars for 11 years.

Garrett led by as many as eight points in the first half, but trailed by four at intermission and went cold in the second half. Frederick went on a 16-4 run before the Lakers settled down and got back into the game. However, the visitors hit crucial free throws down the stretch, which gave them an eight-point lead with about three minutes to play.

Scoring honors for the Lakers went to Tristan Largent, who finished with 26 points. Jeff Washington netted 13 points and had seven rebounds.

Also reaching double figures was Adam Morgan with 11 points.

Frederick was led by Elyon Bush, who recorded a game-high 25 points. Damian Hubbard finished with 13 and Thomas Richards scored 12.

Largent and Brown led the Lakers in their big win last night over the Owls of Prince George's, as they recorded 16 and 15 points, respectively, while Washington chipped in the 10 points.

Garrett shot well from three-point range, hitting a total of eight. Brown had three of them and Largent hit two.

The Lakers had perhaps their finest defensive and rebounding nights of the season, holding the Owls well below their scoring average and dominating board play by a 38-18 margin.

The Owls had only 37 points on field goals, but they hit better than 95% of their free throws, converting 20 of 21 attempts.

Morgan and Washington were the leaders on the boards for the Lakers, grabbing 10 rebounds each. Jeter also blocked six shots and dished out six assists, while Largent provided five assists.

The Owls were led offensively by Tim Contee, who hit a game-high 21 points, Charles Smallwood with 15, and Jahmar Claxton with 10.

The Lakers will play a pair of home games this weekend, hosting Anne Arundel in a 7 p.m. matchup on Saturday and entertaining Germantown on Sunday at 4 p.m. They will conclude their regular season next Thursday at home against Potomac State College. That game will get under way at 7 p.m.

Local Athletes Named AMCC All-Academic

Two Garrett County student athletes who attend Frostburg State University were recently named to the Allegheny Mountain Collegiate Conference All-Academic team for their outstanding efforts in the classroom.

Charlena Reeves and Megan Burner, both of Oakland and both graduates of Southern High School, were named to the list for earning a grade point average of at least 3.2 for the 2004 fall semester. Reeves, a senior psychology major, plays both basketball and tennis for the Bobcats, while Burner, a junior elementary education major, is a member of the FSU women's softball team.

A total of 44 FSU student athletes earned a spot on the All-Academic team.

The Southern junior varsity fell in the preliminary game, 43-30, despite a 19-point performance by Brittany Boyce. Chelsea Turner led the Viking jayvees with 13 points.

The Rams will get another shot at Hedgesville this Saturday at home, with the jayvee contest tipping off at 2 p.m. and the varsity game at 3:30.

GC Women Embarrass Howard, Defeat Allegany, Fall To Dundalk

The women's basketball team of Garrett College played three Maryland JUCO Conference games this past week, embarrassing host Howard on Sunday, 90-17, topping visiting Allegany College on Monday, 65-60, and dropping their first conference game of the season last night to CCBC-Dundalk, 73-57, also in McHenry.

The 2-1 results left the Lakers with an overall record of 16-3 and a JUCO mark of 10-1.

It was simply no contest for the Lakers against hapless Howard on Sunday, as four players finished in double figures with 10 points apiece: Victoria Lawson, Denae Kennedy, Simari Pinno, and Eugenna Carson.

Kennedy also had 11 steals, Yolanda Anthony pulled down a game-high 12 rebounds, and Carson grabbed 10.

Garrett led by 42 points, 49-7, at halftime.

Kennedy led the Lakers in scoring in their win over Allegany on Monday, finishing with 14 points, while Jami Anderson netted 11.

Pacing the Trojans was Lacy Rohrbaugh, who reached double figures with 13 points.

The Lakers held a 27-19 advantage at halftime.

The loss dropped Allegany to 11-10 overall.

Last night at home against Dundalk the Lakers let a first-half lead (23-20) slip away in the second half, as the Lions erupted for 53 points after intermission while holding Garrett to 34.

Leading a balanced scoring effort for Dundalk was Gloria Brodie, who had a game-high total of 21 points. Michelle Dixon finished with 17, Melinda Bellamy recorded 14, and Kendra Baldwin netted 13.

A dozen of Bellamy's points were scored from three-point range.

Karly Hall led the Lakers with 13 points, while Jamie Anderson and Autumn Beavers each scored 12.

The Garrett women will play this Saturday at Chesapeake and will enter Maryland JUCO tournament play next week.

Ram Matmen Pin Northern And North Hagerstown; Finish 13-1

The wrestling team of Southern High School concluded its regular season by recording two more team victories, upping its record to 13-1, and earning a spot in the regional dual meet, which was held last night at South Carroll High School (see other story for results).

The two regular-season wins gained by the Rams this past week were over host Northern last Thursday, 54-18, and at home on Saturday against North Hagerstown, 46-25.

Senior Scott Wildesen, reigning Maryland 1A/2A state champion at 171 pounds, recorded his 100th and 101st personal victories in the two matches while maintaining his unblemished record so far this current season.

Rams earning pins against county rival Northern last Thursday, besides Wildesen, were: Daniel Carr in the 125-pound division, Josh Armstrong in the 130-pound clash, Andrew Pritts at 140 pounds, Nathan Sines at 145 pounds, Jeremy Gregory in the 160-pound class, Justin Fitzwater at 215 pounds, and Sean Sisler in the heavyweight division.

Winning on points for Southern were Lee Custer at 119 pounds and Justin Ratliff in the 135-pound division.

Casey Kamp, who is also a current state champion, garnered the only pin for the Huskies, as he won in the 112-pound division.

Decision winners for Northern were Randy Wilhelm at 103 pounds, Michael Wolf at 152 pounds, and Brock Glotfelty at 189 pounds.

The loss dropped the Huskies to 7-5.

In the Rams' win over North Hagerstown, Armstrong, Carr, Ratliff, Pritts, and Sines all won via pinfalls, while Jeremy Gregory, Wildesen, and Sisler were all decision victors.

Gaining pins for North Hagerstown were Brad Trail (112), Jon Breel (152), and Joey Lamp (189).

Southern has concluded its regular season and will not compete again until the Bi-County Tournament on Feb. 19.

The Northern Huskies are scheduled to compete again this Friday in a tri-match with Keyser and Preston in Kingwood, with competition slated to get under way at 6 p.m.

BREAKING THE CENTURY MARK in personal wrestling victories this past week was Southern High School's Scott Wildesen, who is the current Maryland state champion in the 171-pound division. Wildesen reached 100 wins in the Rams' match against Northern last Thursday evening, and then upped that mark to 103 with victories against North Hagerstown, Francis Scott Key, and South Carroll. The latter two were recorded in yesterday's regional dual tournament. Wildesen is pictured above dominating Dean Staley of North Hagerstown. Also recording two victories in the dual championship were Southern's Justin Ratliff and Daniel Carr. Ratliff (135) is pictured above right in control of North Hagerstown's Robert Sylva, and Carr (130) is pictured below left just as he pins Chris Bumbaugh of North Hagerstown. In the photo below right, Southern's Nathan Sines (145) works to pin Jarrett Logsdon of North Hagerstown. Pictured bottom left Ram Justin Fitzwater in the midst of defeating Jordan Granville in the 215-pound bout. At bottom right is Southern's Jeremy Gregory en route to a decision win over North Hagerstown in the 160-pound division. The team victory over North Hagerstown was the 13th in 14 outings for the Rams, whose regular season is concluded. Photos by John McEwen.

Ram Grapplers Finish Second To South Carroll In Reg. Duals

The wrestling team of Southern High School was one of four squads in the West Region that qualified for the annual Regional Dual Championships, held yesterday at South Carroll High School.

The Rams, seeded second in the event with a 13-1 regular-season record, edged third-seeded Francis Scott Key, 37-34, in the semifinal round, and then fell to top-seeded South Carroll, 39-25, in the finals.

South Carroll is undefeated (13-0), while Francis Scott Key and fourth-seeded Beall both came into the tournament with 12-2 marks.

Rams earning pins in the team win over Francis Scott Key were Nick Tressler in the 112-pound division, Daniel Carr in the 130-pound bout, Justin Ratliff at 135 pounds, Jeffrey Gregory at 152 pounds, and undefeated Scott Wildesen in the 171-pound clash.

Josh Armstrong earned a major decision win in the 125-pound division, and Nathan Sines won via a decision in the 145-pound class.

In the loss to South Carroll, Wildesen gained the only pin for the Rams, while Ratliff won by major decision, and Carr, Andrew Pritts (140), and Justin Fitzwater (215) were all decision winners. Heavyweight Sean Sisler won via a forfeit.

The Rams' next encounter will be the Bi-County Tournament on Feb. 19. It will be hosted by Allegany.

Drugs That Help Fight High Blood Pressure

High blood pressure makes the heart work abnormally hard to pump blood throughout your body. Things you can address to help lower your blood pressure are weight control, reducing salt and alcohol intake, exercise, and stress management. Obviously, other factors causing high blood pressure such as race, heredity, and age cannot be controlled.

Drugs commonly used in today's fight against high blood pressure are diuretics, or water pills. Typically, a diuretic will be the first line of treatment. Two families of drugs belong to the second type of medication, ace inhibitors and angiotensin receptor blockers (ARBs). Beta blockers, names ending in "-olol" occupy the next class by working to slow the heart and thereby lowering blood pressure. Just like any other muscle, when it works too hard your heart can strain or injure itself. A beta-blocker helps prevent these situations. Calcium channel blockers work by relaxing the smooth muscle around your blood vessels. For the most part, these drugs are used after the others. Talk to your pharmacist if you would like to know more about the drugs you are taking.

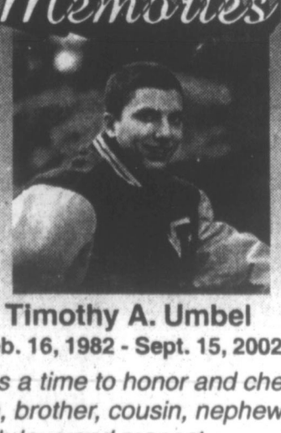
Memories



Timothy A. Umbel
Feb. 16, 1982 - Sept. 15, 2002

This is a time to honor and cherish a son, grandson, brother, cousin, nephew, and a friend with love and respect.

We miss him greatly, but he lives in the hearts of all of us. He will be with us forever in our own individual and unique memories. Memories can never be taken away. They can be shared with others, or not. They can elicit a smile, even outbursts of laughter. They are ours to keep without a beginning or an end.

But mostly, they are to be revered as sacred holdings, as is the love and friendship Timmy gave to us all..

Love,
Mom, Dad, Daun, Chrissy, Grandpa, Grandmas, Aunt, Uncle, Cousins, Friends, and Co-Workers

Brittany Miller (Not Naylor) Is Team Member

National Children's Dental Health Month

Seal Out Tooth Decay with Dental Sealants

February is National Children's Dental Health Month, and the Allegany-Garrett Dental Society wants parents to know that dental sealants can help protect their children's teeth from tooth decay.

A sealant is a clear material that is applied to the chewing surfaces of the back teeth (premolars and molars), where decay occurs most often. The sealant acts as a barrier, protecting the decay-prone areas of the back teeth from the sticky film of bacteria called plaque (plak).

Pits and fissures are depressions and grooves in the chewing surfaces of the back teeth. They are difficult to keep clean because the toothbrush bristles cannot reach into them. The sealant forms a thin covering that keeps out the plaque and food, which decreases the risk of decay.

Each tooth takes only a few minutes to seal. After cleaning the teeth that will be sealed, the dentist conditions the chewing surface to help the sealant adhere to the tooth. The sealant is then applied to the tooth enamel, where it covers and protects the tooth against bacteria. A blue light is used to harden the sealant.

While the sealant remains intact, the tooth surface will be protected from decay. Sealants hold up well under the force of normal chewing. Although sealants may last several years before reapplication is needed, regular dental check ups are important to have your child's teeth and gums examined.

Ask your dentist if your child can benefit from sealants.

Fire Marshal: Last Year's Dramatic Rise In Fire Deaths Now Stemmed

Careless Smoking Leading Cause In '04

Data released this week by Maryland State Fire Marshal William E. Barnard revealed that 87 Marylanders died from fire during 2004, a 23 percent increase over the 71 fire deaths reported statewide during 2003. Of the 87 fire deaths, 51 occurred during the first four months of 2004, continuing a higher than average trend that began in October of 2003. Beginning in May of 2004, fire deaths showed a marked decrease in comparison to previous years, stemming what could have been a historically tragic period, Barnard said.

Careless smoking was the leading known cause of fatal fires in Maryland for 2004, resulting in the death of 21 citizens compared to only 7 deaths from fire in 2003. Typically the leading known cause of fatal fires, careless smoking was the third leading known cause in 2003 behind electrical malfunctions and cooking-related fires.

In 2004, as in other years, most fire deaths occurred in residential structures. Almost 84 percent of the fire deaths were the result of residential fires, including 62 deaths in one- and two-family dwellings, 10 victims in apartment fires, and one person who died in a mobile home fire.

Of the 14 other fire deaths, 10 died in vehicle related incidents and 4 died outside a structure. The 10 vehicle fire related deaths included nine fatalities in which a vehicle collision was the cause of the fire. Vehicle collision-caused fires were the second leading known cause of fire death in Maryland during 2004.

The four fire deaths in the outside category include two people who were suicide victims.

Maryland's record of fire and life safety in public buildings such as offices, restaurants, and theaters continued its exemplary record with no reports of death in those occupancies.

Unlike previous years, for nearly half of the fire death victims in 2004 the cause of death was reported as the combination of smoke inhalation and burns, claiming 42 lives. Smoke inhalation, which is usually the most frequent cause of death, according to the report, was the primary cause of death reported for 25 victims of the 87 fire fatalities in 2004. Thirteen fire fatalities were the result of burn injuries.

Sixteen children under the age of 15 died in fires in Maryland during 2004, accounting for over 18 percent of all fire deaths for the year. This compares to 10 young victims who accounted for just 14 percent of the fire death victims during 2003. Those victims 65 years and older accounted for 31 percent of the fire deaths during the year, compared to 24 percent of the fire deaths in 2003. The 27 elderly victims of fatal fires in 2004 represent a significant 59 percent increase over the 17 deaths among the elderly in 2003.

Twenty-three victims died in fires that started in the living room or family room area of the home in 2004, a 40 percent increase over the 15 such deaths in 2003. Fourteen deaths resulted from fires that originated in bedrooms during 2004, while 11 people died in fires that originated in the kitchen area, a significant drop from the 16 such fires in 2003.

Although the majority of fire deaths occurred in residential occupancies during the cooler months of the year, only 3 percent died in fires where heating equipment was determined to be the cause of the fire. Additionally, less than 6 percent of the fire fatalities were attributed to fires from unattended candles.

Of the 73 fire deaths in residential structures, 56 persons died where smoke alarms either were not present, were present but did not operate, or the presence of the alarm and its function could not be determined. Less than 25 percent of fire fatalities died where a smoke alarm was present and operated, better than twice the national average.

The dramatic rise in fire deaths into early 2004 promoted a first-ever "Fire and Life Safety Summit" in College Park on March 3, 2004. Fire service leaders from throughout the region — including U.S. Fire Administrator R. David Paulison, representatives from private industry, and service organizations — convened to develop a plan to address the problem. A three-point action plan emerged that focused on providing smoke alarms for those in need regardless of where they live in Maryland, neighborhood-based education programs delivered by the fire service, and the redoubling of efforts to support local initiatives to have residential fire sprinklers installed in newly constructed, one- and two-family dwellings.

According to Barnard, the period from May through December 2004 showed encouraging progress in reducing fire deaths.

"Death from fire in Maryland is not just a fire service problem; it is a community problem. By installing and maintaining working smoke alarms along with developing and practicing a home fire escape plan, citizens can help us continue the promising trend established in May of 2004. Maryland's fire service and our partners in private industry along with other service organizations will continue to work in neighborhoods to help citizens protect themselves from the devastation of an uncontrolled fire."

The Office of the State Fire Marshal is an agency of the state of Maryland dedicated to helping protect citizens from fire and explosion through a comprehensive program of education, inspection, investigation, and fire protection engineering. New Arrivals

The births of two babies were announced this week, both at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

venate their ailing livelihood), trade unionists (who said slots would bring new jobs to Maryland) and African-American church pastors (who said slots revenue would save their congregations' deteriorating urban neighborhoods).

Ehrlich kicked off the testimony by highlighting a "somewhat under-analyzed" aspect of the issue. He warned that, absent slots, horse farmers in rural Maryland would be lured to neighboring states with more gaming, and their vacated land would become bait for inappropriate development.

"When those farms get up, they're gone. When the cement's poured, the cement's there," he said. "Those farms are never to return."

But the biggest selling point for the slots initiative is that it creates an Education Trust Fund.

Some 46 percent of slots revenue from four racetracks and an undetermined cut from non-racetrack facilities would go into the trust fund. That fund each year would provide at least $100 million for public school construction and $50 million for the Geographic Cost of Education Index, which compensates school districts with higher operating costs.

Ehrlich's capital budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 already devotes $157 million for school construction, but does not fund the index, part of the Thornton law for improving public schools.

Five percent of slots proceeds would go to enhancing horse race purses and to assist the horse breeding industry. That figure would increase to 6 percent the next year. License-holders would receive 39 percent the receipts.

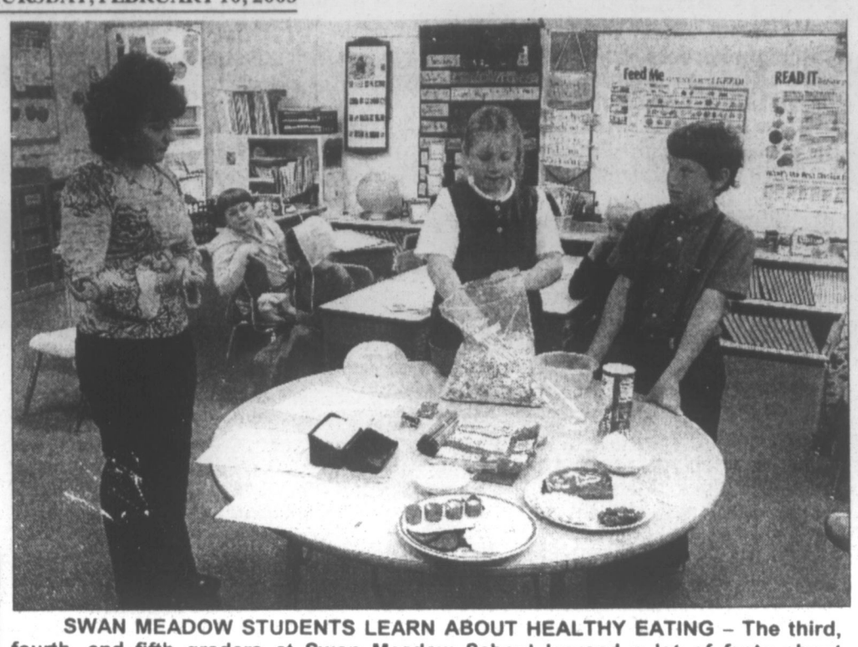
Minor Carter, a lobbyist for Stops Slots Maryland and the only speaker wholly against slots, said they will not fix the state's problems.

"Gambling doesn't achieve anything. All it does is take your money," he said. "It's not like it builds a suit or builds a car, where there's industry that builds up around it."

In the last three years, the committee — and the Senate as a whole — has been more accommodating to Ehrlich's slots initiatives than the House of Delegates. That's thanks in no small part to the support of Senate President Thomas V. Mike Miller Jr., D-Calvert.

"We've waited too long for this issue to move forward," said Miller, who sat with Ehrlich during testimony.

Miller's counterpart in the House, Speaker Michael Busch, D-Anne Arundel, has been the chief opponent to Ehrlich's slots bill the last three years. Busch has said voters should decide in a referendum whether to legalize slots.



SWAN MEADOW STUDENTS LEARN ABOUT HEALTHY EATING – The third, fourth, and fifth graders at Swan Meadow School learned a lot of facts about healthy eating this week. Sadie Liller from the Garrett County Health Department brought out several resources to teach the students proper size portions and how to read food labels. The students learned that 0-5% Daily Value of a serving of total fat, cholesterol, or sodium is low. A 6-19% value is in the middle range, and 20% or higher is in the high range. Seen above, the students were surprised that a serving of Fruit Loops is only one-half cup and it contains four teaspoons of sugar.

have personal accidents on the van, or can't because of their handicap/disability. Thus, transportation is only provided to certain individuals at certain times in certain areas. How is that being "non-discriminating"?

Harvey House operates Fridays when Beacon Outreach, another consumer-run group, does. However, consumers and the C.S.A. were told that Harvey House would be closed on Fridays because of the Beacon. Not that it makes a difference, for consumers are welcome to attend either one, or both for that matter. It's just the principle of being told one thing, yet doing another.

In closing, the O.C.A. is part of "On Our Own of Maryland," a consumer-run advocacy network. O.O.O. sponsors a summer conference every year for consumers across the state and U.S. to attend. It is mostly funded by the state (M.H.A.). It is in Ocean City this year. However, the state is supposedly in a budget crisis. While the state is paying for consumers to sleep in a high-class hotel or condo, and eat expensive meals, other consumers are losing their service(s) because of the budget. Does that make sense? The governor may add more to the mental health budget if gambling is legalized. But, gambling can lead to an addiction, another service/another consumer, and more money needed in the system.

To the Editor:

Fixing a mistake that appeared in a prior issue of our paper normally doesn't warrant more than a one-paragraph correction, but I personally feel this instance calls for extra emphasis. It concerns the story of murdered Garrett County sheriff's deputy David Livengood.

The published e-mail address for persons wishing to write the Maryland Parole Commission to provide their comments concerning the upcoming parole hearing for Robert Rezek, who was convicted as one of the perpetrators of that crime, was incorrect. The correct e-mail for Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services staffer Ray Smith, who is maintaining the correspondence file, is rsmith-@dpscs.md.us, and writers are asked to reference the case by DOC #152544.

Several images not reported in the original article have stuck with me since the interviews were conducted, and I feel they deserve to be shared for people who maybe have not made up their minds about writing to the commission.

Be forewarned, some of this information is graphic.

Image 1: Deputy Livengood, who had fired three shots and hit one of the perpetrators in the gun battle, bore several gunshot wounds to his body. The fatal bullets entered from the back – one in the back of his head and one in the middle of his back, which ricotched off his spine. Five spent 9 mm shell casings were found very near his body.

David Livengood was executed by his killer, from close range, as he lay face down on an ice-covered Fourth Street.

Image 2: The blood trail left by Livengood's canine partner, Sarge, showed that the dog dragged himself toward the deputy's body after being stabbed through the throat and lung with a samurai sword. The trail circled Livengood's lifeless body, pooled a little near his head as the dog checked on his master, then led 20 feet away to a barbed-wire fence where Sarge was found taking his last breaths as others arrived.

Image 3: Oakland police officer Roger Lewis, first on the scene after Livengood was shot, asked to accompany Livengood's body to Baltimore, where the medical examiner conducted the autopsy. As he rode in the ambulance carrying Livengood's body across the state, at numerous highway exits and intersections he observed parked police cruisers, with red lights flashing. The word had gone forth that they had lost one of their own.

These glimpses of that night serve reason for me to ask that anyone considering writing to the Parole Commission do so.

Sincerely,
David Foster

20 YEARS OF SERVICE — The Mayor and Town Council of Grantsville recently honored Bill Hetrick for 20 years of service to the town. He received a bonus, gift certificate, and certificate of appreciation. Hetrick has lived in Grantsville for over 15 years and has two sons, Josh and Matt. He is a member of the Grantsville Park Committee and is certified in the treatment of wastewater and drinking water for the town. Grantsville's sewer system was renewed, and a new treatment facility was installed over 10 years ago. The town also built a new water treatment facility to improve the quality of the water. Hetrick manages both systems, and is responsible for keeping them operating in compliance with state regulations. Hetrick and his assistant, Keith Durst, are also responsible for snow removal and line repairs. Hetrick is pictured above left, receiving the certificate of appreciation from Grantsville mayor Gerry Beachy.

Advance Beneficiary Notices Help Patients Make Informed Decisions

from Garrett County Memorial Hospital

No one likes to receive an unexpected bill in the mail, and Garrett County Memorial Hospital is doing its part to protect Medicare patients from that surprise.

Medicare patients may be given an Advance Beneficiary Notice (ABN) when they register for certain testing or procedures. An ABN is a written notice from healthcare providers notifying patients that Medicare will probably deny payment for a specific procedure.

The ABN also gives the patient the reason the provider expects Medicare to deny the payment, and notifies the patient that he or she will be fully responsible for the payment of the procedure if Medicare denies payment.

If you are asked to sign an ABN, the "bad news" is that Medicare probably will not pay for the procedure. The "good news" is that you now have the opportunity to choose whether or not to receive the procedure.

"The ABN helps you make an informed-consumer decision about whether to obtain the procedure and be prepared to pay for it, either out of your pocket or by other insurance coverage, or to choose to not receive the procedure," said Kathy Callis, director of patient financial services.

If you are a Medicare recipient, and receive an ABN, you have two options. You can choose to receive the service or item. Your claim will be sent to Medicare, but you may be billed while Medicare is making its decision. If Medicare does pay, you will be refunded any payments you made that are due to you. If Medicare denies payment, you will be personally and fully responsible for payment.

The ABN does allow you to have your claim reviewed by Medicare if you do have the procedure or testing. You may also choose to not receive the procedure or testing.

If patients receive an ABN for a procedure, and they elect not to have the procedure done, they should notify their physician that they did not get the ordered test or item.

"Medicare recipients should remember that by signing the ABN and choosing to have the procedure, a claim is submitted to Medicare. Medicare will decide on coverage and payment of your claim under its usual procedures," explained Callis. "Only if and when Medicare does deny the claim do you become liable for paying personally. If Medicare decides to pay the claim, you have lost nothing by signing the ABN."

Students Use Skills To Build Electric Car

Between 55 and 60 students at Northern High School are working on making an electric car using the skills and information they learned in school.

"We are extremely excited about this," said Gary Reichenbecher, principal of Northern High School. "We are getting a lot of students from career technology departments involved – machine tool, electronics and business classes, and auto tech classes. The kids are really excited, it makes learning interesting for them.

"We've been working on getting materials and just physically began working on the car, taking the motor out and getting it ready. It is a learning process for all of us, instructors included. So far everything is moving along pretty much as we planned."

Reichenbecher said they hope to fine tune everything next year and enter competition in 2006.

"This would not have been possible if not for the cooperation of Charlie Ross and business and community members," he said. "They have been receptive to the idea and contributing money and parts we need."

Discussion about the project began last year, said Kurt Lear, supervisor of career and technology education and certification for the Board of Education. Mark Kirschner, electronics teacher, and Donetta Nice, chairperson of career and technology department at Northern, spoke about developing this project for students and how it would involve so many departments at Northern High School. The knowledge needed crosses across many areas – electrical, math and science departments.

"The automotive kids are stripping it down and will get together with the electronics students for the operation," said Lear.

There is a national competition where high school students take a donated auto, strip it down, put in electrical connections, and operate it with a joystick. They have to drive it around a course or track, said Lear.

Lear said this year is a learning experience. Next year they hope to be in a position to compete in the national level competition. He said he expects the project will run for a few years.

"This is a direction in which education is headed – project, based or applied course work," said Lear. "Kids see a real life application of what they learn. This is often the best way students learn. It is what school is all about."

"Companies get excited when they see kids take an interest in what they do," said Ross, president and CEO of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, "and they respond in exciting ways: mentoring, donating, participating."

He added that the practical dimension of the EV Challenge is a logical extension of the pre-engineering initiative of the Board of Education and the county department of Economic Development, Project Lead the Way.

"Together educators and the business community will take a long way down the road to quality jobs in Garrett County," Ross added.

A number of potential business partners and educators discussed the project at a recent meeting: Lear, Reichenbecher, Ross, Kirschner; Nice; Scott Graham from Westvaco: Dan Kremer of Phenix Technology; superintendent of schools Wendell Teets; assistant superintendent of schools Brenda McCartney; Lynn Bell, director of secondary education; Jarad Roth, machine shop teacher; Jeff Beitzel, carpentry instructor; Toi Elliott from Gear Up; and other interested teachers.

Some of the businesses donating so far include Brenneman Well Drilling, Casselman Veterinary Services, Ringer Electric, G&W Lumber, Tom Menges Trucking, Glotfelty Enterprises, Vacation Surfing, Amboy Logging Corp., Folk's Paint and Glass, Garrett Electric, Welding Rod, Beitzel Corporation, and Diehl's Ford.

Persons interested in becoming a local business partner are urged to contact the school directly at 301-746-8668.

KEY EVENTS

SATURDAY

• THE BUDWEISER SHOOTOUT: The non-points race opens the Nextel Cup season. Pole-winners from the previous year, as well as former Shootout winners, compete in a race run in segments. Bill Elliott will drive a car painted in the colors of Coors beer, his sponsor during his heyday in the sport. Elliott, who usually drives cars fielded by Ray Evernham, will drive a Chip Ganassi-owned Dodge (Ganassi has regular sponsorship from Coors Light). That means Elliott will be back behind an engine prepared by his brother, Ernie, who supplied the power during Elliott's domination of the late 1980s. There also will be an 80-lap race for the Automobile Racing Club of America.

SUNDAY, FEB. 13

• DAYTONA 500 QUALIFYING: It's just two laps per car, but it's the culmination of months of work in the shops and wind tunnels. Even though the top two qualifiers are the only ones who secure starting positions in the 500, it's important enough that teams spend most of their three-day test in January trying various qualifying set-ups.

THURSDAY, FEB. 17

• THE TWIN 150s: The "Gatorade Duels" are now 150 miles, 25 miles more than in recent years. But the races are far less important now that the top 35 in owner points from last year are guaranteed starting spots in the 500. But fans need not worry too much about a lack of excitement. Even practice sessions can produce multi-car calamities, especially in the tight draft at Daytona. And the extra miles likely will mean one more pit stop for each driver.

FRIDAY, FEB. 18

• CRAFTSMAN TRUCK RACE: The 250-mile fender-bending race typically produces numerous lead changes and thrilling finishes. With the boxy truck creating the kind of turbulence not seen on the Cup circuit in decades, the old slingshot move actually works. Also on the card is the first installment of the International Race of Champions, which pits top drivers from various racing circuits in identically prepared cars.

SATURDAY, FEB. 19

• BUSCH SERIES RACE: It has been a tune-up session for Dale Earnhardt Jr.'s Cup run the next day. But with the off-season overhaul of crews at his Dale Earnhardt Inc. team, Earnhardt, who is going for his fourth consecutive victory in the event, will be running for the first time at Daytona without the pit leadership of his uncle Tony Eury Sr. and cousin Tony Eury Jr. Like the truck series, the Busch circuit usually produces slam-bang racing at Daytona — even more since NASCAR put roof blades on the cars to create turbulence and therefore increase passing.

SUNDAY, FEB. 20

• THE DAYTONA 500: It's known as NASCAR's Super Bowl, the "Great American Race" and simply the 500. It usually lives up to the hype. Unlike other sports, NASCAR opens its season with its biggest event. The speedway, which opened in 1959, is built for speed. But speeds got so high over the years that restrictor plates are used to keep cars from becoming airborne. Daytona also is a "handling track," which means drivers and crews must set their chassis to be fast in the turns, too. No one has figured out the place as well as the Dale Earnhardt Inc. duo of Earnhardt Jr. and Michael Waltrip, who have won five of the past eight Cup races at Daytona.

Q&A

Here are some answers to important questions about Speedweeks.

Q: Will speeds during preseason testing at Daytona be good indicators of who will contend in the Daytona 500?

A: Not necessarily. But they will give a good idea of who will be contenders for the pole, because most of the test session is devoted to fine-tuning qualifying set-ups.

Q: Who benefits most from the new policy that guarantees starting spots to the top 35 teams in owner points?

A: Those teams near the bottom of the standings, who might be outrun by newcomers in qualifying.

Q: Who loses out with the new policy?

A: New teams, some of which have high-profile sponsors, that have a problem in time trials or the qualifying races. Only eight starting spots will be available to those not in the top 35 from last season. Also hurting are low-budget teams, like Morgan Shepherd's team, that relied on the old provisional procedures, which rewarded teams that showed up every week with starting berths in lucrative events.

Q: Will the twin 150-mile qualifiers continue to be a fan favorite now that they aren't huge factors in determining the lineup for the Daytona 500?

A: The racing at the front of the pack likely will be as good as ever, but there probably will be some drivers in mid-pack who choose to save their best moves for the 500.

Q: Are the Daytona 500 front-row starters required to compete in the qualifying races?

A: Yes. All drivers who plan on racing in the 500 must start the 150s.

Q: Can Dale Earnhardt Jr. and Michael Waltrip swap crews in the off-season and still dominate at Daytona as they have in the past?

A: Based on poor testing results, they've got lots of work to do if they're going to dominate Speedweeks this year.

Q: Can teammates Scott Riggs, Boris Said and Joe Nemechek back up their chart-topping speeds from January's test session?

A: They don't call him "Front Row Joe" for nothing. The sophomore Riggs and the road racer Said ought to be solid, too.

Q: Who has the horsepower edge this year?

A: Based on preseason testing, engine builders at Hendrick Motorsports have wrung the most power from restrictor-plate engines. Riggs, Said and Nemechek all use Hendrick power, and Hendrick's regular drivers — Jeff Gordon, Jimmie Johnson, Kyle Busch and Brian Vickers — were strong in testing too.

Q: Will the new shorter spoilers be on the cars for Speedweeks?

A: No. The new rules don't apply to Daytona and Talladega, where speeds are so great that carburetor restrictor plates are used to slow the cars.

Q: Will Bill Elliott be able to take a one-time ride with Chip Ganassi and contend in the Budweiser Shootout?

A: He was fast in testing and did that with a powerplant he described as "just an old practice engine."

Q: Will Mark Martin or Rusty Wallace be able to add a Daytona 500 victory to their résumé in their final 500 runs?

A: Obviously, one of them won't, but both are putting extra emphasis on the race. Still, the odds are long.

Q: Who will be the favorite to win the 300-mile Busch Series race?

A: Dale Earnhardt Jr., who is going for his fourth straight victory in the event.

Success during Speedweeks often comes to teams that made the most of their testing sessions. Here, Jeff Gordon runs practice laps in his No. 24 Chevy.

The jury is still out on spoilers, soft tires

Nextel Cup drivers practiced at Las Vegas and California last week to get their first experience with the shorter rear spoilers and softer tires that will be run this year at all tracks except Daytona and Talladega.

"I'm not sure about the spoiler deal or the tire yet," Jeremy Mayfield said. "We had a great test in Vegas to start with, but I'm still not sure because we haven't raced it yet."

Tony Stewart agrees that the full story won't be known until the season starts. He's hoping the new rules will take away some of the fuel-mileage strategies that some teams have used to win races.

"Two years ago we were in situations where track position was everything, and you could run 150 laps on a set of tires and be just as fast as a guy with 30 laps on his tires," Stewart said. "Last year we got away from that a little bit, and hopefully this year we'll get away from it even more and get it back to where it was when I started in this series."

Some drivers predicted the shorter spoilers would make the cars unstable at high speed, but Jimmie Johnson said that hasn't been the case.

"I think we were all nervous and thought the cars were going to be very evil to drive and undriveable at times, but they haven't been that way," he said.

Now for sale on eBay: NASCAR sponsorship

By JEFF GLUCK
Cox News Service

Rocky Mount, N.C.

There's a wacky eBay story almost every day. Recently, a man auctioned off his body for advertising, a woman offered her cleavage and a college freshman sold himself as a prom date for some very unlucky girl.

The media loves this stuff — it's the perfect odd news item that you just have to read.

Now, NASCAR is involved with the latest bizarre eBay story.

Kirk Shelmerdine, the occasional field-filler who plans to run in the No. 27 car this season, is selling off his car's sponsorship.

Granted, most Web surfers don't have an extra $100,000, but if they did, they could buy Shelmerdine's associate sponsorship for the entire season.

By comparison, Nicorette reportedly paid $3 million for the same level of sponsorship on Casey Mears' No. 41 car.

There are clearly big differences between the two cars. Mears' car will regularly be shown on TV, while Shelmerdine, who once was crew chief for the late Dale Earnhardt, probably won't even make half of the Nextel Cup races.

Even when Shelmerdine does make the show, he rarely is shown on TV, runs near the back and hardly ever finishes — hence the price difference and eBay auction.

Still, there are cheaper, low-risk alternatives for Shelmerdine's car that are very intriguing.

For $7,500, buyers can purchase a one-race sponsorship of the so-called "TV panel," which is a more likely part of the car that would be shown on TV — if Shelmerdine's car ever made the picture.

There are other varying levels of sponsorship still available, all the way down to $2,150 for a 16 square-inch advertisement on the car for the race of your choice.

"This decal will be carried during qualifying for the NASCAR Nextel Cup race of your choice, and during that race if the qualifying attempt is successful," the auction notice reads. "If the No. 27 fails to qualify for the race of your choice, this sponsorship will roll over. The decal will be on the car for one race, or a maximum of three qualifying attempts, whichever comes first."

No special privileges are included (some levels include VIP pit passes), and it might not be a wise investment, but it's fun to think about.

For a team that is obviously willing to consider anything, Shelmerdine's bunch would surely accept a "Happy Birthday Johnny!" for your favorite racing fan or a "Becky Sue's Flower Shop Rules!" message.

Even if you stuck to the whole advertising thing, you could pump up your own company or your son's baseball team ("Go Elks Lodge Padres!").

Imagine sitting in the stands at Daytona. The field is coming around the track to begin the Nextel Cup season, and you're sponsoring one of the cars.

Unfortunately, that race has already been sold ($2,250). But the bragging rights with your friends would be endless — none of your buddies could ever match that.

Of course, any buyer would look like an idiot if Shelmerdine didn't qualify for the race.

But just having your name on a Nextel Cup car might be too much fun to pass up.

Just Keep On Swimming

"Goldie, don't look now, but I think big trouble is lurking right over our heads. Just keep swimming and pretend you don't know. Maybe his head will get stuck in the bowl before we become cat food. Maybe he won't like getting his nose wet. Anyway, just keep on swimming...".

If goldfish pray, this is the time. If not, let's hope luck is in their fishbowl. You know, it is said we all live in a fishbowl. For example, access to personal information is as simple as pushing a button. It is not surprising that we feel vulnerable. We read of crime each day. Luck is seldom an effective deterrent. Are we helpless against evil that is lurking ... waiting to pounce?

Help is only a prayer away. As you worship God at your local church or synagogue, ask Him to surround you with His mercy and strengthen you with His love. You need not be afraid. Trust God's will ... and just keep on praying.

Persistence In Prayer

In the Bible, Jesus asks His disciples, "Which of you who has a friend will go to him at midnight and say to him, 'Friend lend me three loaves; for a friend of mine has arrived on a journey and I have nothing to set before him'; and he will answer from within, 'Do not bother me; the door is now shut, and my children are with me in bed; I cannot get up and give you anything'? Yet because of his importunity he will rise and give him whatever he needs" (Luke 11:5-8). This example that Jesus gives us is a good reminder of how we should be persistent in our prayers. And although I have heard it said that once we pray for something, we can forget about our prayer request because we have turned it over to God, this attitude may not be appropriate in all cases. Because, like the man requesting the three loaves, we should be persistent with our prayers when we are faced with a concerning situation that remains with us. Praying for months or even years for various situations is sometimes necessary. For example, because of their love, many parents will pray a lifetime for their children's safety and well-being. We should always be aware that we are God's children and He is faithful to those who love Him and seek His help in prayer.

But for thee, O Lord, do I wait; it is thou, O lord my God, who wilt answer.

R.S.V. Psalm 38:15

Fiber Supplement May Add to Cholesterol-Lowering Drug Effects

According to a report presented at a recent meeting of the American Heart Association, persons who take cholesterol-lowering drugs may get the same effect of doubling the drug's dose if, instead, they take a fiber supplement. One of the supplements to which they refer is a commercial over-the-counter product called Metamucil, which contains psyllium husks.

According to researchers at the Robert Wood Johnson Medical School, psyllium is a soluble fiber that has important cholesterol-lowering properties. A recent study involved persons who were taking a cholesterol-lowering drug. Those who took only the drug experienced an almost 30% reduction in LDL cholesterol. However, those who took three servings of Metamucil a day along with the same dose of this cholesterol-lowering drug experienced a 36% reduction in LDL cholesterol by the end of 8 weeks. Researchers indicated that this combination [illegible] who are concerned about drug side effects, if and when the dose needs to be increased.

TV PIPELINE

Same night, different network for actress

By Jay Bobbin

Q: Anna Belknap of "Medical Investigation" looks familiar. I thought she might have been in "Family Law." What else have we seen her in? –Karen Winkoff, Massapequa, N.Y.

A: With her current NBC show, she has the same Friday time slot she was in for a while last season on a different network. With lighter hair, Belknap played Lily, one of the undercover agents on the short-lived Joe Pantoliano CBS drama, "The Handler."

Anna Belknap

Q: What is the status of the "Law & Order" spinoff that was to have starred Jerry Orbach? –Mildred Zawlacki, Ogden, Utah.

A: At this writing, NBC still intends to premiere "Law & Order: Trial by Jury" before the end of the current TV season. The widely liked Orbach died while production of the series was on a holiday break, and the show's makers have been working to develop a character – and find an actor – to fill the spot left by Orbach's Lennie Briscoe ... or try their best to, at least.

Q: Why is it that the movie "The Snake Pit" with Olivia de Havilland has never appeared in the thousands of "oldies" on TV? –Wally Smith, Baltimore.

A: Actually, it has. Not only has AMC shown it, the 1948 classic about a mental institution – which featured Celeste Holm and Natalie Schafer ("Gilligan's Island") as well – turns up every few months or so on Fox Movie Channel.

Q: I remember a weekly series that starred Marlee Matlin and Mark Harmon. Her character was a district attorney, and he played her investigator. What was the name of the show, and when did it air? –Barb Lloyd, Zanesville, Ohio.

A: That was "Reasonable Doubts," an NBC drama that ran from 1991 to 1993, and starred Matlin as A.D.A. Tess Kaufman and Harmon as Detective Dicky Cobb. Cobb's girlfriend was played by Nancy Everhard, who also has appeared as the late Colin's mother on The WB Network drama "Everwood."

Q: Why has ABC put "life as we know it" against "The O.C." on Fox? Isn't this a surefire way to cause the show's failure? –S. Gaskins, Atlanta.

A: Yup, pretty much. Next?

Q: What happened to the program "Missing," seen Saturday nights on Lifetime? I miss being able to program it to watch on Sunday mornings. –Marie Z., Pahokee, Fla.

A: Now you'll have to program your recording device to tape the show on Sunday nights to watch on Monday mornings. That's where the mystery show moved as of last month.

Q: Why is "Coach" not in reruns on any channel? –J. Wilson, Cary, N.C.

A: It is. Check USA Network most weekday mornings. In fact, two episodes of the Craig T. Nelson sitcom usually are shown back to back there.

Let's Get Down To Business!

BASKET TREE GIFT COMPANY INC.

Basket Tree Gift Company Inc., www.baskettreegiftco.com, an Oakland-based Internet business, has been up and running for seven years, and started shipping baskets from their Oakland location this fall. Basket Tree Gift Company is operated by Barbara and Mike Holler of Oakland.

The company was previously operated by Susan Tasker Boudouris, who is originally from Oakland. She remains the design and marketing consultant to her sister Barbara. They offer personalized gift giving ideas and design to customize a gift basket for any occasion. In addition, they offer online secure shopping and local delivery.

They will ship anywhere in the United States and also send packages overseas via the post office. Although the majority of the business is conducted online, they do also welcome telephone orders.

According to Barbara, her clients rave about the gift baskets. She explains some of the reasons why.

"We don't sell gift baskets. We use them to achieve some other end," said Barbara. "We help people send their feelings across the miles with handcrafted high quality gift baskets," she added.

They use hard to find products and items not typically found in a grocery story. "We use only the best products and have sacrificed our waistlines over the years to find them," Barbara said.

There are 24 basket designs to chose from. Some offered are the Gourmet Mix, Too Hot To Handle, Good Morning, the Candle Soother, Vineyard Gourmet, and Lo Carb Delight. During the Christmas holiday season they also offer a Holiday Feast, Joy of Chocolate, Holiday Sweet Tooth, Christmas Morning, and 12 Days of Christmas Coffee basket.

GIFT BASKETS ARE A GREAT IDEA and now can be ordered at www.baskettreegiftcom.com, a local Internet-based company in Oakland. They offer personalized gift giving ideas and design to customize a gift basket for any occasion. Pictured above is the Gourmet Mix Basket, one of the most popular baskets offered.

Another option is for the customer to design their own using the create-your-own feature on the web site. Clients can choose from more than 167 items to personalize their own basket. Barbara added that more than 98% of the baskets are created this way.

"As a gift giver, you will be overwhelmed with all the possibilities of products that you can choose from to custom design and personalize your gift," she said. "We offer anything from gourmet food and beverage, specialty coffees, cocoas and teas, homemade fudge and chocolate goodies, fresh brownies, cookies, and pound cakes, a full product line of gourmet nuts, scone and bread mixes, baby and children items, and assorted Chicken Soup for the Soul books for any occasion. "

According to Barbara, their handcrafted decorations create a strong visual impact. "Anyone can make a basket, but we pride ourselves in taking the time to add those extra special touches to enhance each basket's appearance. We use hand-made one of a kind decorated cards with the finest material to carry your special handwritten message," she said.

They also use over 30 feet of curling ribbon to add to the dramatic visual impact as well as bows made from over nine feet of wire-edged fabric ribbon. "We feel that the last thing our customers want is a droopy little bow with little or no decorations," said Barbara.

Barbara stressed that customers should not think that since the majority of the business is conducted online, customers won't get the personal service they want.

"If you are not sure of what items will work best in a basket, or how to decorate accordingly, call or send us an e-mail," she said. "We have created over 12,834 gift baskets and personalized messages in just the past four years. We will make sure your basket is appropriate for the amount of people you are sending it to and is decorated accordingly for the occasion."

Barbara also added that they take extra care in packaging to ensure that the basket arrives looking as good as when it was made.

Also offered are corporate discounts. Barbara said that the company's goal for the future is to continue to offer the highest quality of products available to online and local consumers with the best of service.

Photos of baskets and more information can be obtained at www.baskettreegiftco.com or at 301-533-GIFT (4438).

Caring for Feral Cats in Winter

Q. Last spring, a family of cats (two adults and three little black kittens) began hanging around my property. I chose to feed them each morning and evening. They all look very healthy, but are very skittish and won't come near me. I'm concerned for their well-being in Connecticut's extreme winter cold, and I would also like to get them to a vet for shots and to get them fixed. Do you have any suggestions? — Dolores, via e-mail

A. Even though this feline family seems all right in the cold weather — they may have found a den or protected spot to huddle in — building a small shelter will provide them with a far more comfortable sleeping spot. You can create a temporary shelter using a sturdy cardboard box and old towels or blankets; set it in a dry spot facing away from the wind and place their food nearby.

In the long term, a sturdier shelter will be needed. It's also important for the cats to be fixed and given preventative treatment for illnesses like rabies and feline leukemia. In order to do this, the cats must be caught in a humane manner that is safe for both them and you, and transported to a care facility. You can do this yourself, or work with a local organization that advocates TNR (trap, neuter, release) for feral cats.

One of the best sites on the Net for information on feral cats and TNR is Alley Cat Allies (www.alleycat.org). In addition to a nationwide listing of organizations that work to help these cats, you can peruse a well-organized library of information on trapping, treating and caring for these skittish felines — including instructions on building a sturdier winter shelter for your adopted family.

Q. I have a 33 rpm record album of Louis Armstrong's "Town Hall Concert" issued by RCA. How much is it worth? — Evelyn, Dubuque, Iowa

A. The value of most collectibles depends on three major factors: condition, rarity and demand. Your album is fairly common, and in excellent condition might sell for about $10.

Q. I have a pair of pictures that are called Magyar. Who can tell me how much they are worth? — Marian, Lincoln City, Ore.

A. Your pictures were made in Hungary. I suggest you contact a competent fine-arts dealer. Wayne Kielsmeier is the owner of Covington Art Gallery and might be able to help you establish values for your artwork. His addresses and telephone number are 6530 East Tanque Verde Blvd. 140, Tucson, AZ 85715; artdlr@attglobal.net; and 1-520-298-7878.

• You may — or perhaps you may not — be surprised to learn that in Tahitian, "mai tai" means "out of this world."

• Humans have nine muscles that are used to move each ear. Think that sounds like a lot? It's not, really — at least, not when compared to horses. They have 17 muscles in each ear for that purpose.

• It was noted humorist Don Marquis who observed, "The trouble with the public is that there is too much of it." He is the same man who noted, "Ours is a world where people don't know what they want and are willing to go through hell to get it."

• The first IBM computer — in 1975 — would cost $67,371 if the amount were figured in today's dollars.

• Lyndon Baines Johnson, before he was president, proposed to Lady Bird, before she was the first lady, on their first date.

• Have you ever tried eating dill to get rid of hiccups? It was a fairly common remedy used in the 19th century.

• Those who research such things claim that the father of psychoanalysis, Sigmund Freud, sent letters to at least 880 people — and that was just in the one year preceding his death.

• Before they became famous, the Three Stooges had to earn a living somehow. Moe Howard sold real estate; his brother Shemp was a plumber; and Larry Fine was, strangely, both a violinist and, occasionally, a professional boxer.

Message from the Dean's Desk — Garrett College

Dean of Academic Affairs

Rumor has it that a certain groundhog in a neighboring state recently saw his shadow, allegedly forecasting six more weeks of winter. Be that as it may, there are few shadows at Garrett College right now and instead, lots of forecasts for bright skies ahead, particularly when we think about our past, present, and future students.

In fact, I've been all smiles recently as I've read about so many of our former students and their successes upon graduating or transferring from Garrett. From Dan Sincell at Towson to Kristin Rollman at Shenandoah, from Joanna Abe and Jared Fike at Bridgewater College to Megan Tichinell at Frostburg and Karie Kamp at Allegany College of Maryland, GC is proud to have learned of their many, many academic triumphs. Our students have been faring well in West Virginia, too, and I can't express the pride I felt in learning of the multiple students, many of whom I had the privilege of teaching, who are earning honors at WVU. Jamie Bosley, Melissa Patterson, Guy Stanton, Derrick Bender, Kristin Hoffman, Cynthia Kinsinger, Randi Beiler, Jess Sharon, Amanda Friend, and Erin Lucas are all excelling in rigorous courses of study, and we at GC are delighted we could help them get off to great starts in fields as diverse as forensics, agriculture, allied health, and landscape architecture. We're equally glad to learn of Amanda and Carrie Hahn's strong academic work at Fairmont. Amanda, Carrie, and their mother Ruth Ann were all strong students at GC, and we're glad that the sisters are carrying on the success they enjoyed at Garrett.

Speaking of siblings and success, my spirits soared when I read about the Rentschler family's news. I taught Gabe and his wife Andi and Austin during my first year (and their first semester) at GC, and I knew Austin's wife Maragita as a GC student then, too. Learning of Gabe's excellence in law school, Andi's success as a nurse manager, and Austin's sterling career as an analyst made me realize how quickly time has flown. It's delightful to see that the success we predicted for these students has come to pass in abundance, and equally gratifying to know that we played a part in propelling them toward their futures.

Yet my smiles aren't limited to when I read about our former students and all that they're accomplishing. I'm equally enthusiastic when I consider opportunities in store for our current students, particularly through our co-curricular program, which is open to the public, as well. A presentation by Michael Swiderski and his students kicked off our spring season on Wednesday, and much more is in store. Kevin Dodge will lead a nature hike, while Lonnie Brewster will accompany students on a trip to Spain. Terry Kasecamp's students will present a series of monologues for Women's History Month and follow that with a trip to Seneca Falls, while other students will travel with Ron Skidmore to the Smithsonian in April. There'll be opportunities to see Cats in Morgantown and a chance to hear a renowned Estonian musician in concert in Garrett County. From the Garrett Community Concert Band led by Jerry McGee to performances by visiting artists and a presentation by visiting South African educators coordinated by Nancy Priselac, co-curricular events will guarantee bright days at GC this spring.

Bright days are in store for future students at Garrett, too, thanks to our series of one-credit classes slated to start in March. Designed to give students a one-credit class in one week for less than a hundred dollars, these classes will range from Conflict Management to Introduction to Film, from Emerging Technologies: Digital Cameras to Creative Storytelling, and from Introduction to Linux to Personal Finance: Retirement. I'll be sharing more information about these and other classes in future columns, and I'm particularly excited that they give students a "second chance" to experience Garrett. It's timely, in fact, that the courses start around the same time as the Second Chances for Women program we're sponsoring with AAUW and BPW and holding here at the College. This program, designed for women interested in continuing their education, will offer a day of informative sessions on March 19, and I'm certain that the opportunities offered at Second Chances will light up opportunities for our local residents.

In the end, our local residents are an enormous reason that Garrett College is able to shine. Whether they've attended GC and transferred or graduated from Garrett and gotten jobs, whether they're currently enrolled and excelling or thinking about enrolling and experiencing college, Garrett County residents and their successes ensure sunny days ahead not only for Garrett County but also for Garrett College.

WALK-AEROBICS CHALLENGE SLATED – "Can you keep pace with Garrett County's senior citizens?" asks a Flowery Vale Health & Fitness Center for the Mature Adult spokesperson. She is challenging residents of all ages to come in and join the center's 3-mile walking program, held Monday, Wednesdays, and Fridays from 9 until 10 a.m. at the center in Accident. "It's a great way to keep fit and have some fun," she said. Tunes from the '50s and '60s spur the walkers on to complete the three miles. "Drop in and see if you are strong enough to measure up to the 55-plus participants," said the spokesperson. A donation of $2 per person is suggested. Funds will be used for equipment. Both of these operations are attempts to obtain information which will allow access to the victims' bank accounts, said Sanders.

Bird-Middleton Named Director Of Project Aware

Kery Hummel, Western Maryland Area Health Education Center (WMAHEC) executive director and National AHEC organization president, Cumberland, announced recently that Martha Bird-Middleton has been named director of Project Aware.

The three-year grant from the Corporation for National and Community Service Special Volunteer Program serves 19 counties in four states: the predominately rural and Appalachian areas of western Maryland and parts of nearby West Virginia, Pennsylvania, and Virginia.

Project Aware is designed to strengthen regional volunteer response to Homeland Security needs by encouraging and equipping people primarily age 55 and older to perform meaningful and constructive volunteer service that can minimize damage from Homeland Security threats, and aid in the recovery from any such attacks. Five regional field sites and the Western Maryland Health System Parish Program have been chosen to help implement Project Aware and are hiring personnel to serve as field coordinators.

The Garrett County Area Agency on Aging, Community Action Committee, has sub-contracted under WMAHEC to serve as the Region I field site. Region I encompasses Garrett, Somerset, and Preston counties.

Adina Brode, director of GCAAA, has hired Danny Barr as field coordinator for Region I.

Barr, who has extensive experience in supervising and recruiting volunteers and military personnel, including for disaster and emergency situations, will work directly with local volunteer emergency service and social organizations, businesses, and faith-based organizations to recruit and train volunteers.

For additional information about Project Aware, persons may contact Martha Bird-Middleton, WMAHEC Project Aware director, at 301-777-9150, ext. 111, or by e-mail at mbird@allconet.org. Barr can be reached at 301-334-9143, ext. 173, or at dbarr-@garrettcac.org.

HOME ENERGY SAVINGS

Q. My dad is always after me to "turn out the lights!" – Aren't there better ways to save energy around the house?

The attraction of the "turn out the lights" command is that you can spot the energy savings at once. A light goes out and electric power is no longer drawn, so the fact that you're saving some energy is obvious.

However, the REAL savings come from the places where it is not obvious. The very best thing you can do to stop wasting energy at home is to eliminate drafts. Whenever there is air sneaking in or out of a house, it's just the same as having a window open a little bit. For most houses, most of the time, that's where the energy is lost, and therefore that's where you should put your attention.

Engineers have done a lot of calculations with all kinds of heat-transfer formulas, but the basic idea is pretty simple: If a block of air used to be indoors and had been heated to 70° F, and then it goes outside where it's 35° F, all the heat contained in that much air is lost to the external world; meanwhile, new air coming in through a different crack enters the house at 35° F and has to be heated up to 70° F. That costs a little bit of money.

Keep doing that long enough and it costs a lot of money. That's where people don't perceive the cost. A little air sneaking in at a drafty place doesn't have the same noticeable effect that flipping a light switch has. But the true cost is proportionately much greater, even on a daily basis.

The British Thermal Unit (or BTU) is defined as the amount of energy it takes to heat up one pound of water by one degree Fahrenheit. A useful conversion factor to keep in mind is that 3412 BTU = 1 kiloWatt-hour (1 kWh). If you do a little arithmetic on your electric bill, you'll find that 1 kWh costs about a dime, depending on what city you live in. Savings from turning off lights can be calculated with great accuracy: Leave 5 60-watt bulbs on for 2 hours and you've used up 600 Watt-hours, or 0.6 kWh. Six cents is not exactly worth fighting over.

But it's amazing how fast you can waste 3412 BTU or even 50,000 BTU through a drafty opening. A gallon of fuel oil contains about 140,000 BTU energy, so 50,000 BTU is worth nearly a dollar at today's prices. The total weight of the air in a typical room is several pounds, and when it's drafty, all that air gets replaced in about 20 minutes. Heat it up by 35° degrees; then keep doing that, day and night, all winter long! All those elaborate engineering calculations have been done, and it's real money going up the chimney.

To locate and seal up drafty openings, the very first place to look is around doors. Those little spaces alongside and under the door may be only 1/16 inch across, but the distance around the door is about 18 feet, so the total area through which air can slip is surprisingly large: over 13 square inches, which is about the same area as a round hole in the wall 4 inches in diameter. Run your hand all around the edge of the door and feel the draft. If it's windy outside, the effect will be greater. To repair that, weather-stripping is absolutely the simplest and cheapest thing you can do to stop air from leaking in. The cost of a roll of weather-stripping will be repaid in energy savings in about a week.

Windows also develop draftiness over time, as a house creaks and settles a little over the years. A tube of caulking compound can seal up tiny cracks and keep the cold air from sneaking in. If you find a drafty window and don't have caulking compound handy, shove an old bathroom towel up against the crack and tape it in place until spring.

There are lots more ways to save money by saving energy around the house, such as storm doors and storm windows. These cost way more than a kid's budget, but still pay back their cost in a few years. The owner of a typical home in America can cut the heating bill in half by conscientiously going after the many sources of heat loss.

Finally, you don't have to worry about making the ventilation too little. That can be accomplished under laboratory conditions, but real houses occupied by real people never get too air-tight, because people go in and out the doors, the furnace draws air, etc.

UM WOMEN DONATE TO CHEMBE PROJECT – The United Methodist Women's group of St. Paul's United Methodist Church in Oakland recently made a $200 donation to the Oakland Rotary Club's Chembe villiage project. The project targets children from age 6 to 14 in the village of Chembe, the country of Malawi, located in central Africa. The endeavor includes the production of a cartoon story book using native African animals such as jackals, zebras, and giraffes to teach about AIDS prevention. The goal is to change the cultural lifestyles that put the children at risk of contracting AIDS. Like most of the rest of central Africa, Chembe has been devastated by AIDS. Many of the children in the village are being reared by their grandparents since their parents have died in the epidemic. The project also includes a water filtration project and economic development activities in Chembe. Brenda McCartney, president of the Oakland Rotary, thanked the women's group. She said she was "overwhelmed" by the generosity of local groups who have supported the project. Rotary Club members have sponsored the project since it was brought to their attention by Dr. Ken McKay, Frostburg State University, who has been working with the village for a number of years. Pictured is McCartney, left, receiving the check from Terry Riley of St. Paul's.

Young Farmers Organizational Meeting Slated

Local farmers are invited to attend the organizational meeting of the Garrett County Young Farmers group, scheduled for Feb. 22 at the Center for Adventure and Outdoor Studies (Agriculture Building) at Garrett College, beginning at 7 p.m.

Young farmers and farmers "young at heart" are encouraged to attend to discuss current agricultural issues, plan Young Farmers leadership and learning activities, and to have fellowship.

The highlight of the evening will be a slide show of pictures taken by Richard McCrobie in Brazil on his recent trip with the LEAD Maryland agricultural leadership development program, a Farm Bureau spokesperson said.

"Farmers and those involved in the agricultural services need to pull together and work with each other to create a network of support for the benefit of our future," the spokesperson said.

The Farm Bureau has worked for many years at bringing the agricultural issues in the farm communities to lawmakers.

"The bureau established the Young Farmers organization to provide each new generation of farmers with a way to network so that they could help each other solve problems and develop new opportunities," the spokesperson said. "The Garrett County Young Farmers group was once a successful organization, but it was disbanded because of a lack of interest several years ago."

At the recent Garrett-Preston Rural Development Coalition Agriculture Summit, those in attendance reportedly stressed the need for an organization like Young Farmers for the new generation of farmers and agriculture operators.

The Feb. 22 meeting has been scheduled for anyone interested in the re-establishment of the Young Farmers organization in Garrett County. This will be a planning meeting, and those who attend will choose the direction, business, and structure of the new organization so that it is most beneficial to them. Some issues that the new group may consider discussing are land development pressures, market development, and political activism.

All farmers are welcome, and need not be a member of the Farm Bureau to attend. Coffee and ice cream will be provided. Children are welcome to attend for an evening of fun activities.

For more information, persons may call one of the following: Rick McCrobie at Garrett College, 301-387-3331; or Willie Lantz or Cheryl DeBerry at the Extension Office at 301-334-6960.

Ag Economic Study To Be Conducted, Results Vital To Fact-Based Policies

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service (MASS) is gearing up to conduct the 2004 Agricultural Resource Management Survey (ARMS).

"This annual survey is a vital tool for measuring the economic health of the nation's farms and ranches, as it is the only national source of current economic data on agriculture," said a USDA spokesperson.

Information gathered in ARMS is used by farm organizations, legislators, and others who make critical decisions that affect our nation's agriculture. A sample of about 200 farmers in Maryland will be surveyed.

"This is each farmer's chance to have his or her voice heard," said Norman Bennett, director of the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service. "It is critical that every farmer selected participate so that each type and size of farm in Maryland is represented."

"Access to accurate facts as opposed to opinion or speculation is key to the development of policies and programs that can provide lasting benefits to the agricultural community," said Agriculture Secretary, Lewis R. Riley. "This is a huge undertaking for both the enumerators and the farmers especially coming on the heels of the five-year census. I urge all Maryland farmers who are selected to participate."

Specific uses of ARMS data are summarized by the following examples:

•Economists use the data to produce descriptions of current economic conditions on farms. They make use of data to estimate impacts of rising costs, such as land, fuel, and fertilizer, and disease outbreaks, such as soybean rust, avian influenza, and mad cow disease.

•Legislators, both national and local, use the data to understand the impact of their policy decisions on the farm economy, such as proposed changes to the current Social Security system. ARMS data always play a critical role in the Federal Farm Bill legislation, for example, to determine where government payments should be targeted and what level of support is appropriate. ARMS data play a role in evaluating the effects of natural disasters, so that an appropriate response (e.g., emergency assistance or new loan programs) may be formulated.

•Organizations, such as the American Farm Bureau, use the results to lobby for farm policy that promotes production agriculture.

•Government agencies use the data in many ways. For example, the Bureau of Economic Analysis uses the data in calculations that help determine how funds and grant monies will be allocated to states. The Farm Service Agency requires the data to develop program payments to farmers.

•Banks use the data to evaluate loan programs and repayment ability.

•Universities use the data to track socioeconomic trends in rural areas and to teach strategies for increasing productivity and long-term financial planning to producers. Many enterprise budgets are based on ARMS data.

•Farmers themselves make use of the data to determine the feasibility and profit gained by making changes to their operations.

Local data collection for the 2004 ARMS will be conducted by trained interviewers representing the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service.

Farmers selected will be contacted and interviewed during March and April. For additional information about the current year's survey, persons may contact MASS state director, Norman Bennett, at 410-841-5740. Reports from previous surveys may be viewed online at ers.usda.gov/Briefing/ARMS .

Grantsville Ag Services Slates Equine Seminar

Southern States and Grantsville Ag Services will hold an equine health and nutrition seminar on Wednesday, March 2, at the Comfort Inn in Grantsville. Registration begins at 6 p.m., with the seminar slated for 6:15 p.m.

"Have you had horse nutrition questions and didn't know whom to ask? Here's your chance to get them answered," said an Ag Services spokesperson.

Dr. Martin Adams, equine nutritionist and horse feed sales manager, will be the speaker. He is also publication director for The Mane Points, a magazine for horse owners published quarterly by Southern States, and team coordinator of equine nutrition research for Cooperative Research Farms.

Before coming to Southern States, Adams was equine nutritionist for Seminole Feed in Ocala, Fla. He has also served on the animal science faculty at Louisiana Tech University. He holds two undergraduate degrees from Southwest Missouri State University (animal science, and wildlife conservation and management) and M.S. and Ph.D degrees in animal science from the University of Missouri-Columbia.

To sign up for the seminar or for additional information, persons may call 301-895-5183.

Grain Producers Are "Milking It" For All It's Worth

from the Maryland Grain Producers Association

Corn and milk have always had a great relationship (corn flakes would be awfully dry without a splash from dairy cows). But things are moving and shaking in the dairy aisle as corn growers turn up the heat for new and exciting products made from their golden grain.

America's Corn Belt will be debuting a new partnership between grain and dairy as Naturally Iowa LLC rolls out new milk bottles made from corn-based polylactic acid, or PLA. The half-gallon "grip" bottles are manufactured under Cargill Dow's NatureWorks® line of biodegradable plastics and offer consumers the power to cut down on landfill waste by recycling or composting the container.

"It is just amazing how the number of new products made from corn keeps expanding," said Lynne Hoot, executive director of the Maryland Grain Producers Association. "First, it was fabrics and now we are seeing lines of plastic products starting to become available to environmentally conscious consumers."

PLA is made by fermenting the starch in corn into lactic acid, which is then made into a form of plastic. This technology can create, out of corn and other grains, any product that currently uses crude oil as its origin, including textiles and plastics.

By finding new uses for domestically produced, renewable resources such as corn, Americans who purchase these products are not only supporting a cleaner environment and creating less dependency on foreign oil, they are insuring a future for farmers.

"Finding new uses for corn and other grains is important to all farmers, not just those whose crop will be used in making the new product," explains Jason Scott, a corn grower from Cambridge on the Eastern Shore. "While my corn may not be used for plastics, the total usage of corn will increase and help bring a higher price for my corn. That kind of economics keeps farming alive in Maryland."

While these milk bottles will hit shelves in Iowa within the coming weeks, products such as these, including straws, cups, lids, cutlery and trash bags, are available for purchase via the Internet at greenhome.com.

SIGN-UP UNDER WAY FOR TREE ASSISTANCE PROGRAM

Agriculture Secretary Mike Johanns has announced that sign-up began February 7 for the Tree Assistance Program (TAP), which provides financial relief to owners of eligible trees, bushes, vines, and forest land damaged by natural disasters. Funding for TAP was authorized by the Military Construction and Emergency Hurricane Supplemental Appropriations Act, 2005 (2005 Appropriations Act), and signed into law by President Bush last October.

"This legislation," said Johanns, "provides more than $3 billion in relief to farmers, ranchers, foresters and other agricultural producers who suffered damage due to severe weather in recent years."

TAP is the first of several programs to be launched in 2005 to help producers recover from natural disasters that occurred in 2003 and 2004. Those who may receive assistance under TAP are: owners of eligible trees, bushes, and vines from which an annual crop is produced for commercial purposes; eligible forest land owners who produce crops of timber for commercial purposes; and eligible pecan producers. Producers who received payments under Section 32 of the Act of August 24, 1935, for 2004 hurricane losses are ineligible to receive benefits under the general TAP and for forest timber. However, producers may receive both Section 32 payments and TAP payments for pecan rehabilitation. In addition, producers are ineligible for both Emergency Conservation Program and TAP assistance for the same losses.

TAP for Orchardists

Funding as necessary has been authorized for benefits under the 2005 Appropriations Act for losses which occurred during the period beginning December 1, 2003, and ending December 31, 2004, for eligible orchardists to replant trees, bushes, and vines that were grown to produce an annual crop. Benefits will not be prorated.

TAP for Forest Timber Producers

In addition, the 2005 Appropriations Act authorized $15 million for assistance to eligible producers who meet all requirements and produce periodic crops of forest timber for commercial use, and who suffered timber losses or damage during the period beginning December 1, 2003, and ending December 31, 2004. If all eligible claims filed during the application period are greater than the available funds, benefits will be prorated.

Job Workshop For Women Set At Library

JUDY CARBONE

The Ruth Enlow Library in Oakland is sponsoring a free workshop aimed at enabling women to "envision their ideal job." The event will be held at the library on Monday, Feb. 28, from noon to 1:30 p.m.

Judy A. Carbone, coordinator of career services and global education at Garrett College, will lead participants in discovering their interests, values, and skills, and learning how to use them to identify a satisfying career.

"Your ideal job allows you to be involved with interests about which you are passionate, honor your values, and use your most favorite skills," said Carbone. "Close your eyes. Can you picture the ideal job? How does it make you feel?"

The workshop will address "limiting beliefs that hold women back from realizing the ideal job vision, and empowering beliefs that move them forward in the direction of an authentic self."

Carbone has been a certified career/life coach and since 1985 has worked with people planning their careers, searching for employment, and "longing to live an authentic life."

In October 2004, she joined the staff at Garrett College, and from 1998-2004, she was affiliated with Working From the Heart Inc. (WFTH), at one point serving as one of its directors.

Before joining WFTH, Carbone was on the career services staff at George Mason University and, prior to that, the University of Maryland, College Park, and Maryville University, St. Louis, Mo.

She holds a master of education degree in general counseling from the University of Missouri-St. Louis and a B.A. degree in psychology from George Washington University.

In the summer of 1997, she completed a two-week workshop with Daniel Porot and Richard N. Bolles, authors of What Color is Your Parachute?

Carbone and her husband Ken live at Deep Creek Lake.

The workshop includes handouts and light refreshments. As a member of the American Association of University Women, Carbone will also share information about the organization's Second Chances for Women program, a conference designed to help women explore the option of continuing their education. The event will be held at Garrett College on March 19.

To register for the workshop, interested women may call the Oakland library at 301-334-3996 or stop by the circulation desk. Registration is not required but is suggested.

For more information persons may call Bonnie Winters at 301-334-3996 ext. 117, or email bonnie@relib.net.

THE RECIPE FOR SUCCESS!

Have you ever noticed the racks and stacks of colorful merchandise displayed near the checkout lane of your grocery or department store? Known as "impulse" displays, they catch your attention, making you consider one last selection "on impulse." This kind of merchandising works because it grabs your attention when you literally have your money in your hand.

Merchandising is important in real estate, too. When selling your home, choose an agent who understands the concept, and demonstrates a history of merchandising homes by positioning them favorably in the eyes of prospective buyers.

Three ingredients produce successful merchandising: 1) an attractive product, 2) the right price, and 3) exposure to buyers. First, you must offer an attractive product – a home in excellent condition. Your real estate agent provides tips to make your home stand out.

You must also price your home fairly. That means it must be at, or sometimes below, fair market value. Your agent researches local market information to help you arrive at the right price.

The third ingredient – exposure to buyers – is your agent's challenge. If you offer a home in dazzling condition at the right price, you may expect an aggressive marketing plan, targeting all potential buyers, as well as other real estate agents who bring their buyers. Ask your agent about merchandising your home. It really makes a difference.

If you'd like to sell your home, but feel "out of touch" with what's happening in real estate, give me a call at the office, or on my cell phone at 301-501-DALE

THERE'S ALWAYS SOMETHING TO DO at Deep Creek Lake, whether the water is lapping the shores or frozen two feet thick. These folks were having some fun with skis and parasails — paraskiing? They were able to attain some fairly impressive speed, although the wind had a mind of its own, first dragging the skiers swiftly across the ice, then dying down and leaving them still and stranded until the next gust. Give human beings some toys and extreme weather, and they will always find ways to have fun. Photo by John McEwen.

Rt. 219 Project Discussion Set In Grantsville

Maryland and Pennsylvania residents of the area to be impacted by the proposed north-south, four-lane highway slated to connect Interstate 68 to the existing Meyersdale bypass have scheduled a meeting for 7 p.m. tomorrow, Friday, Feb. 18, at the Grantsville fire hall. The Rt. 219 Citizens' Impact Group is hosting the meeting, which is open to the public, in order to gauge public perceptions and opinions of the project, and provide input to a Maryland State Highway official who will be in attendance.

"The mission of our group is to represent and protect rights, quality of life, and property values of our neighbors whose properties will be impacted by the expansion of Route 219 in both Maryland and Pennsylvania," said Dick Feigley, a spokesperson for the citizens' group. "We who live in both of these states feel the original area of consideration for development was too limited, and we will suggest alternate routes to those states' transportation departments, as well as state and federal legislators. We are working together to influence those who make these decisions."

Expected to be on hand for the meeting is Maryland SHA staffer Sue Rajan, the project manager for the Maryland portion of the Rt. 219 upgrade. The Rt. 219 Citizens' Impact Group will present Rajan with a petition bearing approximately

Hearing Date For Bear Bill Noted

The House Environmental Matters Committee will hold a public hearing on Del. George Edwards's HB 465 on Wednesday, Feb. 23, at 1 p.m. in Annapolis. The legislation proposes establishing a black bear population in each Maryland county.

The article about the bill in last week's Republican listed the wrong date for the hearing. The error is regretted.

Man Sentenced To 10 Years In DOC For Rape

A Mtn. Lake Park was sentenced this week in Garrett County Circuit Court for second-degree rape. Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced John Stewart Patton III to 10 years in the Division of Corrections.

Patton, 44, pleaded guilty to the charge in December, and a pre-sentence investigation was completed for the sentencing hearing.

He was arrested and charged by officers with the Garrett Bureau of Investigation last February after an investigation determined that Patton had sexual relations at his residence with a 15-year-old. According to the state's attorney, Patton supplied the youth with alcohol and prescription medication.

Following his release from prison, Patton will be required to register as a child sexual offender.

In other Circuit Court news, James Harold Weeks Jr., 44, Oakland, pleaded guilty to driving under the influence of alcohol. Related motor vehicle charges

Three Sentenced In Crellin Service Center Burglary

Three Terra Alta, W.Va., residents pleaded guilty in Garrett County Circuit Court Thursday to second-degree burglary of the Crellin Service Center. Rambo Coy Dixon, 19, Robert Carroll Hollobaugh Jr., 22, and Tiffany Rena Koch, 20, had been arrested by officers with the Garrett Bureau of Investigation in August 2004.

Garrett County sheriff's deputies and Oakland City Police had responded to the service center for a reported burglary in progress. Upon their arrival, the officers found that the burglars had fled, but located Koch waiting in a vehicle nearby.

With information from Koch, officers identified the other suspects, who were located in Terra Alta later that day and arrested.

All three received sentences of three years in the Division of Corrections. Two years of Koch's sentence were suspended, and 18 months of Dixon's and Hollobaugh's sentences were also suspended. All

Deer Park VFD Awarded Federal Grant Of $112,546

The Deer Park Community Volunteer Fire Department will receive a federal grant of $112,546 for new and upgraded equipment from the Department of Homeland Security's Office for Domestic Preparedness in cooperation with the U.S. Fire Administration. Congressman Roscoe Bartlett (R-6-Md.) made the announcement yesterday (Feb. 16).

"This grant is absolutely great," said Ronald Savage, department president and grant coordinator. "The membership will be very happy with the approval. Many people took time out of their busy schedules to achieve this, and we are grateful. This will enable us to equip our firefighters with brand new equipment such as breathing air packs to service the Deep Creek Lake resort area more effectively."

The funds will also be used to purchase a compressor for the air packs and a thermal imaging camera to increase the safety of fire-

LOCAL TEAM WILL HELP TSUNAMI-DISASTER ORPHANS – Faith Evangelical Free Church in Mtn. Lake Park will send a team of 12 local residents on a two-week mission to Sri Lanka next month. DCL Residents Oppose Sewer-Line Hookup

Eight Deep Creek Lake residents met with the Garrett County commissioners this week, voicing their opposition to possible mandatory hookup to the lake's public sewer system. The residents live below Marsh Hill, along Sandy Beach Lane and Stockslager Road.

Their properties were originally included in Phase II of the Deep Creek Lake Wastewater Treatment Plant expansion project. That phase is scheduled for 2010, according to Mark Tonkovich, director of Garrett County Department of Public Utilities.

Several Sandy Beach and Stockslager property owners, however, signed a petition several months ago requesting public sewer service. Because of the residents' petition, Public Utilities included a "trunk" line to their area in Phase I of the treatment plant expansion project, slated for completion in November 2006.

Not all the property owners in the area signed the petition, some of whom attended the meeting with the commissioners this week.

Homeowners are required by law to connect to pubic sewer/water systems whenever the lines abut their property. But the law also allows sanitary commissions to decide when residents have to hookup, said Bill Walton of Stockslager Road.

He asked the commissioners to consider putting his area back on the Phase II schedule.

"I think we can look at it (the project) and re-evaluate the time line," said Commissioner Ernie Gregg.

Sandy Beach Lane resident Howard Bell said the petition that was circulated did not include specifics about the project. In effect, residents reading the petition were simply asked to sign it if they wanted on the public sewer system.

However, since then, he said, those who did sign have learned more about the project and are concerned about costly connec-

Salary Increases Approved By GC Commissioners

The Garrett County commissioners this week unanimously approved seven recommendations recently made by the Garrett County Salary Study Commission. The decision increases the salaries of several elected local officials, but will not become effective until after the 2006 election.

The approved recommendations are as follows:

•Increase the county commissioners' annual salary from $30,000 to $32,500.

•Increase the sheriff's annual salary from $60,000 to $75,000.

•Increase the annual salary of all Board of Education members from $3,800 to $4,000.

•Increase the chief judge of the Orphans' Court salary from $2,000 to $4,500 and increase the associate judges' salary from $1,800 to $4,200, but eliminate their $40 per meeting expense payment.

•Establish the salary of the state's attorney, which is currently $75,000, to 80 percent of the prevailing annual salary of the District Court judge.

•Make no changes to the Board of Election supervisors' current compensation level, but add a $50 day stipend for "logic and accuracy testing" for all supervisors. Those compensations currently range between $2,200 and $2,800.

•Make no changes to the Liquor Board members' compensation level, which is currently $2,500.

The Salary Study Commission also recommended that a two-term limit be imposed for persons serving on commissioner-appointed boards. The commissioners, however, did not approve this recommendation.

Commissioner Dave Beard said there were several people who served boards very well, and that the commissioners felt it was important to be able to retain these people.

Commissioner Ernie Gregg concurred. "It would prohibit the commissioners from keeping people on a board who have been doing a good job," he said about setting a term limit.

Members of the Salary Study Commission met earlier this year and reviewed the salaries of officials in other Maryland counties and Garrett County department heads as a basis for comparison for their recommendations. They also interviewed the local officials whose salaries were being evaluated before making their final recommendations to the commissioners on Jan. 25.

In accordance with the provisions of Chapter 91-2 of the Code of Garrett County, the Salary Study

Md. Senate To Forward Slots Proposal; House Begins Debate

by Mike Torralba
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — The Maryland Senate moved closer Wednesday to legalizing slot machine gambling in the state, while a House committee heard familiar testimony from both sides of the debate.

"If there's something new that we haven't heard before, we'd like you to start with that," quipped House Ways and Means Committee Chairwoman Sheila Hixson, D-Montgomery, at the start of the hearing.

Last year, Hixson's committee buried the slots bill. Slots have found stronger support in the Senate, which is scheduled to vote on a revised measure today. Senate President Thomas V. Mike Miller Jr., D-Calvert, is a powerful proponent of slot machine approval, and the Senate has backed slots measures two consecutive years.

Gov. Robert Ehrlich, who introduced this year's bill, says slots are urgently needed to repair the state's aging public schools, and his measure would yield $100 million each year for school construction. Slots revenue also would fund the Geographic Cost of Education Index, which helps compensate school districts with higher operating costs and is part of the Thornton law for improving public schools.

Maryland's horse racing industry also could be saved with slots, Ehrlich said.

The governor did not attend the Ways and Means hearing, as he did last week's Senate Budget and Taxation Committee meeting.

Other administration heavy-hitters made the case for slots: four Cabinet secretaries, including Budget Secretary James "Chip" DiPaula Jr., as well as State Schools Superintendent Nancy Grasmick. DiPaula told lawmakers that legalizing slots is vital to Maryland.

"The question is not 'Are Marylanders going to play slot machines?'" he said. "It's only 'Where?'" Also supporting the bill were labor union members and racing industry workers and executives.

Slots opponents last week refused to attend last week's Senate committee hearing, saying the committee had become a rubber stamp for the bills. But they were at the House committee hearing.

Man Receives Three Years For Burglary, Theft

A former Frostburg resident entered guilty pleas this week in Garrett County Circuit Court. John Edward Bell, 51, was subsequently sentenced to two years in the Division of Corrections for fourth-degree burglary and to one year in the DOC for misdemeanor theft. The sentences are to run concurrently.

The burglary plea resulted from Bell's arrest last summer after persons visiting the Deep Creek Lake State Park reported to personnel that they had observed Bell at the "honor" money collection boxes, appearing to remove money that had been deposited, according to the state's attorney.

Bell was located in the park, and officers found in his possession an item that had been adapted in a way that it could be used to remove the money from the boxes.

The misdemeanor theft plea was for shoplifting a pair of shoes from the Four All Seasons Gift Shoppe, located along Garrett Highway, last July. Store employees had observed Bell place the shoes in the waistband of his pants and leave the store without paying for them.

Maryland State Police located Bell walking along the highway with the shoes still located as the witness had described.

Arrest Made In Fatal Motor Vehicle Accident

Following the completion of a motor vehicle collision investigation and after receiving medical lab results, Bryan Chad Hinebaugh, 21, Oakland, was arrested for his involvement with the Dec. 18 fatal motor vehicle accident that occurred on Hutton Road and claimed the life of Amanda Marie Riley, 16, Terra Alta, W.Va.

Hinebaugh was charged with negligent homicide by motor vehicle while under the influence, negligent homicide by motor vehicle while impaired, driving while under the influence of alcohol, and driving while impaired by alcohol.

He was later released, awaiting trial, on a $10,000 unsecured bond.

FLYBOYS, a book written by James Bradley, presents a shockingly vivid account of the fates of U.S. Navy and Marine pilots and crewmen who were shot down and captured by the Japanese during World War II. Bradley, whose father was one of the U.S. soldiers who raised the flag at Iwo Jima, interviewed several of the pilots who miraculously survived being shot down, and some of the relatively few who survived their experience in captivity. One of those survivors interviewed was former President George H.W. Bush. Another was Charles Brown of Kingwood, W.Va., who is pictured above left seated with his radioman/tail gunner Jack Richards. Brown and Richards were shot down over Tokyo 60 years ago yesterday, Feb. 16, 1945, and unlike the more fortunate President Bush, spent the next 6½ months in Japanese prison camps. See feature story on page A-5 to learn how Brown lived through the experience to talk about it today.

CDS, Weapons Found During I-68 Traffic Stop

Maryland State Police troopers discovered suspected marijuana and several weapons in a car stopped for speeding and an equipment violation near Finzel Saturday morning.

The 11:13 a.m. stop led to charges for two passengers, Marianne Elizabeth Phillips, 20, and an unidentified 17-year-old, both of New Bedford, Mass. When a prescription bottle with its label removed was observed in the Mitsubishi, Phillips reportedly admitted to the trooper that she was in possession of marijuana. The juvenile, who was seated in the back seat, was found to be in possession of an ax, hatchet, machete, star knife, shank, numchucks, switchblade, butterfly knife, dagger, and alcohol.

Phillips was charged with possession of marijuana, and the juvenile was charged with possession of deadly weapons and alcohol. The juvenile also possessed Nazi memorabilia, police said. The youth was released to a guardian.

Pa. Man Jailed For DUI After SUV Gets Stuck

A Pennsylvania man whose sport utility vehicle got stuck in the front yard of a Friendsville residence was arrested early Saturday morning for driving under the influence (DUI) after he allegedly tried to flee, according to the McHenry barrack of the Maryland State Police.

Kevin Charles Kucera, 23, McKeesport, was observed by a trooper at approximately 1:40 a.m. behind the wheel of a Chevrolet Blazer that was stuck in front of a Friendsville Road home located north of Maple Street. Kucera allegedly attempted to flee the scene before being taken into custody on charges of negligent driving and DUI. He was subsequently released to a family member.

Sponsorship Spots Still Available For Deep Creek Dunk

Sponsorship opportunities still exist for businesses that want to be part of the Maryland State Police Deep Creek Dunk that will be held Saturday, Feb. 26.

"This is a great opportunity to have your company's name associated with this wonderful endeavor," said Garrett County Chamber of Commerce president Charlie Ross. "Right now four of our athletes are competing in Nagano, Japan."

More than 400 people will take a quick dip in the icy water at the 7th annual Maryland State Police Deep Creek Dunk, said Ross. Whether law enforcement officers, business or civic leaders, he noted, they will be "Freezin' for a Reason!" The money raised benefits athletes of Special Olympics Maryland in Allegany and Garrett counties.

The Chamber of Commerce is a presenting sponsor of the Deep Creek Dunk, along with Uno's, WKHJ and 92.3 The Train, Long & Foster Resort Rentals, and Wisp Deep Creek Mountain Resort.

"Although much of the promotional material is already in distribution, we will make sure your name is out there," said Pam Trickett of WKHJ.

Four sponsorship levels are available, with all having full promotional rights to use the Special Olympics Maryland and MSP Deep Creek Dunk marks and logos.

A silver sponsor providing $1,000 will receive public address announcements throughout the event, full promotional rights, an opportunity to display company banners at the event, four complimentary Dunk sweatshirts, sponsor recognition in print advertising, logo recognition of the web site somd.org, mention in the annual newsletter, and an appreciation award to display.

A $500 bronze sponsor's benefit package includes full promotional rights, public address announcements throughout the event, an opportunity to display company banners at the event, two complimentary Dunk sweatshirts, sponsor recognition in print advertising, logo of the web site, mention in the annual newsletter, and an appreciation award.

A $5,000 presenting sponsor will have its business logo integrated into the events logo and displayed on 2005 Deep Creek Dunk items, such as the back of the event sweatshirt and Dunk T-shirt. Other benefits include category exclusivity, the corporate name displayed in the Dunk brochure, and spotlight recognition in the annual newsletter.

The corporate name will be used with "2005 MSP Deep Creek Dunk presented by....." in radio spots and press releases, displayed on the Dunk banner, and included on the web site. The business logo will also be prominently displayed on the full-color Dunk poster, which is displayed in law enforcement offices and business throughout western Maryland.

A gold sponsor provides $2,500 and will also have category exclusivity. Most of the same benefits apply as mentioned above.

Other sponsors of the Dunk are Arrowhead Condominiums, Harley Davidson Cycles of Maryland, Long & Foster, Bear Claw Snow Tubing Park, Tub Tech, Saucy Salamander, Seattle's Best Coffee, Sounds Fun Entertainment, Mac's Miracle Fund, Baltimore Chapter HOG, and Coleman Spas.

Anyone interested in becoming a presenting or gold sponsor for the 2006 Dunk may Mark Bendann 800-541-7544.

Driver, Passengers Injured In Single-Vehicle Accident

The driver and two passengers were injured when their vehicle overturned on the snow-covered road early Thursday morning, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Corey R. Sisler, 22, Friendsville, lost control of his 1994 Dodge truck on Trap Run Road, causing it to overturn several times. Sisler and two occupants, Daniel W. King, 23, Friendsville, and Derick R. DeWitt, 22, Friendsville, were treated at Garrett County Memorial Hospital for injuries.

In a separate incident, a juvenile was charged with failure to reduce speed to avoid a collision and driving without a license following an accident at the intersection of Shenandoah Ave. and Paull Street in Loch Lynn Thursday morning.

According to police, the juvenile's vehicle struck a vehicle operated by Merlyn P. Hardesty, 34, Loch Lynn, that was stopped at the intersection. No injuries were reported.

In another accident, three persons were transported following a two-vehicle accident at the intersection of Rt. 135 and G Street in Mtn. Lake Park Friday morning.

Chad Cerito of Mtn. Lake Park was cited for failure to reduce speed during dangerous highway conditions. Also transported for medical evaluation were Dennis Stottlemeyer II and Dennis Stottlemeyer III, both of Mtn. Lake Park.

Southern Rescue Squad and Oakland firefighters also responded to the scene.

Traffic Stop Leads To Drunk Driving Charges

A traffic stop on Zeddock Miller Road near Glendale Road Sunday led to drunk driving charges, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Rafe Festekjian, 24, Springfield, Va., was charged with driving under the influence (DUI), driving while impaired, DUI per se, along with the traffic charges he was initially stopped for, police said.

Tightening Teen Driving Laws...

There is always contention, bickering, and disagreement between both sides of the Democrat-Republican political aisle during a state legislative session, the level of which is even greater when one party controls the administrative branch and the other holds a majority in the legislature. Such, of course, is the case right now in Maryland.

There are, though, a few things on which there is bipartisan support, and one of those this year is on proposed legislation to make teen driving laws more stringent.

Motor vehicle crashes are the #1 cause of death for our nation's teens, and the statistics on teen driving are startling. In 2003 there were 651 Marylanders killed in vehicle crashes, 146 of whom (22%) involved drivers between the ages of 16 and 20 — just a four-year age span accounting for over one in five deaths. Further, almost half of those young drivers involved in fatal crashes were not wearing seat belts. Over 10 percent of the fatal crashes involving drivers 16-20 occurred between midnight and 4 a.m.

Governor Ehrlich's proposal would cause drivers younger than 21 who are convicted of driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs to have their licenses revoked for three years, or until they turned 21, whichever was longer. His plan would cause a 90-day suspension of permits for provisional drivers caught not wearing seatbelts or driving during curfew hours (midnight to 5 a.m.), and would extend by two months the time that teenagers are required to hold learner's permits, which is currently four months.

William Bronrott, a Democratic delegate from Montgomery County, also wants to prohibit drivers with provisional licenses from transporting non-family passengers younger than 18 during the first six months of the 18-month provision period. He wants to increase the supervised driving hours for those with learner's permits from 40 to 60, and, perhaps most importantly, he wants to ban the use of cellular telephones by drivers with learner's permits or provisional licenses, except in the case of an emergency.

The state of Maryland was the first to institute graduated licensing to help teens gain more valuable experience before being issued an unrestricted license. Many other states have since followed suit. We sincerely hope that most or all of the aforementioned proposals are enacted into law this year.

Some of them should also be enacted for drivers of all ages and experience, particularly the automatic three-year revocation of a license for DUI/DWI on the first offense, and the banning of cell phone use while driving. The traffic-accident statistics are really beginning to mount, for drivers of all ages, since cell phones have become so commonplace.

To the Editor:

This week, February 13-19, is Children of Alcoholics Week. In the United States alone, 1 in 4 children are exposed to a family alcohol problem while many others are affected by family drug problems. Families with alcohol and/or drug addicted parents or caretakers have higher levels of conflicts such as domestic violence and child abuse than other families.

Lack of adequate parenting, family communication skills, and poor home management can leave these children without good role models. Many times these children are expected to take on responsibilities that their parent should be doing. These young people are often at an increased risk for emotional problems, lower school grades, and more absences from school.

If you are a child of an alcoholic or drug abuser or you know of a child who lives with this problem, there is help available. You can get support from a non-using friend or relative, your teacher, a support group such as ALANON or ALATEEN, along with your faith community.

We can also help. Give the Garrett County Health Department Substance Abuse Program a call at 301-334-7670. Everything we discuss will be kept confidential. Always remember the seven C's. YOU didn't cause it. YOU can't cure it. You can't control it. BUT you can take better care of yourself by communicating your feelings, making healthy choices, and celebrating yourself.

Thank you,

To the Editor:

When I was a young employee paying into Social Security (SS), I often wondered why there was a cap on the earned income that one was taxed on. But I reasoned that everyone earning up to the cap was covered by SS and the required money to cover all these folks was obtained with the specified cap. However, later when both the SS tax rate and the cap were raised it occurred to me that putting on a cap required the SS tax rate to raise whenever more funds were required. In fact, if only the cap had been raised sometimes there would have been no need to raise the SS tax rate. Also, having a cap on the amount of earned income that one is taxed on means that some folks pay this tax on all their earned income, while others only pay on their earned income up to the cap. If there is to be a tax on earned income, it seems to me that the only equitable way is to tax all citizens on all their earned income.

Now we are told that the SS system will have serious financial problems in the foreseeable future if changes are not made to the system. We are also told that if the cap were completely removed the serious financial problems in the foreseeable future would disappear. So if the cap were removed, allowing all wage earners to pay SS taxes on all their earned income (thereby bringing equality to all U.S. citizens with regard to paying SS taxes), the SS problem would be solved.

Why will the Bush administration not allow the high wage earners to join with the rest of us in paying their fair share of SS taxes?

To the Editor:

One of the great Green Bay Packer football stars of the late 1960s and early 1970s was linebacker Lionel Aldridge. An All-Pro, he helped lead the Packers to the Super Bowl. He later became a sportscaster, but then developed schizophrenia. Voices and suspicious thoughts took over his mind.

He sought treatment for his "nerves," which failed; then shortly became one of our nation's homeless. After two years, he ended up in a Milwaukee shelter and was recognized. Although extremely psychotic, he agreed to hospitalization. Powerful antipsychotic medications, his football training under Vince Lombardi, his faith in God, and study of the Holy Scriptures are what he attributes to his recovery.

After 12 years of treatment, he re-entered the work force as activities director for a private psychiatric hospital in Wisconsin. About his experience with efforts to recover and return to society, he said, "First you have to get well in your own mind; then you have to get well in other people's minds."

It's been my personal experience, however, that other people won't let you do so! Stigma toward the mentally ill remains pervasive in American society. Relatives, acquaintances, co-workers, teachers, and church members will always consider you mentally ill, even though you exhibit no symptoms and haven't for years. You are labeled for life!

If work incentive programs like the Social Security "Ticket to Work" program and state affirmative action programs that hire individuals with mentally illnesses are to be at all humane, they need to do something about stigma in the work force.

The Maryland Mental Hygiene Administration and On Our Own of Maryland developed the Anti-Stigma Project about 10 years ago to address with this problem. However, as long as their workshops remain voluntary, they are just "singing to the choir." The volunteers usually know about stigma. It's the employees making fun of the trainings, the trainees, and patients who need educated! We must have mandatory stigma awareness trainings in facilities that treat and/or employ people with mental illnesses.

Efforts are being made in federal and state governments to have in-services on cultural awareness. However, anti-stigma workshops remain voluntary or don't even exist in these facilities. Sigma just adds more unjust degradation and suffering to demoralizing, horrendous illnesses. Dr. Martin Luther King, speaking about the injustices of prejudice, said, "Injustice, anywhere, is a threat to justice everywhere."

To the Editor:

The ACLU has threatened to sue public schools if the following two new policies to insure complete separation of church and state in our public schools are not immediately implemented: (1) NAME (Non Abhorrent Moniker Exchange) and (2) RAR (Religion Avoidance Routes):

First, the new NAME program must be instituted with the 2005-6 school year. "To prevent anyone from being offended by religious names and to insure absolute separation of church and state in our public schools, all children must have a mandatory--but voluntary--name change upon admission in our public schools," explained the ACLU's Ms. P.C. Macher.

"Obviously, since children named Christian, Mohammed or Moses are going to be mutually offensive to one another–and to atheists in general; and, since it is additionally illegal to promote religion and allow the very mention of their names in a government school because it violates the establishment clause of the First Amendment, their religious names have got to go!"

Macher continued, "Children will have to voluntarily secularize their names—with parental assistance, of course," said Macher. She went on to explain, "Public school children have one of three options: (1) Go by their initials only – i.e. the name Mohammed bin Ali would be changed to MbA. A second youngster with the same name or initials would be called MbA2, and with a third as MbA3, etc. (2) Religious names must be letter-randomized : David would become Dvaid, Divad, or Advid, etc… Mark would be Kram, Armk, or Mrka, etc. (3) Non-compliant students—those who do not select a NAME name–will be called by the last four digits of their SSI number."

"Second," Macher stated, "RAR (Religion Avoidance Routes) for school buses must be implemented with the 2005-6 school year, as well. Children riding school buses are having religion crammed down their throats by riding past churches, mosques and temples. Especially egregious are those houses of worship with message board signs out front. Public school buses on public roads must not be used as a religious tool! So, either the windows on the bus must be blackened or bus routes must be routed to avoid a religious drive-by."

Macher illustrated one such route on a map, "By simply going the wrong way down this one way street, through the McDonald's parking lot, down this country lane, and then by cutting across this open field, the bus route is made religion-safe."

Gotcha! However, isn't it sad that I was able to make you think that NAME and RAR could even possibly be true? The blatant bigotry of the ACLU must be stopped! Let's encourage our school and government officials to fight back. Or, let's vote the public servants out at the next election.

fighters and their capability to rescue people in dangerous environments.

"This $112,546 federal grant to the Deer Park Community Volunteer Fire Department is part of the federal government's effort to equip our nation's rescue personnel," Bartlett said. "Firefighters give their time and energy and put their lives in harm's way to protect us. After Sept. 11, 2001, they also know they might face the need to respond to terrorist attacks. The improved protective equipment for Deer Park's firefighters that will be purchased with this grant money will improve the capability of Deer Park's firefighters to respond to emergencies and protect the lives and property of everyone in Garrett County, residents and tourists alike."

The Assistance for Firefighters Grant Program is administered by the Department of Homeland Security's Office for Domestic Preparedness in cooperation with the United States Fire Administration, and assists rural, urban, and suburban fire departments throughout the United States.

These funds are used by the nation's firefighters to increase the effectiveness of firefighting operations, firefighter health and safety programs, new fire apparatus, emergency medical service programs, and fire prevention and safety programs.

LE METRO

Standing behind the driver of the underground train I watched the headlights reveal contours of the man-made cave. When a train came from the other direction, I first thought that it was headed right for us. Its lights were in my eyes, but the track swept it safely to one side, and we eased our way into the next station.

That privileged view of the Metropolitain, the great Parisian subway, was not given to me because of any prior arrangement or through a discrete bribe. It was the result of a "social action" undertaken as one of 400 mini-strikes announced for this year.

France is one of the least union organized countries in the industrialized world, but it must be one of the most effectively organized. Astonishingly few people can shut down a major segment of transportation or industry. In military terms, if the old-fashioned strike is analogous to carpet bombing, these mini-strikes are analogous to precision bombing.

What emerges from these well planned exercises is the French determination that their country should function. The many thousands (or even millions?) of people affected pull together. That bored looked which the French wear in hapless permanence suddenly takes on the cast of stoic patience.

One contribution of the train drivers in these moments of solidarity is that they admit passengers into their exclusive space. Never mind that this is a fundamental violation of security. The French do take security precautions, but they have not been rendered paranoid by events in the larger world. In any case, I was one of the privileged few admitted to the cab. Who can ask about anti-American sentiment after that?

The love affair between man and caves is an old one. The first examples of human art are to be found in caves, miraculously painted thousands of years before the creation of the world. At Lascaux there are primitive paintings. In the Paris Metro there are posters hot off the printing presses. Cave art, it seems, is here to stay.

The romantic picture of our ancestors has them living in caves. How else could the Flintstones be possible? Once humans learned how to dig, they began fashioning dwellings or parts of dwellings that resembled caves. The French word for cellar is "cave." A tunnel, after all, is nothing other than a man-made cave used as a passageway.

In Kiev, Ukraine, I visited a vast monastery comprised of underground tunnels. It may be that the stable of Bethlehem was a cave, and certainly the garden tomb was one. Sometimes we create caves in order to find God and sometimes just to find our way across town.

Given the extensive warren of tunnels for the Metro in Paris (and similar subways in other cities) it might be argued that the Darwinians have it wrong. If the monkeys are our cousins, why don't our primordial instincts lead us to swing from trees? Instead of apes, perhaps we have ascended from rabbits.

In fact, the Metro is home to more people than one might imagine. My impression is that when the doors are locked sometime after midnight there are many folk, with and without bedrolls, who sleep there until the doors open the next morning.

The Metro even provides a continuous series of concert halls. This status is official enough that the regulars have badges which state that they are authorized to be there. The concerts take place in the connecting corridors and in the train cars themselves. There is jazz, classical, folk (from many lands) and gypsy music in abundance. The gypsies play every conceivable instrument including the boombox.

My most memorable Metro concert was by a woman of African descent (French-African, Jamaican, Afro-American – who knows?). She gave the finest rendition I have ever heard – a haunting, intoxicating rendition – of "No woman, no cry."

Where there is cave man, there is cave woman too.

Plato tells his own story of the cave. In the land of the cave dwellers, life is lived in the shadows. No one ever sees things as they really are, only as they seem to be in the distortions cast by images placed in front of a light.

One person finds his way above ground, and sees the world in the sunlight, the world as it is. His folly is to return underground and to try to tell his fellow cave dwellers what life is like lived in the reality of the light. The story does not have a happy ending.

We think we know why we build these caves. For trains, we say, for transportation. Isn't it odd how much of life is recreated there? The people in charge of the trains struggle to keep up with all the rest of life that keeps on invading that space created, we think, for one reason.

Isn't it odd that virtues so difficult to find above ground, like endless patience, seem to come natural underground? Isn't it odd that no mini-strike is quite as effective as the ones undertaken in the caves of the Metro?

"Ugh," says the cave man to his wife. "Ugh, ugh," she says in return. Were those the first words, or shall they be the last, or merely the half-awake daily farewell of two commuters parting in the Paris Metro?

Charles Brown Says "I Am A Survivor... Not A Hero"

Shot Down, Captured By Japanese 60 Years Ago

by Don Sincell

Some of the most extreme horrors of warfare and most extraordinary displays of courage are brought to almost painful light in James Bradley's book Flyboys — A True Story of Courage (© 2003), which offers a vivid account of American flyers who were shot down by Japanese anti-aircraft weaponry during World War II.

Bradley, who also wrote the #1 bestseller Flags of Our Fathers and whose father was one of the men who raised the U.S. flag on Iwo Jima, traveled to Japan and spoke to Japanese veterans, and he spent months obtaining and perusing untapped, classified government documents. He interviewed several of those U.S. bomber pilots and crewmen who miraculously survived their ordeal, and the friends and relatives of those who did not. Among the lucky pilots he spoke to were President George H.W. Bush and Charlie Brown of Kingwood, W.Va.

Yesterday — Wednesday, Feb. 16 — marked 60 years to the day that Brown, a native and lifelong resident of Kingwood, was shot down over Tokyo on his very first bombing mission and subsequently spent the next 6½ months in captivity. He was classified by the Japanese not as a prisoner of war, but as a war criminal, which generally meant that the treatment meted out by his captors would be significantly more brutal. He was 20 years old.

As Bradley states in his book, Brown had seen airplanes only in newspapers and movie reels as a youth, but he said that was enough to convince him that he wanted to enlist in the Navy's flying program in August of 1942, just a couple months after graduating from Kingwood High School.

"When I signed up, they told me that they didn't need me right away and that they would call me when they did," he said. "So I enrolled in Potomac State College. But they called me right after my first semester of study there."

Brown reported for duty in February 1943 to a school in Mississippi where he learned to fly Piper Cubs. After two months he was transferred to the University of Georgia, where he spent three months, moved on to pre-flight school in Hutchinson, Kansas, and then to Corpus Christi, Texas, for six months, where he earned his commission as an ensign.

His next stop was Florida, where he was trained to fly the Navy's SBD Dauntless dive bomber. Then it was on to Great Lakes Naval Air Station where he learned to land on aircraft carriers on Lake Michigan. He was evidently becoming one of the most skilled pilots in the Navy.

"They were having a war bond sale in Milwaukee, and we put on an air show," he said. "During the show I landed on a carrier while it was backing up. Now a lot of pilots won't believe that, but I know of three of us who did it."

Brown was then sent to California to deport aboard the U.S. Randolph carrier, but at the last minute his air group — called Crommelin's Thunderbirds — was sent to Astoria, Oregon, to learn to fly a new bomber, the SB2C Curtis Helldiver. Then after a couple months of dive bombing practice in the California desert and over the Salton Sea, Brown's air group left California on January 20, 1945, headed for Hawaii and finally on to Ulithi, which is a group of about three dozen small islets located 360 miles southwest of Guam.

"After a couple days in Ulithi, the whole task force headed for the start of the Iwo Jima campaign," he said. "It covered the Pacific as far as you could see in any direction. I think there were 16 carriers, plus I don't know how many battleships and cruisers.

"Our job was to hit the Tokyo area on Feb. 16-17 to get rid of aircraft that might go out to help defend Iwo Jima, because that campaign was going to begin on Feb. 19. Those of us in the dive bombers were to hit the factories, mainly aircraft assembly plants.

"So on that afternoon of Feb. 16, I went into my dive and, just that quick, got hit by anti-aircraft fire. The engine caught fire and I knew we were going down.

"I remember that, when the engine quit and flames were coming back, the first thing I wanted to do was get rid of the bombs, so I stayed in my dive and dropped them. I was told later that I had a direct hit. I just wanted to get rid of them!"

When asked if he then baled out, he said, "Well, I couldn't get all of my straps unhooked in time. I saw an inland lake up ahead, and I told my crewman, Jack Richards, (rear gunner and radioman) that we were going to ride it in.

"I went into my dive and, just that quick, got hit by anti-aircraft fire. The engine caught fire and I knew we were going down."

"I was able to set it down on the water. The plane was still on fire, so I first threw all of my naval charts into the water. When I finally got unbuckled, I looked around and there was Jack already in the raft waiting for me."

A civilian came out in a row boat, picked up the two flyers, and took them to shore, where another civilian took a swing at Brown with a club.

"If he had hit me, it would have killed me," he says in Bradley's book.

"A few minutes later, a vehicle pulled up with a big star on its side," Brown continued. "We were surprised to see two Russian officers get out. They asked us if we were Americans, we said yes, and without another word, they just got in their car and drove away. It was very odd."

Moments later Japanese soldiers arrived, blindfolded Brown and Richards, tied their hands behind their backs, and started marching them down a dirt road.

"We would stop every so often so the women could kick us," Brown said, adding, "but keep in mind, we had just been bombing them shortly before that, and they were pretty angry. Anyone, including Americans, would have responded the same way."

Brown and Richards were taken into an office and interrogated.

"They worked me over pretty good there," he said. "They would ask questions, I would respond with my name, rank, and serial number, and then they would hit me. They knocked me off the chair and up against a wall. Then one of them stood on me, with his feet on my thighs. He put the barrel of his rifle in my groin area, and every time I responded with 'I don't know,' he would shove on it. Needless to say, it was pretty painful.

"I would respond with my name, rank, and serial number, and then they would hit me."

"They kept asking me what I knew about 'Spruance,' and at the time I had no idea what they were talking about. Later I realized they were asking me about Admiral Raymond Spruance, who was a key commander for the Navy operations."

The frustrated interrogators finally stood Brown up and walked him outside.

"I remember that it was really cold. We walked down some steps and then the guard shoved me down on my knees and pushed my shoulders forward so that my head was parallel to the ground," he said. "I thought, 'oh, boy, this is it.' I had seen the picture of an Australian pilot being beheaded, so I figured they were getting ready to flop my head off too."

When asked to describe just what that kind of terror a person must experience just seconds before being executed, Brown said, "Surprisingly, I felt this wave of calmness come over me. I was more scared when they were beating on me than when I thought my head was coming off. All I remember thinking was, I hope my parents don't find out how I died."

"...the guard shoved me down on my knees and pushed my shoulders forward so that my head was parallel to the ground. I thought, 'oh boy, this is it.'"

Brown mentioned that Flyboys author Bradley notes in the book that, when a human being is placed in such a position of terror, the brain automatically releases endorphins as a protection mechanism. The chemicals create a sense of tranquility.

Obviously, Brown's captors did not go through with what seemed to be the inevitable.

"There was a lot of conversation going back and forth between two of them," he said. "I thought they were just sort of counting down to when they would do the deed. But then, for some reason, there was a moment of silence and I was suddenly pushed back on my heels. To this day I have no idea why they didn't kill me.

"A few minutes later I heard a train coming, and they put me and some others on the train," he said. "We were taken to military intelligence headquarters in Tokyo."

"All I remember thinking was, I hope my parents don't find out how I died."

Brown said that treatment was also rough there, where he was placed in a cell with a young Korean and an older Japanese man.

"The Japanese fellow never said a single word the whole two weeks that I was there," he said. "He just sat there. The Korean man informed me through charades and a very little bit of English that he knew that he had been arrested for fighting with some soldiers at a movie theatre.

"I remember that it was really cold. There was no heat in the cell, and there was about four inches of snow on the ground."

After about two weeks, Brown was taken to Ofuna POW camp outside Yokohama, where about 80 prisoners were kept in individual six-by-eight-foot cells. However, Charlie and the other Flyboys who were housed there were not classified as prisoners of war, but war criminals for bombing the mainland.

"The Geneva Convention rules didn't apply to us," he said.

The Japanese had little regard for prisoners, but in his book Bradley says that the Flyboys were "the lowest of the low."

"We were interrogated every day for a half hour or so, sometimes for an hour," Charlie said. "One guy would be real nice, but if we didn't give him the answer he wanted, the other guy would get rough.

"We were told back at Pearl Harbor that, if we got captured, and things got really bad for us, we were allowed to talk about our past and our training, but nothing about radio signals, frequencies, and equipment. I know I lied to them a heck of a lot."

If a prisoner demonstrated some kind of behavior that was considered a violation, he would receive special punishment. Brown said in the book that one of the worst was having to stand with their hands up against a fence. "They'd take a club that was a little longer than a baseball bat, and hit us as hard as they could against our buttocks and hamstrings. After the third swing, your muscles would tie up in a knot, and you'd have to crawl back to your cell. It took hours for that to go away."

He said that the interrogators he faced were both educated in the United States and spoke very good English.

He noted that for 4½ months he couldn't talk to anybody. "Oh, we managed to whisper to each other a little when the guards would turn away," he said.

Because food was scarce even for the Japanese troops, the POWs received very little, and the Flyboys even less.

During his incarceration Brown went from 140 pounds (the Flyboys could not weigh more than about 155 pounds because of the size of the cockpits in the dive bombers) to 97 pounds.

"They would bring us something like soup, but it was basically this boiled barley broth. If you got a piece of potato peel in it, you would be real happy," he said.

"Soon after I got there, I found a worm in some greens that were in that soup. I picked it up and threw it out into the hall, and two guys grabbed it immediately. It would be the last worm that I would throw away."

"The Geneva Convention rules didn't apply to us."

Among the other prisoners at Ofuna at the time was Black Squadron member Pappy Boynton, considered the top ace in the Pacific who was later a recipient of the Congressional Medal of Honor. However, Brown was not overly complimentary of the legendary ace.

"The thing we all noticed right away about Pappy was that he was plump, while all of the rest of us were skin and bones," he said. "Somehow he got a job working in the kitchen, and later he took the role of senior officer in charge at the barracks where we special prisoners were kept. He ended up having a private room, which would normally be a guard's room."

When asked if he thought Boynton was "working the system" to try to protect himself and his fellow prisoners, Brown said, "I'm pretty sure that Pappy was looking after Pappy, period."

Brown was moved on July 1, 1945, to Omori prison camp, which was on a manmade island in Tokyo Bay, and he remained there until the war was over a little over a month later.

Boynton had been moved there earlier, and unbeknownst to Brown, so had Jack Richards.

"I had heard when I was at Ofuna that my 'crewman' had been transferred, but I really didn't know where," Brown said, "and then one day when I was walking across the yard outside the prison barrack I looked up and saw a familiar face looking back at me through a window at the opposite end of the same barrack from where I was kept. It was Jack. Of course, I couldn't wave to him or go over to him since a guard was right beside me, but I gave him a little nod to let him know that I recognized him."

"...I looked up and saw a familiar face... It was Jack."

He would not see Richards again until they were both stateside.

"Most of us figured that we would be executed if Japan lost the war, because that's what they (the guards) told us. I really didn't think I would survive," he said.

When asked if prayer were a daily ritual for him, Brown admitted that he is not an overly religious man. "I sort of 'slip up' in that area, but I do remember praying that my mother and father would survive until I got home," he said.

"My 21st birthday was August 6, 1945, the day we dropped the bomb on Hiroshima."

He is quoted in the book by Bradley: "We had heard from an American prisoner shot down on August 7 that the Americans had dropped a bomb on a city and wiped it out. We thought he was mentally off.

"On August 14th, the guards lined up in front of the office. We could tell from their demeanor the war was over. First they started drinking. One drunken guard tied to kill himself. He sat down on a step and stuck a knife in his stomach. They took him off to the hospital in an ambulance."

After the war was declared over, it took about two more weeks for Brown and his fellow prisoners to be rescued, a time during which he remembers very little. He was told later by doctors that a vitamin A deficiency was the main cause of his loss of memory for those two weeks. He spent about a week at Bethesda Naval Hospital before returning home.

"My 21st birthday was August 6, 1945, the day we dropped the bomb on Hiroshima."

For all of those months, Brown was classified MIA (missing in action), and his extremely worried and frustrated parents would repeatedly telephone the State Department and the Pentagon to see if there were any news about their son.

"Of course, every time they would call they were told there was nothing new to report, but they kept calling," Brown said.

Soon after Brown was finally reunited with his family in Kingwood, an invitation arrived in the mail for his parents to come to a memorial service for their MIA son. It was to be held in Washington, D.C.

"The U.S. Randolph (aircraft carrier) was going to be there, and the skipper was going to throw a wreath for each one of us into the harbor," Brown said.

"My mother said that she didn't want to go, but my father, brother, sister, and I decided to attend. Unfortunately, we got stuck in traffic in D.C. and didn't make it to the ceremony. It was really kind of funny — getting tied up in traffic and missing your own memorial service!"

But someone Brown knew well did make the ceremony — his old crewman Jack Richards.

"I talked to Jack later, and he said that when he got there he told them that he was obviously not dead, and that I had also survived, but they told him it was just too late to change the ceremony, so they threw the wreaths in the harbor for us anyway."

Brown still has a copy of the memorial service program among his memorabilia, which contains his name and those of the other "honored dead."

Charlie said that he did keep in touch with Richards over the years, but his old friend developed a drinking problem and his marriage failed. He died in 1995.

"Jack had a pretty tough time most of his adult life," Brown said. "It's hard to say if his experience in captivity was the cause of any of his problems, but it's certainly possible."

Brown, on the other hand, came home to Kingwood, returned to college at West Virginia University, went on to law school there, and had a long, successful career as a lawyer. He also met wife Betty while in college. They are the parents of three children: Janna, who is an audiologist and resident of Oakland; Nan, who is a lawyer in Wheeling; and son Lewis, who is a 911 dispatcher for Preston County.

When asked for his reaction to last year's prisoner abuse scandal in Iraq, Brown contemplated for a few moments and said that, while he does not condone the actions of our soldiers in that situation, he understands how it happens.

"First of all, it is certainly nothing new," he said. "In every war in the history of mankind, that kind of thing has gone on, and it will continue to go on.

"You know, American society has a sports mentality. Fairness and good sportsmanship are important to most people. But the fact of the matter is, those things simply do not apply to warfare."

Brown was asked if he harbors bitterness toward the Japanese and if he has been able to forgive his captors. He said that two subsequent trips to Japan helped him rid himself of anger and prejudice toward the Japanese.

"...the others were really just doing what they were ordered to do. And again, it was war. There was plenty of brutality on both sides."

"The Rotary club here in Kingwood surprised me one night in 1961 by giving me two airline tickets to Japan to attend a Rotary International Convention over there," he said. "They told me that I should go back to Tokyo to actually see the city, since I didn't see much of it when I was there the first time. I was hesitant at first to accept them, but I did, and Betty and I went. We were treated very well and enjoyed our time with the people.

"Then in 1995, I was the leader of a group of young people on a Rotary study exchange team that went to Japan. We spent a month this time and, once again, had a very nice time.

"There are only two of them (his captors) whom I do not feel sorry for — one was executed and the other served time at hard labor after the war was over," he said. "All of the others were really just doing what they were ordered to do. And again, it was war. There was plenty of brutality on both sides."

When asked how he believes the experience has affected his life, he said, "I really don't sweat the small stuff too much."

Brown is now 80, although he seems much younger, both physically and mentally, and is now enjoying his retirement. Just a month ago he was on a deep sea fishing trip off the coast of Florida with Betty, Janna, and her husband Harold.

"It was their Christmas gift to Betty and me," he said.

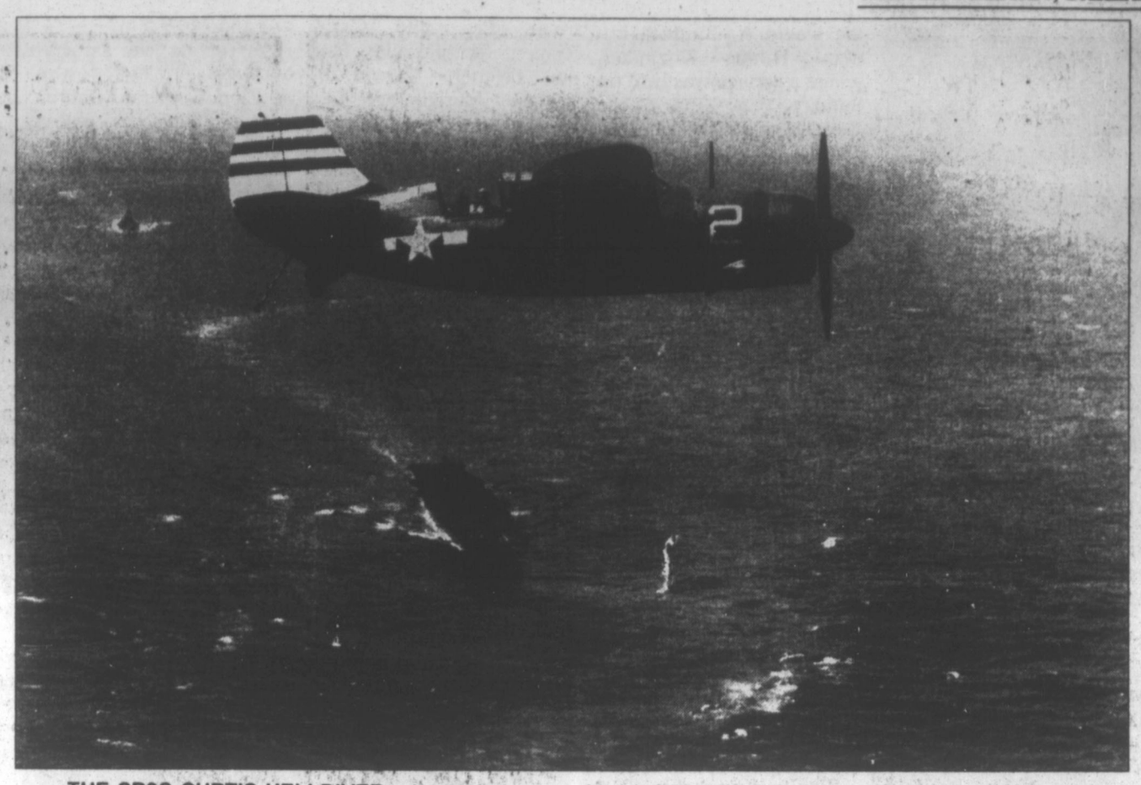
At the conclusion of the interview, Brown said that he had one favor to ask:

"When you write your article, please don't make me out to be a hero," he said. "I do not fit my own personal description of a hero, and to consider me as such diminishes the real definition of what I believe a hero to be. I simply think of myself as a survivor, a very lucky survivor."

Apparently the U.S. Navy had a slightly different view of Charles Brown, as he was awarded, among other medals, the Distinguished Flying Cross, a fact that he did not even mention during the interview. When asked about it later, the extremely modest Flyboy said, "They said that I received the medal for staying in my dive and hitting my target when I knew my plane was going down. But I think that when my commander initiated the process of getting that award for me, he believed that it would be presented posthumously."

There are many, many people — those who have come to know Charlie Brown over the past 60 years — who are exceedingly pleased today that his commander's assumption turned out to be wrong.

"...please don't make me out to be a hero."



THE SB2C CURTIS HELLDIVER, pictured above, is what U.S. Navy pilot Charlie Brown of Kingwood, W.Va., was flying 60 years ago yesterday afternoon, February 16, 1945, when he was shot down during a dive over Tokyo. His orders were to strike aircraft manufacturing plants in the Japanese capital. It was the very first — and last — combat mission for the 20-year-old, who would spend the next 6½ months in brutal captivity by the Japanese, but survived to return home, just miss his own memorial service, become a lawyer, get married, have three children, and enjoy a long career. The photo at left is of Brown soon after his commissioning as an ensign in 1943. With him in the recent photo at right is Betty, his wife of over 50 years. In the background between them is a model of the SB2C, and hanging above Betty is a model of the SBD Dauntless dive bomber.

PAWS Hosting Annual Spay Day Essay Contest

Partners for Animal Welfare and Safety (PAWS) and the Garrett County Weekender are teaming up again this year to sponsor the third annual Spay Day Essay Contest. The contest is in observance of Spay Day USA, Feb. 22.

The contest is open to middle school aged youths throughout the area. The deadline for entries is March 23. Writers are being asked to submit a creative essay, either in their voice or the voice of an animal (cat, dog, or other companion animal), that will persuade people to have their pets spayed or neutered.

Submissions should be no more than 300 words, type-written, double-spaced, and including the author's name, address, phone number, age/school year, name of school attended or whether home schooled, and a word count.

Prizes of $100, $75, and $50 United States Savings Bonds, courtesy of Farmers & Merchants Bank and Trust, will be awarded to the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd place contest winners. Winning entries will be announced in April and will be published in the Weekender.

Helpful information about the benefits of spaying and neutering can be found by visiting the Doris Day Animal Foundation, sponsors of Spay Day USA, at www.ddaf.org. Information about local spay/neuter assistance programs and links to other resources may also be found on the PAWS web site at www.garrettpaws.org.

Now in its eleventh year, Spay Day USA is a national day of action to end pet over-population. On Spay Day pet guardians across the country are encouraged to have at least one cat or dog, their own or that of a friend or neighbor, spayed or neutered. Animal Welfare groups are encouraged to participate by holding spay/neuter clinics and educational events to increase public awareness. Since it began in 1995, events and activities held nationwide on Spay Day USA have been responsible for spaying and neutering over 1,000,000 animals, a PAWS spokesperson reported.

"The Spay Day Essay Contest is our attempt to reach children with the message that a pet overpopulation crisis exists all across the United States, including Garrett County, and that we can end the killing of healthy adoptable animals in shelters everywhere if pet owners would only have their dogs and cats spayed or neutered before they reach breeding age," the spokesperson said.

"Through this contest we hope to motivate students to think about the pet overpopulation crisis and the impact their actions and the actions of others can have on it. It's our attempt to positively influence the future by fostering compassion and increasing awareness today," she said.

For more information about the contest, persons may call a PAWS volunteer at 301-334-2699 or e-mail paws@garrettpaws.org.

Completed essays should be mailed to Spay Day Essay Contest, c/o PAWS, P.O. Box 745, McHenry, MD 21541.

Entries will be judged by a panel of PAWS volunteers and Garrett County Weekender editorial staff members. Entrants are advised to adhere strictly to the word limit (up to 300 words) and the deadline (postmarked by March 23).

The judges reserve the right to disqualify entries that do not adhere to the rules, as well as to award prizes only in the event that adequate entries are received.

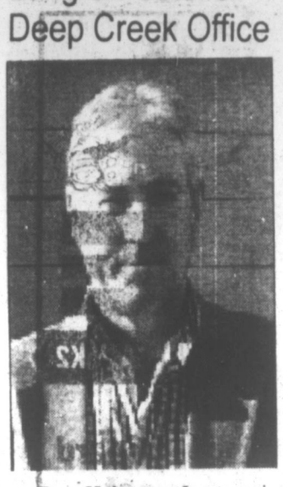
Helgason Joins Long & Foster's Deep Creek Office



Don Helgason Jr., a resident of Cranesville, W.Va., and St. Michael's has joined Long & Foster Real Estate Inc. as a sales associate with the firm's Deep Creek Lake office.

Though Helgason has spent the past 25 years in St. Michael's, he is still somewhat of a local, having spent summers, weekends, and extended time in the lake area for the past 43 years, noted a Long & Foster spokesperson.

As a resident of St. Micheal's, he owned and operated a wholesale seafood business for more than 15 years and was a wholesale supplier of reclaimed antique wood.

Helgason has teamed up with his son Donnie III, a sales associate with Long & Foster's Salisbury office and a senior at Salisbury University, to provide a real estate service team approach for clients seeking lifestyles offered by both western Maryland and the Eastern Shore.

The elder Helgason also plans to obtain his West Virginia real estate license to broaden the options for the team's clients. He holds a degree in business administration from Salisbury University.

Helgason also owns Legacy Antique Wood in Cranesvilie, a reclaimed wood business supplying antique wood products to homeowners and builders nationwide, and is an independent builder/dealer for Woodhouse Timber Frame Homes.

Helgason is an active member of Granite Lodge 177 AFAM, and attends Faith United Methodist Church in Cranesville and St. Luke's United Methodist Church in St. Michael's.

He is also active in Boy Scouts of America, Ducks Unlimited, Pop Warner Football, and Homerun Baker Little League/Softball. He enjoys the "great outdoors," hunting, fishing, and skiing with his three children.

In St. Michael's, Helgason lives with his wife Lynn and their two younger children, Stacy, 13, and David, 12.

Free Tax Return Help Available At TA Town Hall

Taxpayers can get free Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) in preparing tax returns every Thursday, 10 a.m. to noon, at Terra Alta Town Hall until April 14. There are no age or income restrictions.

The VITA volunteers are from Alpine Lake and are trained by the Internal Revenue Service to "insure full credits and refunds," according to a group spokesperson.

PAWS Passion For Pets Challenge Now Under Way

Citizens are invited to show support for local efforts to address pet overpopulation by taking part in the PAWS Passion for Pets Challenge, which is taking place now through Feb. 28. A number of area bars, restaurants, and businesses are working with PAWS (Partners for Animal Welfare and Safety) on this fundraiser to help raise awareness of the organization's spay/neuter assistance programs, which provide financial aid to low-income pet owners and for individuals caring for local stray or feral cats.

The challenge is part of PAWS' observance of Spay Day USA, a national day of action to promote spaying and neutering, which falls on the last Tuesday of February each year.

Some area businesses taking part in the challenge are the Black Bear Tavern, Honi Honi, Pawn Run Saloon, Englander's Fountain, The Chalet at German Village, Cornish Manor, Red Run Lodge, Whispers and 23 Below at the Wisp, Brenda's Pizzeria, Mark IV Office Supply, Eiswert, Janes & Sweitzer, Bear Creek Traders, Four Seasons Gifts, Foodland Fresh, St. Paul's Methodist Church, Casselman, Countryside and Pineview veterinary practices, MuttWorks and Animal Crackers Groomers, Deep Creek Gourmet, and the Comfort Inn at McHenry.

Patrons of these establishments are being asked to purchase a paper heart for $1 (larger contributions will also be accepted). Once signed by the purchaser, the hearts will be displayed. The business selling the most hearts by the end of the challenge will receive an engraved plaque to display in their establishment until the winner of next year's challenge is announced.

PAWS offers area residents two spay/neuter programs which will benefit from the Passion for Pets Challenge. Now in its second year, the PAWS assistance program for low-income pet owners offers to pay for at least 2/3 of the cost of spay/neuter surgeries for those who meet the program's income guidelines of $15,000 total annual income for single area residents and $25,000 for families or singles with dependants. In the 18 months since this program was begun, nearly 200 animals have been altered through this program.

For more information on income guidelines and to obtain an application, interested pet owners may call 301-746-5939 or visit the PAWS web site at www.garrettpaws.org.

Funds raised in the challenge will also benefit PAWS' newest spay/neuter program, Help for Homeless Cats. This is a pilot project to address the growing concern over stray and feral cats in the Oakland area, and involves a process of Trap, Neuter, and Return/Relocate (TNR).

For more information on Help for Homeless Cats and a wish list of needed equipment and volunteer opportunities, persons may also visit the above mentioned PAWS website.

Any business or organization wishing to help support these programs by joining the challenge or making a contribution is asked to call Judy Day at 301-387-5939. Contributions may also be sent to: PAWS Challenge, P.O. Box 745, McHenry, MD 21541.

PAWS is an all volunteer, charitable, 501(c)(3) non-profit organization working to improve conditions for animals in Garrett County. It is not affiliated with any other local, state, or national animal welfare organization.

"Call or visit the animal shelter to check on the availability of other cats or dogs," she said, "The kinds and numbers change almost daily."

The shelter is located along Oakland Sang Run Road and is open Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. and Thursday until 6 p.m. For more information, persons may call 301-334-3553.

Man Sentenced

were dismissed upon his plea.

Weeks was sentenced to three years in the Division of Corrections, as this was his sixth alcohol offense, noted the state's attorney.

He was arrested in October 2003 after Garrett County sheriff's deputies observed his vehicle on Maryland Highway cross the center line, drive through a turn lane, and drive along the shoulder of the road before pulling into a private driveway. After making observations of Weeks's condition and his inability to perform field sobriety tests, officers arrested him.

In an unrelated case, Terri Anne Hutzel, 37, Frostburg (Garrett County) was sentenced Wednesday for criminal and traffic charges. Hutzel pleaded guilty in January to disturbing the peace, aggressive driving, and fleeing and eluding police. Sentencing had been postponed until this week.

The sentences imposed by Sherbin included 30 days' incarceration, to be served under home confinement, and fines totaling $500.

Hutzel was arrested and charged by Maryland State Police last November after an incident that began at Northern High School and ended at the MSP barracks in McHenry.

According to the state's attorney, Hutzel caused a disturbance outside the school by yelling and cursing at officers who were removing a disruptive youth from the facility. Hutzel got into her truck and sped out of the parking lot, spinning wheels and fleeing south on Rt. 219.

Officers pursued Hutzel, who continued to speed, illegally pass other vehicles, follow vehicles too closely, and commit other traffic violations, almost striking a number of vehicles.

Pysanky Egg-Decorating Class Slated At Garrett

A one-session course in Pysanky, the ancient Ukrainian art of decorating eggs, is set for Saturday, March 5, from 9 a.m. to noon at Garrett College. Edna Stinefelt will instruct the class, which will impart a technique that began in eastern Europe thousands of years ago.

Pysanky plays an important role in the Easter celebrations of the Ukrainian people, and the decorating method has long expressed the egg's value as a symbol of rebirth and renewal. In the spring, eggs were decorated with special symbols and used as charms for health, good luck, bountiful harvest, and warding off evil.

Participants will learn how to create designs on a raw egg using a kista and hot bee's wax, and, after developing their designs, will put their eggs through a series of dyes. When the total design is complete, the wax will be melted off and the designs and bright colors will appear.

For further information, or to register, persons may call the college's Continuing Education and Training Division at 301-387-3069.

Our Town Theatre is located along Center Street in Oakland.

Amos RR Exhibit To Open Gilchrist Gallery Season

The C. William Gilchrist Gallery in Cumberland will open its exhibition season with the work of Charles Amos, a railroad enthusiast and aficionado. Amos is a part-time resident of the Deep Creek Lake area.

A reception for the artist will be held at the gallery on Sunday, Feb. 27, from 1 until 4 p.m. Refreshments will be served. The exhibit will continue until March 27. The gallery, located at 104 Washington Street in Cumberland, will be open Thursdays through Sundays, 1-4 p.m.

Amos's railroad exhibit will feature three basic subject areas. Gallery I will be devoted to railroads from a variety of places and scenes. Gallery II will display Amos's landscapes and architectural paintings, and Gallery III will exhibit his portraits and graphics.

The exhibit will include works of art he completed from the beginning of his professional art career up to the present, a spokesperson said, making it the most comprehensive collection of his work ever assembled.

Amos is a retired operating engineer for the Western Maryland Scenic Railroad. He was head of the Allegany County Chamber of Commerce several years ago, and also served on boards of directors for several Cumberland and Allegany County organizations.

During the reception, selected prints of Amos's work will be available at special rates and will be signed by the artist. The gallery will also give some prints away as door prizes throughout the afternoon.

For more information, persons may call the Gilchrist Gallery at 301-724-5800.

"The stories of King Midas, Orpheus and Eurydice, Cupid and Psyche, and Phaeton, among others, are included."

In 2002, Metamorphoses received a Tony nomination for Best Play, and adapter/director Mary Zimmerman won the Tony for Best Direction of a Play.

Oppose Hookup

tion fees. Bell calculated that the average cost for residents to hook up to public water and sewer systems at the lake would be $25,000.

"We think it's a terribly high price to pay," he said, especially since many have their own working water and sewer systems.

"It puts a tremendous burden on residents," said Robert Stockslager about the fees.

Tonkovich said the average total cost of connecting to the DCL sewer system would be $14,400.

Bell noted that the Deep Creek Lake Watershed Economic Growth and Planning Analysis Study task force recently recommended that the county encourage retirees to move to Garrett County. Bell agreed with that idea, noting that he himself is a retiree who moved to Deep Creek Lake.

He indicated, however, that costly mandatory hookups on top of high property assessments would dissuade retirees from moving to the lake and financially burden those already living there.

Betty Stockslager of Stockslager Road added that young families would also be adversely affected. A young couple she knows own a home with a working private sewer system. They are not primary residents of Deep Creek Lake, but they hope to be one day, she said. The costly fees would impact the family, causing them to "rethink" their dream.

Stockslager added that others in her area own "simple" homes that have been in their families for years. They would like to be able to pass them on to future generations, but the fees may force the families to sell the homes instead.

Gregg asked Tonkovich if the county had the "ability to reconsider" the trunk line without affecting the expansion project. The director indicated that the project could proceed without including the trunk line at this time.

Gregg noted that the line could be added to the system, if needed, several years from now.

The officials will discuss their options further and review the project's final design before making a decision. Tonkovich said the design would be completed by the end of the month.

Begins Debate

Noel Levy was one of them. "We don't need slots because you can blow your money on lottery tickets with the same odds of winning," Levy said, drawing applause from slots opponents.

The Ways and Means Committee is expected to vote on the bill within a week.

The Senate's main change to the governor's measure was to eliminate mention of specific locations for slots parlors, leaving that to a committee. But some senators tried Wednesday to return specificity to the bill.

Sen. George Della Jr., D-Baltimore City, introduced four different amendments — all of which failed by wide margins. He said he was concerned the owners of Pimlico Race Course, home to one of the nation's premiere thoroughbred racing events, are planning to move the track. Introducing a final amendment, Della said Maryland might as well legalize casino gambling.

"Let's not bottom-fish here. Let's go for the whole thing," Della said on the Senate floor. "Let's generate some real bucks for our education system . . . and let's do it with casino gambling."

Leads Sought In Mailbox, Vehicle Vandalisms

Authorities are seeking the public's assistance as they probe a number property destruction cases stemming back several weeks, with the latest incident occurring over the weekend in the Friendsville area. The suspects have been known to be boasting in public about their exploits.

Maryland State Police Tfc. LeMay reported that sometime between 10:45 and 11:15 Friday night damage was sustained by a Geo Tracker and mail boxes located along Friendsville Road. Witnesses described the subjects as while males driving a Jeep Cherokee with unknown Pennsylvania registration and a loud muffler, which was followed to Markleysburg, Pa., where it was observed spinning out and forcing a dark sedan to take evasive maneuvers to avoid a collision. The suspects' Jeep Cherokee then turned onto Pa. Route 26 and sped away from one of the victims, who had been following the vehicle.

In what have not been verified as related incidents, LeMay is also investigating the nighttime destruction of numerous mail boxes stemming back to this past October along Hare Hollow Road, Dung Hill Road, Fosters Inn Road, Maple Grove Road, and Garrett Highway.

Citizens with information about these or any other destruction of property incidents are encouraged to contact LeMay at the McHenry barrack at 301-895-1101 or 301-387-1101. Information leading to the arrest and conviction of suspect(s) may qualify the caller for a monetary reward.

'05 Christmas Tree Recycling Event Deemed Success

Garrett County residents and businesses were recently invited to participate in a free Christmas tree recycling event. A grand total of 217 trees were recycled during the event, according to Kimberly Madigan, recycling coordinator for the Solid Waste and Recycling Division.

"Not since 1998 have we seen such a positive response to the tree recycling event. We are pleased the Garrett County residents braved the cold weather and made this year's Christmas tree recycling event so successful," said Madigan.

In cooperation with Oakland Timberjax Tree Service and the Solid Waste and Recycling Division, General Services Department, Christmas trees were accepted on Jan. 8 from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at the Southern High School athletic field parking area.

The Grantsville refuse and recycling site also accepted trees during business hours on the same day. In addition, the Garrett County Landfill location accepted trees from Dec. 27, 2004, to Feb. 5.

The northern and southern events yielded a total of 67 trees, which were collected and chipped for mulch. At the landfill location, 75 trees were accepted to be used later by the Department of Natural Resources for fish habitats, and the town of Oakland picked up 75 trees, which were also chipped for mulch.

"The event would not have been as successful without the participation of the residents, the help of Southern High School and the efforts of Randy Sisler of Oakland Timberjax Tree Service and his crew," she added.

Recycling events are offered to Garrett County residents and businesses free of charge. Additionally, a resident permit is not required to enter the landfill or refuse and recycling sites to recycle. Recycling is available to residents and businesses everyday for free.

Persons with questions or comments about the free recycling program may call the office at 301-387-0322.

AmeriCorps Funding Gets Boost In Md.

Maryland governor Robert L. Ehrlich Jr. has announced that $1.6 million in AmeriCorps state formula funding is available to create new AmeriCorps programs in the state.

AmeriCorps is a network of national service programs that engage more than 75,000 Americans each year in service to meet critical needs in education, public safety, health, and the environment. AmeriCorps members serve through nonprofit organizations, public agencies, and faith-based organizations to set up volunteer recruitment programs, tutor and mentor youth, build affordable housing, clean parks and streams, and help communities respond to disasters. In exchange for a year of full- or part-time service, AmeriCorps members receive a modest stipend and an educational benefit of up to $4,725.

"The AmeriCorps program provides a unique opportunity for citizens of all ages to gain experience and develop leadership skills while engaging in volunteer service," said Ehrlich. "Members provide skilled manpower to community-based organizations, helping them to meet the needs of Maryland's most vulnerable citizens."

All nonprofit, 501(c)(3), faith-based and community organizations in operation for at least two years, local and state government agencies, Indian tribes, schools, school systems, and institutions of higher education are eligible to apply by Thursday, June 9.

To obtain application guidelines and instructions, persons may contact program officer Teresa Garcia by calling 410-767-6338, or via e-mail at tgarcia@dbm.-state.md.us. Technical assistance is available to interested applicants, and group sessions will be scheduled as needed.

Rams Give Up 10-Point Lead At Intermission; Fall To Alco

After playing an outstanding first half against Allegany last Friday night in Cumberland, the Southern High School boys' varsity let a 10-point lead at intermission slip away in the second half, giving the host Campers a 63-55 victory.

The win was the 18th in 19 starts for the Campers and also gave them the Western Maryland Interscholastic League championship for the second year in a row. Meanwhile, the Rams dropped to 15-5 overall and 6-3 in the league.

It was the second loss of the season by the Rams to the Campers, who held on for a 65-62 double-overtime win victory back on January 14 in Oakland.

The two teams played evenly throughout the first quarter, which featured seven lead changes and ended with Southern on top by one. But the Rams took charge in the second period, hitting seven of nine shots (77%), including all three of their attempts from three-point range — two back-to-back by Corey Tressler — giving the Rams a 33-23 advantage at halftime.

However, the momentum slowly shifted back to the home team in the third quarter, as the Rams were out-scored by a 21-8 margin. The Campers hit eight of 13 shots in the period, and were down by just one, 45-44, at the end of the stanza.

Allegany took the lead for good at the 5:35 mark of the fourth quarter when Scott Scaletta hit a three-point bucket, giving his team a 51-48 advantage.

The Rams were forced to foul in the waning moments, and the Campers responded by hitting all six of their final attempts at the line to win by eight points.

Defensively, the Rams did an excellent job against Alco's leading scorer, Donavin Vinson, who came into the game averaging 23 points per outing, but finished with just eight. Tressler was primarily responsible for keeping him in check.

"Limiting the scoring of Vinson was one of the things we knew we had to do," said Ram coach Tom Bosley, "and Corey did a great job on him. But they have other good shooters who stepped up."

Picking up the scoring slack for Allegany were Tim Lease, who had 14 points, and Michael Paige with 13 points, plus four assists. David Lattimer also reached double figures with 10 points and had three blocked shots, while John Pande grabbed a game-high 11 rebounds.

Tressler led all scorers to pace the Rams with 18 points, while Bosley recorded 16 points, nine rebounds, and four assists. Evan Lantz, who got into foul trouble in the first half and missed much of the third quarter, reached double figures with 12 points.

"Their first big run came when Evan was on the bench," Bosley said. "But they are a good team and very tough to beat at home. We played well and had great execution in the second quarter, but did not respond well to their runs in the second half."

The loss was the fifth straight to Allegany by the Rams, who had won the previous 13 consecutive clashes. Four of the last 10 have gone into overtime, and six of them were won by five or fewer points.

The Southern junior varsity was also stung in the preliminary game, 43-41, as Allegany's Tyler Wharton hit a jumper in the final seconds after the Rams had tied the score at 41-41 with less than 10 seconds to play.

Wharton led Alco with a game-high 20 points, while Ryan DeWitt and Sean McCreery paced the Rams with 12 and 11 points, respectively.

Southern will travel to Fort Hill this Friday for a final JUCO game and then wrap up their regular season next Tuesday at home against Bishop Walsh. Tip-off times are 6 p.m. for the junior varsity and 7:30 p.m. for the varsity.

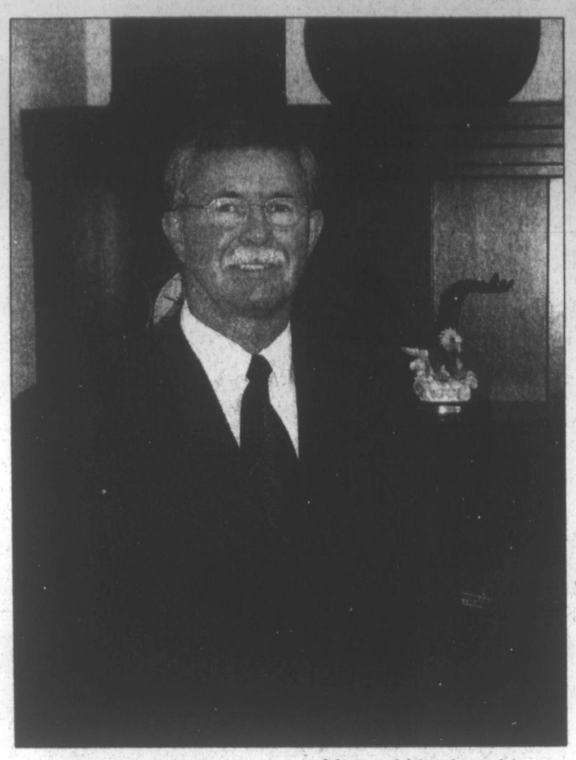
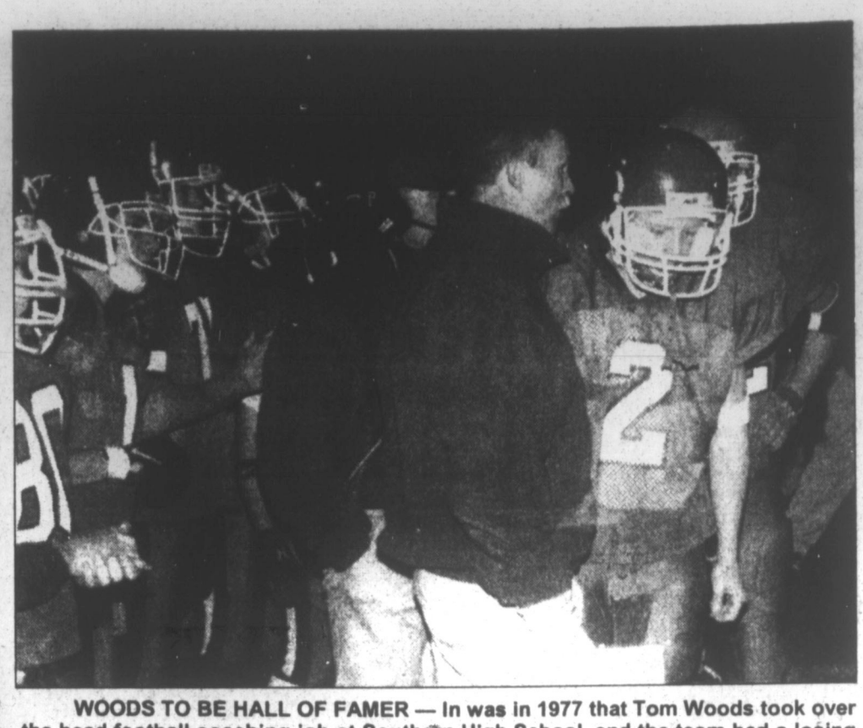
Tom Woods To Be Inducted Into Coaches Hall Of Fame





WOODS TO BE HALL OF FAMER — In was in 1977 that Tom Woods took over the head football coaching job at Southern High School, and the team had a losing record that year. But for the next 18 seasons, Woods' teams would never again finish with a losing record. In fact, they would record three undefeated regular seasons, earn numerous area and conference titles, make the state playoffs eight years, and appear three times in the Maryland state championship game at College Park. For such an outstanding record, the now-principal of Southern High will be inducted into the Maryland High School Coaches Association Hall of Fame during a ceremony in Baltimore this Saturday evening. Woods is pictured above sending in a play during his final season as the Ram mentor in 1998. See story.

by Don Sincell

The most successful high school football coach in the history of Garrett County will be inducted into the Maryland High School Football Coaches Association Hall of Fame during a ceremony this Saturday, Feb. 19, at M&T Bank Stadium in Baltimore.

Tom Woods, who was the mentor of the Southern High School varsity program for 19 seasons and now serves as school principal, will become the first Garrett County coach and the seventh in Allegany/Garrett counties elected to the Hall of Fame.

In the 23 years of football at SHS before Woods arrived, Southern had only eight winning seasons, and the program was struggling when he assumed the role of head coach in 1977. The Rams had a disappointing 4-6 finish his first year, but that would be the only losing season recorded under Woods, and just two years after his arrival the Rams would for the first time advance all the way to the Maryland state 1A championship game.

Woods, who came to Southern after recording an amazing record as wrestling coach at Spencer (W.Va.) High School, amassed an overall record of 143-60 with the SHS football program for an impressive winning percentage of 70-plus.

His teams reached the state playoffs eight times, going all the way to the state title game not only in 1979, but also in 1980 and 1995. Three of his teams also finished with undefeated regular seasons.

His squads also captured five regional championships and seven Highland Football Conference titles.

While there were numerous highlights during his 19 seasons, Woods will definitely never forget several huge individual game victories recorded by his teams.

One of those was a victory over Beall in 1979 after the Rams went winless against the Mountaineers for 21 straight seasons.

"Finally beating Jerry Calhoun (Beall's coach) was one of the greatest accomplishments we ever had at Southern," Woods said.

Under Woods the Rams would continue to defeat the Mountaineers most of those 19 seasons.

Another major triumph was a 12-6 overtime win over Allegany in the 1987 Class AA playoffs before probably the largest crowd ever assembled for a football game at Southern High School.

Some Ram fans would argue though that the greatest SHS victory ever was an 8-6 defeat of Fort Hill in Greenway Avenue Stadium in 1996, a game that ended the Sentinels' 30-game regular-season winning streak.

"Defeating Fort Hill in their stadium and stopping their 30-game winning streak was certainly one of the greatest wins in our school's history," Woods said. "It was just an unbelievable feeling.

"We didn't make the playoffs that year, so we told out kids that this was our playoffs, and they really responded."

About the only prize that just barely eluded Woods and his teams was a state title, as the 1979 team fell to Smithsburg, the 1980 squad was stopped by Snow Hill, and in 1995 the Rams lost to South Dorchester.

Yet another personal highlight for Woods on that final trip to College Park in 1995 was the fact that his younger son Andrew was the quarterback. The Rams were edged by North Dorchester when what appeared to be a winning touchdown run by Southern fullback Aaron Newcomb was called just short by the officials.

Woods said that his coaching style was always based on one philosophy — teamwork.

"It's both interesting and very telling that, in all 19 of my seasons, we never had a single player who was considered a Division I college prospect," he said. "Yet we were able to defeat a lot of teams that had one or more such prospects. That shows that teamwork really does work, and I am so proud of our coaches and all of our players who did such a great job of adopting that philosophy. That's what team sports are all about, or should be."

Woods is a 1968 graduate of Herbert Hoover High School, Clendenin, W.Va. He holds an undergraduate degree from Glenville State College, a master's degree in education from West Virginia University, and a master's in secondary administration/supervision from Frostburg State University.

While teaching at Spencer High School (1972-77), he was the coach of the wrestling team, which captured three Little Kanawha Conference titles and the West Virginia Class AA state title in 1977. His teams won 50 consecutive dual meets, which set a state record in 1977. He has also been a certified wrestling referee for many years.

Woods was named Roane County Outstanding Citizen of the Year.

Since arriving at Southern Garrett in 1977, he has been a teacher, football coach, evening school principal, athletic director, administrative assistant, and assistant principal, and is now in his fourth year as principal.

He was named Maryland Class C Coach of the Year in 1984 and was a member of the first Maryland coaching staff for the 1984 Big 33 Game in Hershey, Pa. He was the HFC Coach of the Year seven times, Potomac Valley Conference Coach of the Year six times, and West Virginia Wrestling Official of the Year in 1994.

Among those named to the Hall of Fame previously were Allegany coaches Roy Lester and Jack Gilmore, Jerry Calhoun of Beall, and Bill Hahn, Charlie Lattimer, and Mike Calhoun of Fort Hill.

"That Coach Woods has been selected to this elite group of superb high school coaches should be a source of immense pride to your community," stated Joe Russo, president of the Maryland High School Football Coaches Association.

Woods said he is proud to be included in such a group of accomplished coaches. "I really do miss the rivalries we had with these school and these great coaches," he said. "You really had to get up early in the morning to try to pull a fast one on the likes of Mike Calhoun, Jack Gilmore, and also Denny Price of Musselman High School."

Tickets to attend Saturday's induction ceremony at M&T Bank Stadium in Baltimore are $40 each. Those interested should telephone Russo at 410-203-9377, or e-mail him at joseph_russo@hcpss.org.

Rams Fall To Eagles; Upset BW, Down FH To Take WMIL

Momentum can mean everything as a regular season winds down and the playoffs start heating up, and the Southern High School girls appear to be in full swing as they come off a week that included a huge win over a second-ranked Bishop Walsh squad that clinched the WMIL title for SHS. The Rams' final regular campaign contest is set for tomorrow night at Tucker County, and the Western Region 1A playoff drawings are slated for Sunday. Southern's record is currently 17-3 overall, 9-1 in the WMIL.

The defending Maryland state 1A champion Rams have to be proud in overcoming a rough start (3-3) to take 11 of their last 15 outings, with each of the four losses in that string coming to true powerhouses. Given the loss of numerous seniors from last year's title squad and longtime head coach Don Stemple, first-year SHS coach Rodger Bowman and his Rams have a lot to be proud of and plenty of fight to keep going a long way.

After a momentary stumble Saturday in the form of a 43-39 loss to Hedgesville (the sixth-ranked team in the state of West Virginia), the Rams rebounded in spades with a stunning 55-46 win over host Bishop Walsh to snap the Spartans' 18-game winning streak. SHS notched another win last night at Fort Hill with a gritty 57-52 victory.

The home contest with Hedgesville started out with the Rams down by a slim 13-10 margin after one quarter, then visitors began to pull away to take a 25-17 halftime lead and a 34-21 advantage as the third quarter opened.

After falling behind by an apparently insurmountable 15-point deficit in the final stanza, a determined SHS squad fought its way back into contention to cut Hedgesville's lead to just two points with 1:30 on the clock. The Rams' amazing comeback fell short when the hosts suffered two fatal turnovers and the Eagles hit several clutch free throws.

Senior Jasmine Scheffel paced Southern with 14 points, including a trio of three-point buckets, and junior Caitlyn Brown contributed 11 points. Hedgesville's Samantha Guell led all scorers with 15 points. Hedgesville (18-2) showed the discipline that makes them one of the top teams in the Mountain State by committing a paltry 10 fouls, a deciding factor in the close game as the Rams had a great free-throw run for the night, nailing 8 of their 10 attempts from the charity stripe.

Southern's junior varsity took a 40-36 victory behind a 14-point performance by Adrienne Yoder. Hedgesville's Emily Kisner had 12 points.

The Rams showed their capacity for continuing to up their game as the competition stiffens when they traveled to Bishop Walsh Monday, taking advantage of Bishop Walsh turnovers and using a strong foul shooting effort to shock the confident Spartan fans into stunned silence by game's end. SHS's giant nine-point upset snapped BW's lengthy winning streak, which dated back to early December, at 18 games.

The game opened according to the Spartans' plan, and the hosts were up 12-7 after one quarter; however, the undaunted Rams refused to be intimidated, and battled back to knot the score at 20-all at the half. BW went up by three, 32-29, going into the fourth quarter, but Southern went on a 26-14 tear over the final eight minutes that gave them the game, and convincingly so. Key to the comeback win were 12 successful SHS free throws over the final stanza, and a 21-for-28 tally overall for 76 percent.

Junior Kendra McLaughlin led Southern with 24 points on eight field goals and an 8-for-10 performance from the charity stripe, while also hauling down seven rebounds. Sophomore Sarah Stephens contributed 10 points, going 6-for-8 from the line. Scheffel netted seven points and dished out six assists.

YOU MAKE THE CALL – It was a real battle Saturday in Oakland as the Southern High School girls' varsity basketball squad narrowly missed playing the role of giant-killer against a powerhouse Hedgesville squad in a 43-39 defeat. The physicality of the contest is exemplified above as SHS senior Julia Bosley goes up high in the lane against an Eagle defender sacrificing her own body in an attempt to garner a whistle for a charging foul on the Rams. Fellow Southern senior Kayla Nazelrod is pictured below eyeing the bucket after getting behind her defender. With two wins in three outings this week, including a huge nine-point road upset that snapped Bishop Walsh's 18-game winning streak and captured the WMIL Championship, the Rams (14-7, 9-1 WMIL) are all ears for this Sunday's 1A Western Maryland Region playoff drawings. Southern's regular season draws to a close tomorrow night at Tucker County. Photos by John McEwen.

Bishop Walsh (19-2) was paced by Karen Iames with 17 points, five steals, and four assists, and teammate Leah Gonzalez notched a double-double of 14 points and 16 rebounds.

The Ram JVs notched a 42-36 win paced by 16 points from Brittany Royce. Kara Miller had 13 for BW.

Southern had to work for last night's win at Fort Hill, admittedly not one of the top squads in the area. The Rams held a narrow 14-13 advantage after one period and took a 26-23 lead into the half. SHS expanded its lead to 45-36 as the fourth quarter got under way.

Things got interesting in the final eight minutes as the host Sentinels refused to throw in the towel and cut the gap to three, 53-50, with 15 seconds remaining. That's when SHS's foul shooting, which had been rather shaky up to that point, came to the fore as McLaughlin hit two big free throws with 7.9 seconds showing to put the Rams up by five. The Sentinels then drove down the court, and their top shooter, Lindsay Holliday, took a three- point attempt that Scheffel rejected as time expired.

McLaughlin paced the Rams to victory with 21 points, Stephens added nine points, and Scheffel had eight. Lindsay Holliday and Lauren Ronan recorded 17 points apiece for Fort Hill (8-13, 4-6 WMIL).

In the earlier action of the evening, Southern's superb jayvees rolled to 16-3 on the year with a 32-22 win. Yoder netted 12 points for the Rams, and the Sentinels' Shay Burnett had 13.

The Rams' regular season campaign comes to an end tomorrow evening at Tucker, where SHS will try to avenge a season-opening, five-point, overtime defeat.

Garrett County Humane Society
March is Garrett County's SPAY/NEUTER Awareness Month 2005

The Garrett County Humane Society and the Garrett County Animal Shelter are jointly sponsoring this event for the 5th year. Even with increased adoptions and rescues, there are still numerous litters of kittens and puppies, feral cats and stray dogs that are never adopted or reclaimed.

To motivate pet owners to have their pets altered, we will offer $25.00 certificates to county residents who request them. Anyone who adopts an animal from the shelter during the month of March will also receive a discount certificate. Last year, 200 of these certificates were given out, so let's try and beat that number!

If you would like to join us to help reduce the number of unwanted animals in Garrett County, you may sponsor one or more certificates. The name of the sponsor will be listed on the certificates so the recipients will know who is helping them. Please contact Garrett County Humane Society Director at 301-746-5725 or the Garrett County Animal Shelter at 301-334-3553 for further information.

Huskies Edged By Mounties, Hancock In WMIL Thrillers

If adversity is counted as one of the mothers of success, the Northern High School boys' varsity basketball team may have gotten some valuable lessons this week despite losing two road games that featured strong Husky rallies under the most hostile of crowd conditions. NHS was edged by Beall on Friday and lost by a slim 56-53 margin, then fell at Hancock Tuesday by just four points, 69-65.

The action snapped a four-game Husky winning streak that had included major upsets over region powerhouses Southern, Bishop Walsh, and Fort Hill. The silver lining to this week's disappointing defeats was Northern's determinedness in fighting back from big deficits, and the squad's clutch foul shooting before the noisy opposition crowds at Beall and Hancock, showing that the Huskies have the wherewithal to handle a pressure-cooked playoff atmosphere.

Friday's battle at Beall opened as a barnburner, simmered down midway through, then blazed up again by the final moments. The two squads were knotted at 13-all after one quarter before the Mounties rampaged to a 34-23 halftime lead, and a 43-34 advantage as the fourth quarter opened.

The Huskies leaned into their traces in the final period, patiently gaining ground on the hosts to take the lead at the two-minute mark. A pair of big Beall buckets and some clutch Mountie free-throw shooting staved off Northern's rally in the final moments.

NHS's top scorer in a finely balanced offensive effort was junior forward Brent Beachy, who netted 14 points before fouling out. Classmates Blake Walker and Chris Speicher, along with senior Eric Johnson, contributed nine points apiece, and senior Matt Bass recorded eight points. Beall's Justin Shipe led all scorers with 26 points, including four on the two game-clinching field goals in the final two minutes.

Mountie Matt DeRosa scored 11 points and teammate Carter Dickel finished with 10 for Beall (11-7 overall, 4-5 WMIL).

The Northern junior varsity dropped a 53-26 contest, as Lucas McMillan recorded seven points for the Huskies. Pat Winebrenner paced Beall with 15 points.

NHS looked as if it was going to get blown out of Hancock's gym from the outset Tuesday, as the hosts strode to a 21-4 first-quarter advantage. However, the Huskies pinned their ears back and went after the Panthers, methodically trimming Hancock's lead to six at the half, 25-19. Northern stumbled slightly in the third quarter, which ended with the Panthers going up by eight, 41-33.

The Huskies' top guns began finding their marks during a 25-17 run over the course of the final stanza, which ended in a 58-58 tie at the final buzzer of regulation play. The four-minute overtime went Hancock's way, and by its end a depleted NHS squad, which had lost team-high scorer Speicher, plus Aaron Rawe, and Bass, to foul trouble, was down by four points.

Speicher had 23 points on the night, a tally that included a crucial quartet of three-pointers. Beachy turned in 22 points and eight rebounds, and Speicher handed out seven assists. Hancock was led by Jeff Willison, who had 27 points, while teammate Brad Spielman added 19.

The Huskies host Calvary Christian Academy tonight, then close out their regular season tomorrow

SENIOR NIGHT IGLOO ACTION GOES TO OT – The curtain came down on the Northern High School girls' varsity regular season home basketball slate Monday in an eight-point overtime loss to Westmar. The visiting Wildcats had mounted leads of four points after one quarter, eight at the half, and six at the close of the third stanza, before the Huskies fought their way back over an 18-12 fourth quarter to tie things up at 42-all at the end of regulation. NHS cooled off to score just two points in the overtime period, which ended with Westmar up 51-43. Some of the action is captured above, as to the left Husky defender Tiffany Yoder (#3) puts the kibosh on a Wildcat ball handler with help from teammate Jeseca Gibson (left), as fellow Husky Jessie Fratz (#12) swoops in from the right with her eye on the loose ball. Game-high scorer Gibson is shown in the photo at right making a move on a Westmar defender as she heads for two of her 23 points. The contest was preceded by the squad's Senior Night festivities, as senior players and their parents were recognized for their years of dedication to the NHS girls' basketball program. Pictured below, from the right, are senior honorees Lakin Weimer, kneeling in front of her parents Warren and Sherry Weimer; Amanda Heacock, with her mother Brenda Heacock; Tiffany Yoder, with her mother Lori Butler; Jeseca Gibson, with her parents Dennis and Kerry Gibson; and Jayme Miller, with her parents John and Chris Miller. Northern (8-12) closes out its regular season campaign this week with road trips to Frankfort on Friday and Hancock on Monday. Photos by John McEwen.

The freshman boys' basketball team of Southern High School is the top-seeded squad now playing in the freshman tournament that is hosted annually by Beall High School.

The Rams rolled over eighth-seeded Bishop Walsh on Monday, 63-33.

The Rams' balanced attack featured four players who finished in double figures. Drew Proudfoot led with a game-high 19 points, while Jeff Stem netted 13, Matt White scored 11, and Jordan Pacella added 10. Adam Allen paced the freshmen Spartans in scoring with 12 points.

In other freshman tourney action Tuesday, Allegany's defeated Beall, 66-50, Fort Hill topped Hampshire, 50-44, and Keyser stopped Petersburg, 67-62.

The Rams will face fourth-seeded Keyser this evening at 6 p.m.

Lakers Build Momentum For Playoffs With Three Victories

Building momentum this past week for next week's Maryland JUCO Conference Tournament were the Garrett College Lakers, who scored a total of 222 points and canned 32 three-point shots in a pair of conference victories.

Then the Lakers concluded their regular season with another non-conference win last night over visiting Potomac State College, 73-65.

Coach Dennis Gibson's squad whipped visiting Anne Arundel CC on Saturday, 120-92, and rolled over Germantown less than 24 hours later on Sunday, 102-80, also in McHenry. The wins upped the Lakers' overall record to 18-7 and their JUCO mark to 12-5, and also guaranteed them home-court advantage for their first playoff game.

Scoring nearly a quarter of the Lakers' points in the two victories was Adam Morgan, who led with a team-high 27 against Anne Arundel and netted 25 vs. Germantown.

Morgan paced seven other teammates who finished in double figures against Anne Arundel, as Tristan Largent and Doyle Brown each scored 16 points, Marco Van Pelt netted 14, Lavonti Jeter contributed 13, Ivan Funcic and Tyrice Watkins each hit 11, and Jeff Washington added 10.

Largent was also credited with 11 assists to earn a double-double, while Funcic, Washington, and Jeter each grabbed seven boards. Garrett finished with a 48-31 advantage in rebounds.

Morgan's total included five three-point buckets, as the Lakers hit a total of 19 long-range goals. Brown and Largent each drained four three-pointers, while Jeter and Van Pelt each hit two.

Ed Young of Anne Arundel was virtually unstoppable, as he ripped the nets for 44 points on 16 buckets and a 10-for-15 effort at the foul line. Howard Gibson finished with 19 and Reggie Baum scored 12. Wayne Whitsitt pulled down six rebounds.

While Morgan finished with 25 points on Sunday against Germantown, teammate Doyle Brown took scoring honors with a game-high 26, nailing six three-point shots in the process.

Van Pelt and Funcic each netted 14 points.

The Lakers, who held a 47-35 halftime advantage, took excellent care of the ball, committing only one turnover in the entire second half of play.

Leading Germantown offensively were Franklin Banks and Keith Dennis with 23 points apiece. Mouktar Fawehinmi finished with 19 points.

Adam Morgan paced the Lakers last night in their win over Potomac State, as he recorded 18 points and eight rebounds. Fifteen of his points were scored in the second half of action, and 12 of them were gained from three-point range.

Doyle Brown was right behind with 17 points, Marco Van Pelt netted 13 and grabbed seven boards, and Lavonti Jeter chipped in with 10 points.

The Lakers, who were up 40-29 at intermission, outrebounded the Catamounts, 44-30.

Leading PSC's scoring was Mike Brown with 17 points. Daniel Johnson and Brennon Ely each recorded 13, and Rashard Ellis scored 11. Johnson led his team in rebounding with five.

"It was Sophomore Night, and our four sophs played very well," Coach Gibson said. "Tristan quarterbacked the team, and Lavonti and Marco were great, especially in the first half with their defense and passing. Adam came on strong in the second half and was really the key in stopping any Potomac State comeback."

Because the Lakers, who concluded the regular season with an overall mark of 19-7, won their final three JUCO games, they earned home-court advantage for their first-round JUCO tournament game, which is set for next Tuesday against an opponent to be announced.

"We will probably play either Catonsville or Anne Arundel," Gibson said. "It will be our last home game, so I hope we will have a full house."

Sixth grade students from Northern and Southern are tentatively slated to play during halftime. There will be an autograph session following the game. Tip-off is set for 7 p.m.

WINNING THREE HOME GAMES this past week were the Garrett College Lakers, who crushed Anne Arundel and Germantown over the weekend and defeated Potomac State last night. In the photo above, Garrett's Marco Van Pelt (#20), looks to pass the ball into the lane against Germantown on Sunday. Also in the photo at right are Tristan Largent (partially hidden) and Doyle Brown (#22). The Lakers whipped Germantown, 102-80. The leading scorer for Garrett in all three victories was Adam Morgan, pictured below launching a textbook jumper. Lakers in the background, from left, are Brown and Van Pelt. Morgan scored a total of 70 points in the three outings — 27 against Anne Arundel, 25 against Germantown, and 18 against Potomac State. GC Downs Takoma, Chesapeake; Seeded No. 1 In JUCO Tourney

Less than a year after losing all but three members and its head coach from last season's Region XX championship squad, the Garrett College women's basketball team appears to have bypassed the typical "rebuilding phase" and gone straight into "repeat mode."

First-year Laker head coach Thea Garland has skippered her 2004-05 crew to the front of the pack for the Maryland JUCO regular season, which concluded this week with an 11-point win over Takoma Park and a 32-point demolition of Chesapeake. Garrett opens as the top seed in this weekend's JUCO Tournament at Cecil Community College, where the Lakers will debut tomorrow night against Allegany College of Maryland. (See below for preview.)

Saturday's road contest at Takoma Park ended in a 71-60 Garrett victory, paced by a pair of double-doubles recorded by two freshmen, DeKresha Davis and Jami Anderson. Davis recorded a team-high 21 points and 14 rebounds, while Anderson tossed in 14 points and grabbed 13 caroms. Sophomore Autumn Beavers added 13 points, and sophomore Denae Kennedy hauled down 10 rebounds and dished out seven assists from her point guard position. Statistics for Takoma Park were not made available.

The following day the Lakers proved inhospitable guests for their Chesapeake hosts, as they throttled the home team by a 78-46 margin. Anderson and Davis teamed up for another pair of double-doubles, as Anderson netted 14 points and 14 rebounds while Davis contributed 14 points and 10 boards. Freshman Karly Hall contributed 12 points.

JUCO PREVIEW

With a 15-1 conference mark (18-3 overall), and having taken 14 wins in their last 15 outings, the Lakers are riding a big wave into this weekend's JUCO Tourney at Cecil Community College. After a Tuesday opening round of play-in games, the tourney field has been narrowed from 16 teams to eight for tomorrow night's quarterfinal round.

Garrett opens with a 7 p.m. battle tomorrow night against the eighth seed ACM Trojans, who crushed the College of Southern Maryland in a Tuesday play-in contest, 69-43. GC downed Allegany (13-11, 7-6 JUCO) twice during the regular season, 64-58 and 65-48.

"Allegany is playing real well right now, and we're expecting a tough match-up," Coach Garland commented. "They have a great shooter in Becky Vance (a

Cystic Fibrosis Ski, Snowboard Race To Be Held

The second annual Cystic Fibrosis Ski and Snowboard Race will be held at the Wisp ski area on Sunday, Feb. 20, with registration beginning at 8 a.m. in the lodge.

Registration fee is $15. The race will be held on Squirrel Cage beginning at 9:30 a.m., with an award ceremony to follow.

For more information, persons may e-mail cfskirace@yahoo.com

Cystic fibrosis is a life-threatening, genetic disease affecting approximately 30,000 individuals in the United States. A defective gene causes the body to produce an abnormally thick, sticky mucus, due to the faulty transport of sodium and chloride (salt) within cells lining organs such as the lungs and pancreas. The thick CF mucus leads to chronic lung infections and also obstructs the pancreas, preventing enzymes from reaching the intestines, to help break down and digest food.

NFL Steelers' Hoops Squad To Play TA Benefits

Members of the Pittsburgh Steelers Footballers basketball team and a Mtn. Top Athletic Club squad featuring local talent from Garrett and Preston counties will meet on the East Preston School basketball court in Terra Alta next month in two fundraisers for the school's auditorium restoration project. The entire roster of the Steelers' squad is composed of Chris Hope, Lee Mays, Chukky Okobi, Keydrick Vincent, Ike Taylor, Brett Keisel, Antwaan Randle El, Kendrell Bell, Chris Hoke, Matt Cushing, Deshea Townsend, Oliver Ross, Clark Haggans, Chad Scott, Joey Porter, and Hines Ward. While the Pittsburgh Steelers Footballers basketball team and event organizers hope to have as many Steelers as possible at the contests, individual appearances are subject to player availability. Not all players will be at every game.

Game tickets are $10 each and may be purchased at the Black Bear Tavern in McHenry, Cook Brothers Auto Parts and the Get 'n Go convienance store in Oakland, the Deep Creek Lake, Accident, and Terra Alta locations of Delano's Flooring and Furniture stores, Hutton Auto in Hutton, and the Terra Alta Library.

UNIFORMS FOR SPECIAL OLYMPIANS from Garrett County will soon become a reality, thanks to donations being presented to the Special Olympics Maryland Inc. by Carl Rebele, an employee of the Oakland Wal-Mart. The Wal-Mart Foundation has a program called Volunteerism Always Pays, though which employees can "earn" contributions for chosen non-profit organizations by working volunteer hours for such organizations. Rebele has now presented six checks to Special Olympics totaling $900 toward a goal of $1,200 for Garrett County team uniforms. Pictured from left above are: Major (Ret.) Greg Shipley, director of Winter Water Series to Benefit Special Olympics Maryland; Rebele; Betsy Jiron, director of Special Events for Special Olympics Maryland; and Lt. graduate of Fort Hill High), who is averaging around 15 points per game."

If the Lakers win their opener, they will move into Saturday's 3 p.m. semifinal to face the winner of tomorrow afternoon's meeting between fourth seed Cecil (14-8, 9-3 JUCO) and fifth-seeded Hagerstown (16-10, 7-5 overall).

The JUCO championship contest, slated for 2 p.m. Sunday, could well pit Garrett against Dundalk, the only conference team to hand the Lakers a loss this season by a 73-57 tally two weeks ago. Second-seeded Dundalk (19-3 overall, 9-2 JUCO) has the most explosive offense on the circuit, averaging 81 points per game, while the Lakers have the conference's top defense, giving up a paltry 52 points per outing.

"Some of our key defenders have been Denae Kennedy and Victoria Lawson are our best on-ball defenders, and Tasha Robinson and Jami Anderson, both of whom will sacrifice themselves to take a charge," stated Garland. "We're going to stick with our combination zone and man-to-man defensives schemes, which have been working real well for us all year."

The JUCO event will be followed by the Lakers' final regular season game, their annual closer with Potomac State, slated for Friday, Feb. 25, in McHenry. The Lakers will have the prized opportunity to defend their region crown, and pursue a second straight visit to the NJCAA Women's Division II National Tournament, when they host the Region XX tourney Friday through Sunday, March 4-6.

Pa. Man To Spend 18 Months In Jail For Rape Charge

A Hollidaysburg, Pa., man was sentenced in Garrett County Circuit Court this week for second-degree rape. Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced William Elsworth Hughes, 32, to five years in the Division of Corrections.

The judge suspended 3½ years of the sentence, and Hughes will serve the remaining 18 months in the Garrett County Jail. He will then be on supervised probation upon his release.

According to the state's attorney, Hughes was arrested last April when officers with the Garrett Bureau of Investigation determined that he had had inappropriate contact with a young female while staying at a local motel. The victim reported that she had been speaking to Hughes when he began making advances toward her. Because of concerns for her safety, the victim was unable to repel those advances.

Upon his release from jail, Hughes will be required to register as a child sexual offender.

In other Circuit Court news this week, Justin David Michaels, 22, Frederick, admitted to violating his probation. His 18-month sentence was re-imposed, and then 15 months was suspended. After serving three months in the Garrett County Jail, he will continue on supervised probation.

According to the state's attorney, Michaels was originally convicted and sentenced for possession with intent to distribute marijuana. He had been arrested by undercover officers patrolling the Garrett County Fairgrounds in August 2002.

After serving 18 months in jail, Michaels was released and placed on probation, which was transferred to Frederick County.

His alleged probation violations included positive tests for the use of marijuana and cocaine and failure to report to his probation officer.

In an unrelated case, Dellman Eugene Richter, 46, formerly of Grantsville, pleaded guilty to second-degree assault. He was sentenced to 30 days in the Garrett County Jail, which was suspended.

Richter was arrested by Maryland State Police last July for punching his girlfriend in the eye, according to the state's attorney. A relative of the victim had called the police, who responded and observed injuries to the victim. She was transported to a hospital in Cumberland for treatment.

State's Community College Officials Take Funding Plea to Capitol Hill

by Megan McIlroy
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON — Maryland community college officials urged the state's congressional delegation Tuesday to save one grant program targeted for elimination in President Bush's proposed budget and boost funding for another.

Representatives of 10 of the state's 16 community colleges said that in addition to saving the Perkins Grants and raising funds for Pell Grants, lawmakers must move to reauthorize the Higher Education Act.

"This is probably one of the most important years in our lifetime as far as education is concerned," said Brad Young, a trustee at Frederick Community College, who is also chairman of the national Association of Community College Trustees.

The delegation members — seven of the 10 showed up for Tuesday's meeting — were generally supportive of the schools, which they called the gateway to college and to the future.

Sen. Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., said she had introduced a bill earlier in the day that would create a new $500 million federal grant program for community college to use at their own discretion. Other lawmakers, while supportive, did not advance specific proposals Tuesday.

The trustees said that community colleges are valuable to students and the state because they help provide a trained and educated Maryland workforce.

"Almost everything we do is a form of workforce development," said Elaine Ryan, the president of the College of Southern Maryland.

But community college officials said their vocational and technical programs, which do most of that workforce development, are in jeopardy because of Bush's proposal to eliminate the Perkins Basic State Grant Program in his fiscal 2006 budget. The Perkins program provides federal money to high schools and colleges for technical and vocational training. The program was allotted about $1.2 billion in fiscal 2005.

Rep. Roscoe Bartlett, R-Frederick, said that the state needs more tradesmen like electricians and plumbers.

"We are failing to turn out anywhere near enough (people) in trades," Bartlett said.

The college officials said many community colleges use the funds for occupational education and professional development, such as allied health programs. They said a more appropriate allotment for fiscal 2006 would be $1.4 billion.

But while he wants to cut Perkins grants, Bush has proposed increasing funding for Pell grants — general federal aid that is awarded to students to pay for tuition, books, and living expenses.

Bush has proposed raising the maximum amount an individual can receive from the current $4,050. But while the president's plan would raise that cap by a total of $500 over five years, the community college officials said the cap needs to be increased by $450 immediately.

"With inflation and tuition rates being what they are, a large number of students who need Pell Grants" could not afford higher education under current limits, said Patrick Huddie, a Howard County Community College trustee.

Of the roughly 120,000 students served by the state's community colleges, he said, 31,000 rely on Pell grants. Huddie, who is also president of the Maryland Association of Community Colleges, said those students need that $450.

"In real terms that means five more textbooks or six more credits — six credits is a lot," Huddie said.

All of Maryland's members of Congress were present Tuesday, at least briefly, except Democratic Reps. Steny Hoyer of Mechanicsville, Albert Wynn of Mitchellville, and Elijah Cummings of Baltimore.

In addition to Frederick and Howard community colleges and the College of Southern Maryland, schools represented at the meeting were Montgomery College, Anne Arundel Community College, the City College of Baltimore, Cecil Community College, Harford Community College, Chesapeake College, and Prince George's Community College.

Emergency Communications Improvements Slated For Md.

The Governor's Office of Homeland Security has announced a multi-year plan to improve communications among fire, police, emergency medical services, and other public safety responders.

The "Public Safety Communications Interoperability in Maryland" plan outlines a six-year project to revamp emergency communications statewide. The plan was developed by a team of communications experts from 20 state, county, and local agencies. The team was created under the auspices of the state, the Maryland Association of Counties, and the Maryland Municipal League.

"Today, police, firefighters and other emergency personnel in Maryland might not be able to communicate with each other in a large-scale emergency – one that crosses county lines or requires reinforcements from distant jurisdictions – because they use incompatible radio systems," said Governor Robert L. Ehrlich Jr.

"Four different bandwidths are used in the state. While communication within jurisdictions, among neighboring counties and in regions of the state is increasingly common, state agencies are using old equipment that is not compatible with local equipment. And, as the size and complexity of an incident grows, bringing together state, local and federal agencies, the consequences of incompatibility increase," the governor said.

"When the $20-$30 million first phase of the upgrade is completed, Maryland will have a unified multi-bandwidth mutual aid public safety wireless network with voice capability – and the barriers to statewide police and emergency personnel communications will have been eliminated or significantly reduced."

Mobile data capability and access will be enhanced during the second phase of the project with the completion of the statewide microwave infrastructure and development of secure data access methods and agreements.

The Public Safety Communications Interoperability in Maryland report makes the following five recommendations.

•Continue the same effective state-county-municipal partnership that led to the proposal.

•Complete construction of a statewide high-capacity wireless and fiber infrastructure that will support evolving communications technology.

•Within three years, integrate regional interoperable systems on the Eastern Shore and central Maryland and the state Maryland Incident Management Interoperable Communications System into a network of networks that would provide some level of voice interoperability in most of Maryland.

•Increase public safety responder access to data in the field. An example would be wireless laptop access to the Emergency Management Mapping Application, which provides detailed mapping and infrastructure information.

•Complete planning for a statewide voice and data communications system using 700 MHz equipment (when approved by the Federal Communications Commission).

"Enhancing police and emergency communications has been a priority of the governor, whose Fiscal 2006 budget includes $11 million for interoperability," a spokesperson said.

Center For Lifelong Learning To Offer Variety Of Courses

A varied slate of short courses and seminars for active adults is being planned for spring by the Center for Lifelong Learning at Garrett College, according to Patty Kelley, program director. Most of these classes will meet in the Continuing Education and Training Center of the college.

The first of these is a three-hour workshop for persons considering a home-based business, to be held Saturday, Feb. 26, from 9 a.m. to until noon. This session titled "Supplementing Retirement Income With a Home-Based Business" will be led by Beverly Williams.

"A True Haunting," presented by Nancy and Ron Stallings, founders of the Maryland Committee for Psychical Research, is set for April 14 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. The couple will discuss psychic phenomena and relate the odd occurrences their family experienced in a haunted house in Baltimore.

The AARP Driver Safety Program, an eight-hour course for drivers 50 years of age and older, will be given on two consecutive days. The dates still need to be determined.

Two activities have also been planned for persons who like to write or who want to start writing. A three-session course on memoir writing will be taught by Joan Crawford on April 29, May 6, and May 13 from 10 until 11:30 a.m. at the Mary Browning Senior Center in Oakland.

"Students will learn to focus and reflect on certain experiences and people in their lives to preserve the memories," Kelley said.

Seniors will be charged one-half of the regular cost.

The fifth annual writers conference, "Write Away," is scheduled for Saturday, May 14, beginning at 9 a.m. Four consecutive sessions will be held, each led by a professional writer. These will be "Fiction Writing," "Poetry Writing," "Writing for Profit," and a panel discussion on getting published.

For the second year, the Center for Lifelong Learning will offer a May mini-mester for active adults on May 16, 17, and 18. Although the schedule is not yet definite, courses being considered are "World War II," "the French and Indian War," "Islam," "Love Stories in Film," a computer course, water color painting, origami, antiques, and gardening.

Students may register for any of the scheduled courses by calling 301-387-3069. Further information may be obtained by calling Kelley at 301-387-3086.

THROUGH WITH CHEW – Several Garrett County residents successfully quit using spit tobacco on the day of the Garrett County Rub-Out, with assistance from the Garrett County Health Department's Outreach workers. Sixteen men pledged to quit chewing tobacco or rubbing snuff for the day, with 14 of them being successful. The Health Department awarded each of them a baseball hat that read "Through With Chew." Pictured from left to right and front to back are Lorin Rounds, Scott Livengood, Richard Ballou Jr., Rick Wilt, and Steve Burley, all employees of Casseman Lumber who successfully quit for the Rub-Out. Another successful work site was the Grantsville garage of the Garrett County Roads Department, where nine employees participated in the Rub-Out. For more information about quitting tobacco, persons may call Mike Wilburn, Health Department, at 301-334-7730.

GC Democratic Club Launches Membership Drive

The annual Garrett County Democratic Club's membership drive is under way.

"We are hoping that all fellow county Democrats and those who embrace the values and ideals of the Democratic Party will join our organization," said Betty Pritt, club president. "We are already gearing up for the next elections and need the support and energy of interested persons of all ages to work for our candidates."

Annual dues are $10 ($5 for seniors over 65 and students). Existing members will receive a dues renewal form in the mail. Any interested new members may mail their dues to: Garrett County Democratic Club, P.O. Box 31, Oakland, MD 21550. One should include full name, address, phone number, and e-mail address.

"Through our work at the club's fair booth, the political rally we held last fall and the party headquarters opened during the fall election gear-up, we were encouraged by the many students, high school age and above, that expressed great interest in the Democratic Party and its platform," Pritt said. "These young people have much to offer, and we would welcome them into our organization."

Oak Park Church Slates Budgeting Class Via Satellite

The Oak Park Church of the Brethren, in conjunction with Church Communication Network (CCN), will present the "Good Sense Budget Course" from 11:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 26, via a live satellite feed.

The course is designed to help participants understand and apply principles of biblical stewardship to everyday life in 21st century America. The workshop will help participants prioritize their financial goals, develop personalized spending plans, identify action steps to reduce expenses, and learn how to reduce debt.

Leading this daylong seminar is Dick Towner, the Willow Creek Association's executive director for the Good Sense Stewardship Movement and the primary author of the WCA's Good Sense curriculum. "Everyone can experience the joy of financial freedom," Towner said. "This course enables people to reflect on their relationship to money and how it impacts their relationship to God.

"People's lives are being crushed by stress and anxiety caused by consumer debt. Marriages are being torn apart by financial conflicts. Poor financial decisions are creating stumbling blocks to spiritual growth," Towner continued. "When it comes to money, Jesus had a lot to say. Can that financial insight help in today's free-spending world?"

There is a fee for the session's mandatory workbook, which must be picked up prior to the broadcast.

The Oak Park Church of the Brethren is located across from Southern High School at 110 Church Lane, Oakland. For more information, persons may call 301-334-2243.

JOHNSON starts off strong

Fast pit stop fuels victory for No. 48

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Daytona Beach, Fla.

Jimmie Johnson, taking advantage of a quick pit stop and a powerful Hendrick Motorsports engine, drove his No. 48 Chevrolet to victory Saturday in the 27th annual Budweiser Shootout at Daytona International Speedway.

His strongest competition came from Greg Biffle, driving Jack Roush's No. 16 Ford. He led all 20 laps of the first segment of the race and 14 of the final portion, but lost the top spot when he and 10 other leaders made pit stops on Lap 44.

That's when Johnson and his crew seized control.

"That pit stop meant everything," Johnson said. "Whoever got out first was going to win the race."

Ryan Newman gambled by taking just two tires on his pit stop, but his strategy went awry when Jeremy Mayfield, who also took two tires, was penalized for speeding on pit road, becoming the first to be caught by NASCAR's new electronic speed monitors.

With Mayfield, his potential drafting partner, out of the picture, Newman was left stranded at the head of the pack. His four-second lead was quickly erased, and Johnson, with a four-car train in tow, blew by on Lap 55 to take a lead he never relinquished.

Newman held on to the runner-up spot over Jeff Gordon, Tony Stewart and Biffle.

"I had nobody to work with," Newman said. "The two-tire strategy was a good call. It put us in the right position . . . but Jimmie did a good job of defensive driving."

Newman said that on the last lap, he was trying to protect second place while working on a way to win.

"I was watching the rear-view mirror more than the front window," he said.

RACE STATISTICS

Average speed of race winner: 181.399 mph
Time of race: 57 minutes, 53 seconds
Margin of victory: 0.199 seconds
Caution flags: None
Lead changes: five among six drivers
Lap leaders: Dale Jarrett, 1; Greg Biffle, 2-45; Bobby Labonte, 46-48; Casey Mears, 49-50; Ryan Newman, 51-54; Jimmie Johnson, 55-70.

Jarrett zooms to the front

DEI drivers struggle in pole qualifying for Daytona 500

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Daytona Beach, Fla.

The mechanical minds at Dale Earnhardt Inc. found themselves in an unfamiliar position after pole qualifying for Sunday's Daytona 500.

While Dale Jarrett and Jimmie Johnson were basking in the Florida afternoon sun after claiming the front-row starting spots, DEI competition director Tony Eury Sr. and technical director Steve Hmiel were huddled in the garage trying to figure out why their once-dominant cars were so slow in qualifying.

The only light moment was when a reporter asked if the DEI drivers were sandbagging, and Hmiel responded with a hearty "Ha!"

The results from preseason testing and Sunday's qualifying indicate they weren't.

Dale Earnhardt Jr. was 39th on the charts. Michael Waltrip was 33rd and Martin Truex Jr. was 31st. Kenny Wallace was 40th with DEI power, and Robby Gordon, who switched to a DEI engine after his radically modified, Menard-built intake manifold was confiscated during inspection, was 38th.

Eury blamed the slow speeds on the team's new engine design, which was intended to compensate for NASCAR's latest restrictor plate, which has openings ¼ of an inch smaller than those used last year.

Eury said what appears to be a tiny change made a huge difference.

"When you get down that small, every little bit makes a lot of difference," he said, adding that his team had high hopes for the 500 after testing the cars in the wind tunnel.

"We've worked on the aero on our bodies, and we know our cars are better than they were before," Eury said. "We're just missing something on the engines."

Mechanics were dispatched back to the team's shops in Mooresville, N.C., to pore over data and see if the problem can be determined. If not, Eury said, the teams have the option of going back to the engines they ran in previous restrictor-plate races. All teams will install their race engines after Thursday's 150-mile qualifying races.

Dale Jarrett captured his third career pole for the Daytona 500 on Sunday.

"We'll just have to suffer through this until Friday," Eury said.

While Eury and his DEI associates were seeking solutions for speed, others in the garage were debating whether DEI's dominance of restrictor-plate racing — 11 wins in the past 16 plate races — was coming to an end.

Robert "Bootie" Barker, crew chief on Mike Bliss' No. 0 Chevrolet, said stopwatches don't lie, and there's no reason for Earnhardt and Waltrip to sandbag at this point.

"Why would they run slow on purpose?" Barker asked, adding that he believes what people are seeing is a combination of DEI's engines being off the pace and other teams getting better.

"They whipped us for so long that other people got to work and caught up," he said.

Johnson, who won Saturday's Budweiser Shootout, wasn't ready to rule out Earnhardt, the defending 500 champion, as a factor on race day.

"I expect to see him up in the front in the 500," Johnson said.

Jarrett, who ran a lap at 188.312 mph to take his third career Daytona 500 pole, agreed with Johnson that Waltrip and Earnhardt will be competitive Sunday, but, he said, "I'm not sure the dominance they've shown [in the past] is going to be there."

NOTEBOOK

Four more join field at Daytona

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Daytona Beach, Fla.

Jason Leffler, Boris Said, Mike Skinner and John Andretti assured themselves of starting spots in the Daytona 500 with their qualifying speeds Sunday.

Under NASCAR's new rules, which guarantee starting spots to the top 35 in points, only four drivers outside the top group get in based on qualifying speeds. Four more will be added to the 500 field based on their finishes in Thursday's twin 150-mile qualifying races.

After qualifying, Said, a road racer with limited oval track experience, leaned against a stack of tires and reflected on his good fortune.

"I'm happy beyond belief," he said. "I'm going to be in the Daytona 500, one of the biggest races in the world."

He plans to drive conservatively on Thursday — he can't lose his 500 berth — and try to learn as much as he can about drafting.

"My goal is to finish in the top 20 in the 500 and have my fellow drivers say, 'He's OK. He's a good racer,' " he said.

Biffle's blues

Greg Biffle, last year's Daytona 500 polesitter, saw his chances to repeat as pole winner go up in smoke — literally.

An electrical short caused a fire inside Biffle's No. 16 Ford as it sat on pit road before his qualifying run. The fire was quickly extinguished, but the fire-fighting chemicals gave Biffle fits during his run against the clock.

"It was the worst taste ever in your mouth — that dry chemical going through the car when I took off and for about a lap," he said.

"That was probably the worst time I've ever had in a race car."

Biffle, who is guaranteed a starting spot in the 500 due to his points finish last year, posted the 14th-fastest time.

Better engines

The Petty Enterprises entries driven by Jeff Green and Kyle Petty have shown surprising speed during the early days of Speedweeks, especially considering how poorly the cars have performed in recent seasons.

The Petty teams seem to be seeing immediate results from their new engines, which are being built this year by Ray Evernham's team.

"Our cars are running good, and the reason they're running good right now is because we've got Ray's engines," Petty said. "This is basically the same chassis stuff we raced here in July and ran 25th and 30th with."

Safety precaution

After several drivers blew tires in testing for the Budweiser Shootout, officials replaced dozens of sets of tires with others from a different batch.

"Goodyear found a small group of tires that were, in effect, removed from service as a precaution," NASCAR spokesman Herb Branham said. "The bottom line is it should not affect the tire supply for the balance of Speedweeks."

Corvette to pace race

Dale Earnhardt Jr. recently appeared on the television show "Fox & Friends" to unveil the 2005 Chevrolet Corvette that will pace the Daytona 500.

"The Daytona 500 provides a good opportunity to showcase the capabilities of the Corvette," said Brent Dewar, Chevrolet general manager.

The pace car is painted bright yellow with a black racing stripe centered across the hood, roof and trunk lid. The Daytona 500 logo is displayed on each door.

PROFILE

Edwards' attitude a refreshing change of pace

By JEFF GLUCK
Cox News Service

Charlotte, N.C.

There's one NASCAR driver who wears a smile more than his sponsor's shirt.

Meet Carl Edwards, the aw-shucks, this-is-awesome, I'm-so-lucky-to-be-here Nextel Cup Series driver who doesn't have an insincere bone in his body.

Tired of overpaid athletes who just care about the money? Can't stand pompous drivers brushing off their fans and ignoring the good fortune it took to make it to the top?

Edwards is the solution to all that, a driver who can charm even the most cynical of reporters with his positive attitude.

This season, Edwards, 25, will run the entire year in both the Nextel Cup and Busch Series. He ran 14 Cup races last season for Roush Racing, but this is the year to jump on the bandwagon for Edwards' No. 99 car.

Why not? Here's a guy who appreciates every break he's ever gotten and loves every obligation of being a Nextel Cup driver — even talking to the media.

"I just feel like life can bring you a lot of things, and as long as things are going well, you ought to appreciate it," Edwards said last month during NASCAR's annual media tour in Charlotte. "I try to be pretty upbeat about everything. I don't really feel it's helpful to get down and out about certain things."

At one time, Edwards was about as down as he could be. While working on dirt cars in his home state of Missouri, he felt like his career was going nowhere.

As he sat in the garage, he broke down and cried.

"I was thinking this is too much, and I'm never going to get over this hurdle and get to where I want to go," he said. "As unhappy as I was that moment, I'm the opposite right now. I try to always remember that stuff."

Even when the Columbia, Mo., native had a job on a construction site, the positive attitude was there. While a friend griped about the working conditions, Edwards was thrilled just to be outdoors.

"I thought, hell, we get to go to work with our shorts on and our tennis shoes. This is a blast," he said.

Forget where he came from? Not Edwards. The kid who sprinted around his circular kitchen ended up driving in circles on the country's top tracks.

Edwards has no reason to mope, so he never does. Edwards is more interested in celebrating his luck and success and acting like the opposite of the typical pro athlete.

Edwards admits that every day isn't sunshine and clear skies. When he makes a mistake, he can get down on himself, like he did when a NASCAR official accidentally cost Edwards a truck race in the spring.

Driving in the final laps and leading the race, Edwards saw a flashing caution light and slowed down. But the light didn't stay on, and another driver passed him for the win. Edwards blamed himself, even though a NASCAR in-car camera later revealed that the light actually had gone on for a split second. So why didn't Edwards protest and make a big stink when he lost the race?

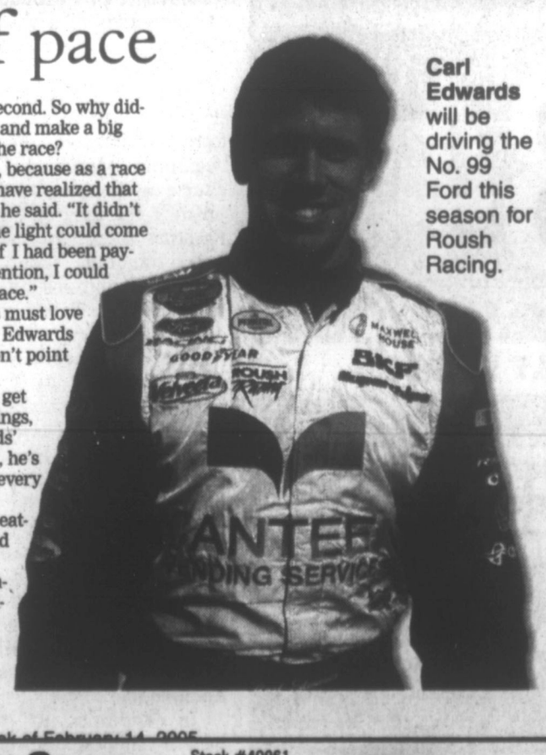
"It's still my fault, because as a race car driver, I should have realized that that could happen," he said. "It didn't even register that the light could come on and go back off. If I had been paying a little more attention, I could have still won that race."

NASCAR officials must love this guy. Even when Edwards is not at fault, he won't point fingers.

Life is too good to get upset about little things, according to Edwards' philosophy. After all, he's getting paid to race every week.

"This is like the neatest thing in the world to me," he said.

A professional athlete actually appreciating his success is pretty neat, too.



Carl Edwards will be driving the No. 99 Ford this season for Roush Racing.

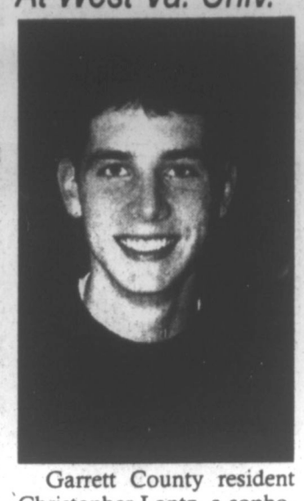
Lantz Recognized For Academics At West Va. Univ.



Garrett County resident Christopher Lantz, a sophomore at West Virginia University in Morgantown, was recently honored by the university's Phi Kappa Phi Honor Society as an Outstanding Freshman Scholar. Lantz is carrying a dual major in computer engineering and electrical engineering, and his grade point average stands at a perfect 4.0.

The 2003 Southern High School graduate is the son of Mary and Steve Lantz of Oakland.

Grantsville Center To Host Computer Classes In March

Three computer classes – Microsoft Excel, Microsoft PowerPoint, and File Management – have been slated next month at the Grantsville Outreach Center. The classes are offered by the Garrett College Continuing Education and Training Division.

Microsoft Excel I is set for 6 to 9:15 p.m. over four consecutive Wednesdays beginning March 2. Students will learn to create, edit, save, and retrieve spreadsheets. Basic printing commands, graphs, and charts will be introduced. A prerequisite of Introduction to Computers or a working knowledge of the computer is required.

Microsoft PowerPoint is slated for 9 to 11 a.m. over four consecutive Fridays beginning March 4. This course is designed to demonstrate the uses of PowerPoint as a tool for speaker notes, handouts, slides, and other presentations for personal use, the board room, or the classroom.

File Management is scheduled for 7 to 9 p.m. over three consecutive Mondays beginning March 14. Participants will learn the basics of files and directory naming schemes for the personal computer. Topics include how to use standard file extensions without overloading directories, as well as the usage of storage devices and media available to backup, preserve and secure documents.

In addition to those March classes, the center will host the following computer classes in April: Senior Surfers: The Internet and Web Literacy; Integrating Microsoft Office Software; and Computer Skills.

For more information or to register for these courses, persons may contact Terry Beachy at 301-895-3368, or via e-mail at tbeachy@garrettcollege.edu.

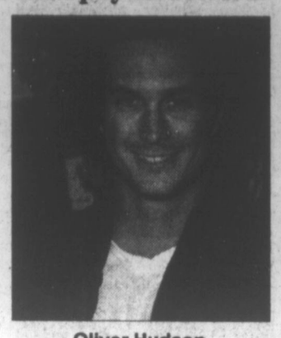
TV PIPELINE

Moving 'Mountain' doesn't pay off for WB

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it



Oliver Hudson

Q: What happened to the show "The Mountain"? There was never any buzz about it, and now it's disappeared! –Julie, New York.

A: You've answered your own question in a sense; it's precisely because there was never any buzz about it that it disappeared. The WB Network made a switch of nights between that show – which featured Oliver Hudson and Anson Mount as resort-operating siblings – and the much-better-reviewed "Jack & Bobby," hoping the new slots would help the programs. Almost immediately, it was apparent that "The Mountain" wasn't faring any better on Sunday than on Wednesday, so the end of 2004 also signaled the end of the series.

Q: "American Idol" is back. Will "Nashville Star" be back, and if so, when will it start? –Anonymous, via e-mail.

A: The country version of "Idol" is returning, and sooner than you might think. The USA Network talent competition begins its third season Tuesday, March 1, with LeAnn Rimes replacing Nancy O'Dell as host. Montgomery Gentry, Sara Evans and the Charlie Daniels Band are among the guest stars announced thus far for the show's new season.

Q: What is the real name of the girl who played Stephanie on "All in the Family"? Is she still acting? –Jim Sasso, Hurst, Texas.

A: Danielle Brisebois played the part of Edith Bunker's niece and carried it over into the spin-off series "Archie Bunker's Place." Although she continued to act for a while afterward, with stints on "Knots Landing" and "Days of our Lives," she eventually left that part of her career behind to focus on music. She has fared well in that field; one of the tunes she wrote, "Perfect Day," is featured on Clay Aiken's album "Measure of a Man."

Q: I was wondering if Sci-Fi Channel would consider running the series "The Time Tunnel." I remember this show aired back in the late 1960s. –Chuck, Etters, Pennsylvania.

A: In fact, the Irwin Allen-produced series with James Darren and Robert Colbert as time-tripping adventurers aired in 1966-67 on ABC. It is back on television already; the rights to the show currently belong to the premium cable channel Action, which is running it most mornings.

Q: Could you tell me what happened to Elisabeth Shue, who was in the movie "Adventures in Babysitting"? Did she continue in show business? –Susan Wakefield, Colorado Springs, Colo.

A: Indeed she did. Lately, the sister of actor Andrew Shue has worked only sparingly, but she currently appears with Robert De Niro and Dakota Fanning in the theatrical movie "Hide and Seek." Her other most recent credits include "Tuck Everlasting," which she narrated, and "Hollow Man."

Kindergarten Registration Program Slated

The Garrett County Board of Education recently announced that the annual comprehensive preschool registration program will be held again this year. This program is for all children entering kindergarten or first grade for the first time in August, who will be 5 years old by Sept. 30, 2005, who are required to register for kindergarten. Those children who are not 5 years old by Sept. 30, 2005, are not eligible to register for kindergarten.

This registration program, which will be held in all elementary schools during March, April, and May, has been developed to help identify strengths and needs of children and to identify early any problems that may interfere with a successful start in school.

Parents must register any child who will be 5 years old by Sept. 30, 2005. The law allows exemptions to the school attendance requirements as follows:

•Grants a one-year immaturity waiver if the parent or guardian makes a written request to the local school system.

•Allows a 5-year-old to be enrolled in one of three alternative program settings – a full-time licensed child care center, a full-time registered family day care home, or part-time in a Head Start 5-year-old program.

Parents of children who meet the above qualifications are asked to fill out a registration blank that can be picked up at a local elementary school or at the Garrett County Board of Education building and mail it to the designated address. All parents registering children for school will receive a registration appointment. However, parents who choose to use one of the exemptions from the required 5-year-old attendance must request the appropriate exemption form from the Department of Pupil Services at 301-334-8939.

State regulations require parents to provide evidence of birth (their child's birth certificate), an official immunization record, and documented proof of current residency. Documents accepted by the state of Maryland as proof of residency includes:

•Current rental lease or agreement

•Current utility bill with applicant's name and address

In addition, parents must complete an Affidavit of Disclosure to verify the residency of the student. Social Security cards are also requested at registration.

As a part of the comprehensive registration program, each child registering for school will receive a general health interview and dental screening. Immunizations, if needed, will be administered on site by the Garrett County Health Department nurses free of charge.

MLP Church To Host Sri Lankan Missionary Event

The Mt. Top Christian Assembly of God will host a presentation by Dwight and Anita Dobson, church missionaries to Sri Lanka, at 6 p.m. on Sunday, Feb. 20, at the church, which is located east of Mtn. Lake Park.

The Dobsons currently serve as Assemblies of God Foreign Missionaries to the island country of Sri Lanka, where they reside on the campus of the Assemblies of God Bible College. Dwight teaches and serves on the board of the college, where he assists in all areas of project development. The college offers a three-year bachelor of arts degree program, with the current year enrollment reaching its highest level ever at over 100 students.

The Dobsons will share stories of the lives of these students, who are preparing for ministerial situations that can often involve hostile and traumatic circumstances. They will also present information on how the tsunami disaster of Dec. 26 has affected the island nation and the missions ministry of the Assemblies of God.

The Dobsons were first assigned to Sri Lanka for one year in 1969 before accepting a calling in Calcutta, India. In 1980 they transferred to Egypt, were they served for 14 years in a ministry that included project development at the Lillian Trasher Orphanage. For the past 10 years the Dobsons have been stationed back in Sri Lanka.

CRELLIN WATER SYSTEM
Surface Water Treatment Technique

The Garrett County Department of Public Utilities is providing the following notice regarding the Crellin Water System. The wells for the water system were evaluated for protection against surface water influence as required by the Surface Water Treatment Rule (SWTR), as adopted in the Code of Maryland, COMAR 26.04.01, Quality of Drinking Water in Maryland. The source water springs were determined to be under the direct influence of surface water by the Maryland Department of the Environment. As a result, these sources require additional treatment, such as filtration, or replacement with a protected water source. Federal and state regulations require that the water system install filtration.

What is the Garrett County Department of Public Utilities doing?

The Crellin Water System disinfects the drinking water that is pumped from the well and springs. The drinking water is tested monthly for coliform bacteria, and results have met state and federal standards.

The Department of Public Utilities is in the process of evaluating water treatment technologies. After the pilot testing is completed, design and construction will proceed. Construction is expected to begin this year.

What should I do?

People with severely compromised immune systems, infants, and some elderly may be at increased risk. These individuals should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. General guidelines on ways to lessen the risk of infection by microbes are available from EPA's Safe Drinking Water Act Hotline (800-426-4791). If you have specific health concerns, consult your doctor.

What does this mean?

This is not an emergency. This notification is provided so that the customers of Crellin are advised of the water treatment requirements for their water system.

Any questions or concerns should be directed to Allen Festerman at 301-387-9141. Please share this information with all the other people who drink this water, especially those who may not have received this notice directly (for example, people in apartments, nursing homes, schools, businesses.) You can do this by posting this notice in a public place or distributing copies by hand or mail.

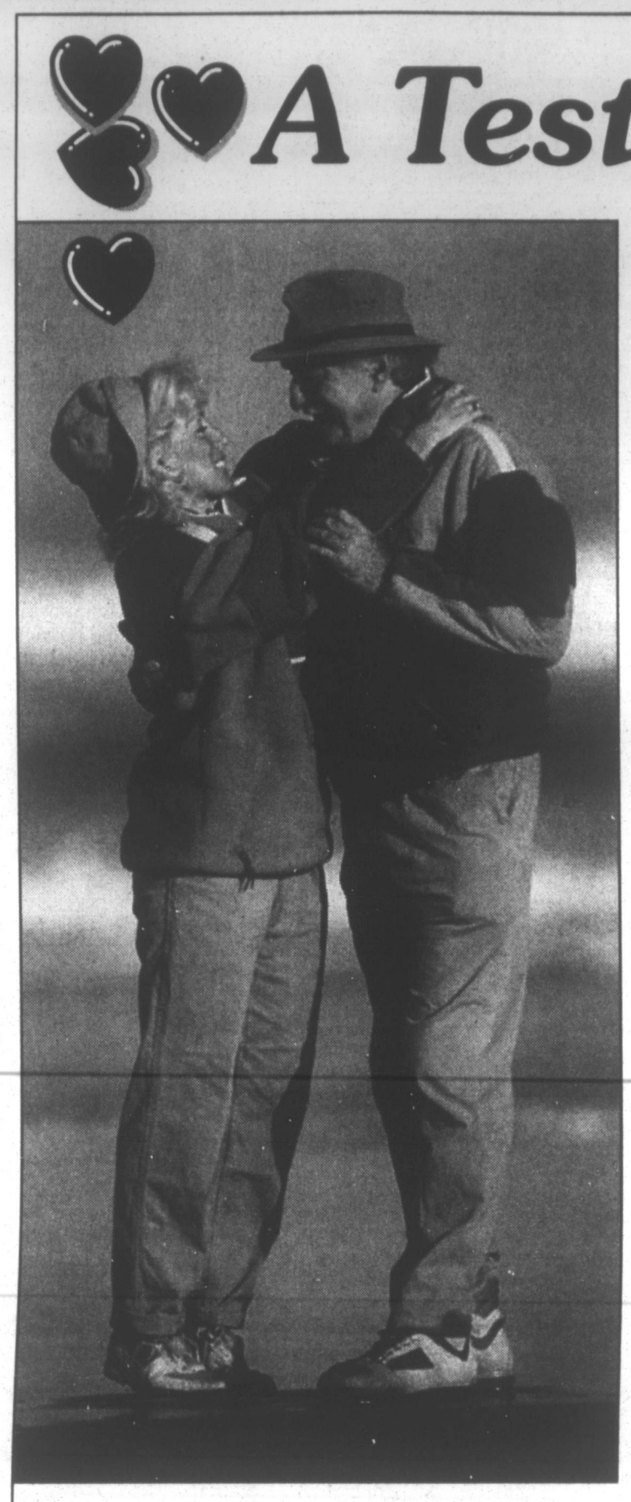
A Test of Time



Some things just take time. Love takes time. Though "love at first sight" is touted to be true by some, more couples may remember a courtship that did not always go smoothly. They may speak of periods in which they actually renounced the relationship, only to reunite at a later date realizing all the more what they had. Love that is tested is often deeper and stronger.

Love can be compared to fruit as it ripens on the vine in summertime. Along with the warmth of sunny days, the fruit sways, precariously at times, in summer storms, maybe even sustaining an occasional bruise. Yet, it is only after "hanging on" through those uncertain times that the fruit becomes mature…sweet, mellow, and sure to please the palate.

Most importantly, you must be connected by God's Holy Spirit for your love to fully flourish. What qualities do you desire in your relationship? Galatians 5:22 tells us, "But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness and self-control…"

Won't you take the time to worship with your Valentine? Your love will grow stronger each week as you visit God in His House or Synagogue.

Always Think Positively

It is probably impossibl to overestimate the value of positive thinking. Because our thinking is often a self-fulfilling prophecy, it creates the conditions for the possibility of success or failure, or for holiness or sinfulness. Consider the negative-thinking salesman who is sure no one will want to buy his product, and practically exudes that negative thinking by calling on customers and saying, "you don't want to buy any of my products, do you?" You can be pretty sure that everyone who is asked that question is going to say, "no." But, with a positive attitude and a sales pitch such as "I know you're going to love this product, may I show it to you?", the salesman is much more likely to get a yes. Of course, there are limits to positive thinking; if merely thinking something made it so, we would all be millionaires and saints. But, our thinking is the foundation for our actions, and only by thinking positively can we make progress towards our goals. And even when things go wrong, as surely they will on occasion, positive thinking helps us to overcome the difficulties by thinking constructively. It is always better to light a candle than to curse the darkness.

The eye is the lamp of the body. So, if your eye is sound, your whole body will be full of light; but if your eye is not sound, your whole body will be full of darkness.

Value Of Coenzyme Q-10 Supplements

Coenzyme Q-10 (CoQ-10) is a naturally occurring vitamin-like substance present in high concentrations in the heart, liver, kidney, and pancreas. Small amounts produced by the body are supplemented by larger amounts found in the meats and seafood in your diet.

CoQ-10 appears to have a role in various diseases which has led to studies helping us better understand CoQ-10, Parkinson's disease patients have reduced symptoms when taking 1200 mg CoQ-10 daily as compared to placebo. Adding oral CoQ-10 to conventional heart failure treatments seems to improve quality of life, decrease hospitalization rates, and decrease symptoms of heart failure such as peripheral edema, enlarged liver, and insomnia in mild to severe congestive heart failure patients. Taking CoQ-10 seems to lower blood pressure when taken with other blood pressure medications. A reduction of migraine attacks by about one-third has been linked to CoQ-10 supplementation. In the first year after heart attack, CoQ-10 appears to significantly lower risk of cardiac events. As always, before taking CoQ-10 as part of your daily regimen talk with your physician.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• Before the infamous fire of 1871, even Chicago's streets were made of wood.

• Death by caterpillar? If that sounds far-fetched, you probably don't live in Brazil. In the southern region of the country, you're five times more likely to be killed by a caterpillar than by a snake. They don't bite, though; they poison their victims. If you brush up against one, you'll come into contact with the poison contained in the creature's hairs. Your skin will start to burn, followed by headache and weakness; within a couple of days, you'll develop bruising and begin to vomit. Finally, bleeding in the brain generally leads to coma and death.

• It was poet, novelist and essayist Andrei Codrescu who noted, "It's not too late to discover America, which seems to get discovered over and over and never definitively."

• It may seem that global warming is a very modern issue. You might be surprised to learn, then, that the first recorded reference to the greenhouse effect came in 1861.

• Minnesota ranks above all the other states in the U.S. in fishing-license sales per capita. Also, it's been determined that one out of every six residents of Minnesota has a registered boat — also the highest percentage of any state. That seems odd for a part of the country that is so inhospitable to outdoor water sports for much of the year.

• Parole, allergy, electricity, smog and homosexuality all have something in common: They're all terms that were coined by physicians.

• It's been reported that during a 1991 coup attempt, Boris Yeltsin ordered out from Pizza Hut.

• Actors Jude Law, Jim Carrey, Johnny Depp and Matt Dillon all dropped out of high school.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Feb. 27, 1922, Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover calls a conference to allocate radio wavelengths. Lack of regulation meant that some 500 stations were broadcasting on the same wavelength before the conference.

• On Feb. 26, 1949, the Lucky Lady II, a B-50 Superfortress, takes off from Carswell AFB in Texas on the first nonstop round-the-world flight. The aircraft was refueled four times in the air by tanker planes and returned to the United States 94 hours later.

• On Feb. 22, 1950, Walt Disney's animated feature "Cinderella" opens. Based on a fairy tale by the Brothers Grimm, "Cinderella" featured enduring songs like "A Dream Is a Wish Your Heart Makes" and became one of Disney's most beloved films.

• On Feb. 25, 1964, 22-year-old Cassius Clay shocks the odds-makers by dethroning world heavyweight boxing champ Sonny Liston in a seventh-round technical knockout. The dreaded Liston, who had twice demolished former champ Floyd Patterson in one round, was an 8-to-1 favorite.

• On Feb. 21, 1972, President Richard Nixon arrives in Beijing, the capital of the People's Republic of China, on the first presidential visit to the world's most populous nation. Given that the United States had formally opposed China's communist government since it took power in 1949, Nixon was also the first president to visit a nation not recognized by the United States.

• On Feb. 24, 1988, the U.S. Supreme Court defends the right to satirize public figures, voting 8-0 to overturn the $200,000 settlement awarded to the Reverend Jerry Falwell for his emotional distress at being parodied in Hustler, a pornographic magazine.

Terminally Ill Pets

Q. A few days ago, I learned that our beloved family pet, Oscar, has advanced cancer. The veterinarian estimated that he has three months to live, at best. I'm devastated by this, and I have no idea how to tell my children, ages 6 and 10. I want to make Oscar's last days as happy and comfortable as possible, but I'm worried that I can't do that if the children are grieving, sad or angry. Should I break the news now, or wait until Oscar makes his final journey to the vet? — Carol M., Boise, Idaho

A. That decision is up to you. However, when the situation is addressed compassionately, children can deal with the death of a pet quite well. I'm not saying that telling your kids right away will make everything wonderful; there will be sadness, and tears, and anger. But you will be surprised at the positive ways in which they react.

When you decide to tell them, meet as a family and explain the situation. Be truthful about how much time Oscar has left, and, discuss the arrangements that have been made. Allow your kids to ask questions. They will probably want to know more about the cancer and why it can't be cured; what exact day will Oscar die; what will happen at the vet's office; where Oscar will be buried. Some questions you won't be able to answer.

There are also many different actions your family can take together to get through this event. Allow the children to participate in planning ways to make Oscar's final days happy. Consider taking them on one of Oscar's checkups so they can ask the vet questions.

A number of books and reference materials are available, for adults and children, that deal with the loss of a pet. These can provide more information on the grieving process and recovery from this sad event.

Vintage Tools

Q. I read in your column recently that a reference book for vintage tools has just been published. Since I am disposing of a large collection, it might be helpful. Can you tell me the name of the book and where it can be purchased? — Walter, Palm Coast, Fla.

A. The book is the Antique Trader Tools Price Guide, edited by Kyle Husfloen. It features more than 2,000 current prices, at least 500 illustrations and a special section on tool collecting. The book retails for $19.99, plus postage and handling, and it is highly recommended. It can ordered from Krause Publications, 700 East State St., Iola, WI 54990; www.krause.com; and 1-800-258-0929.

Q. I have a very old pitcher and bowl in perfect condition. It is hand-painted. I would like to know its age and value. — B.A.W., Holton, Kan.

A. Your question is a little like asking, "How much is my car worth?" If your vehicle is a 1928 Stutz Bearcat, it might be worth several hundred thousand dollars. If, on the other hand, your car is one that is more common, such as a 1998 Oldsmobile, it would, of course, be worth much less. In other words, your question is impossible to answer with any accuracy without more information.

Unpaid amounts for municipalities or other taxing agencies were shown at the bottom of the notices. After March 4th, all delinquent town taxes must be paid at the County Tax office in order to guarantee collection of additional costs.

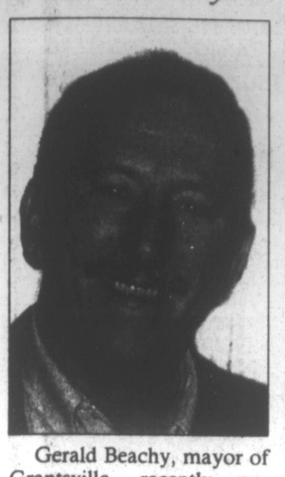
Beachy Files To Retain Post Of Grantsville Mayor



Gerald Beachy, mayor of Grantsville, recently announced his candidacy for re-election. He has served as mayor for the past six years and was a member of the town council for 22 years.

The town election will be held Tuesday, May 10, when a mayor and five council members will be elected to four-year terms.

"The future is bright for Grantsville," Beachy said. "We are growing at a faster rate than ever before, but we remain dedicated to maintaining the town's historical character. Since the last election, we have developed a new team concept with town employees working together, and we maintain an 'open door' policy at town hall, which we feel encourages ideas and comments for improvements directly from our residents."

Beachy cited numerous accomplishments during his administration, including approval of grant funds for improvements to the water and sewer lines, new sidewalks, intersection improvements, storm water grants, funds to purchase and demolish the old creamery building, and Program Open Space grants for a 1.4-acre expansion of the town park.

"I have also recently established a Revitalization Task Force to make recommendations to the mayor and council for façade and streetscape improvements to our business district, and I have assisted with a new museum committee in appointing a volunteer curator."

Beachy cited the following reasons for seeking another term as mayor: to follow through with projects that have already been started, to continue to find new ways to improve Grantsville, and to bring new businesses and housing to Grantsville.

Beachy is a lifelong resident of Grantsville. He and his wife Sue own and operate Beachy's Pharmacy. He has served as chairman of the Western Maryland Healthcare Corporation, a member of Meyersdale Community Hospital board of directors, president and secretary of the Grantsville Lions Club, president of St. John's Church consistory, assistant chairman of Wingfield Encounter at the Wisp 2004, and as chairman of the Penn Alps Restaurant board of directors. He has been a member of the Grantsville Lions Club for 25 years and has served as Grantsville Days chairman for the past 27 years.

Beachy is a member of the American Society of Consultant Pharmacists, the National Community Pharmacists Association and the Maryland Pharmacists Association. He and his wife are active members of St. John's Church in Grantsville.

"It has been very rewarding to have served the residents of Grantsville for the past 28 years as a member of the Grantsville Town Council," Beachy stated. "As mayor, I look forward to the next four years, working with the council members and residents of the town to achieve new goals within our community. I am ready for the challenge and hope to be able to guide our town's growth in such a way as to keep the small town character that all of us in Grantsville enjoy."

"Look Good, Feel Better" Workshop Set

Garrett County Memorial Hospital and the American Cancer Society are sponsoring a workshop titled "Look Good, Feel Better" geared for individuals undergoing treatment for cancer.

The workshop will be held on Monday, Feb. 28, in the Garrett County Memorial Hospital board room.

Look Good, Feel Better is a free, national public service program dedicated to teaching women and teenage cancer patients the techniques to help restore their appearance and self-image, and how to deal with the sociological side effects they experience during treatment, a spokesperson explained.

Cosmetics for the classes are provided free of charge, courtesy of the American Cancer Society, the Cosmetics, Toiletry & Fragrance Association Foundation, and the National Cosmetics Association.

Demonstrations in the use of wigs, hats, and turbans are also given. This program is offered at no charge; however, reservations are required. To register or obtain more information, persons may contact Judy Simson at 301-533-4295.

Special Program On Forest Threats Scheduled At DCL

Maryland Department of Natural Resources staff will present "Forest Threats," a one-hour program covering significant issues of concern to this region's forests and trees, beginning at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 24, at the Discovery Center at Deep Creek Lake State Park. The informational presentation is free and open to the public.

The program will focus on four new exotic and invasive pests and diseases – hemlock wooly adelgid, emerald ash borer, Asian long-horned beetle, and sudden oak death – that pose threats to local forests. Maryland Department of Natural Resources forester Becky Wilson will show participants how to identify these insects and diseases, and provide information on what can be done if they are discovered.

"The forests of Garrett County draws us to their beauty, solitude and splendor," said DCL State Park naturalist Caroline Blizzard. "We appreciate this and the wood and wildlife, clean water, and air that they give too. Imagine Swallow Falls without hemlocks, Savage River without ash, and Laurel Run without rhododendron and oaks.

"There are many new exotic and invasive pests and diseases that are attacking and could attack our forests. There is currently no natural resiliency because these invaders have not been part of the local forest systems."

For further information, persons may call the Discovery Center Fridays through Sundays at 301-387-7067.

MLP Man Pleads Guilty To Heroin Possession

A local man was handed a three-year sentence, half of which was suspended, after he pleaded guilty to possession of heroin during a recent Garrett County District Court hearing.

Justin Russell Rinker, 24, Mtn. Lake Park, was also placed on 18 months' supervised probation by Judge Ralph Burnett, while additional charges of possession of a narcotic with intent to distribute, causing a community nuisance by distributing a narcotic, and possession of drug paraphernalia were not prosecuted by the state attorney's office.

Rinker's March arrest by Garrett County sheriff's deputies stemmed from a March traffic stop on Interstate 68 near New Germany Road. After a K-9 dog alerted to the presence of possible drugs in the vehicle, a search revealed five bags of heroin, a "hitter" commonly used to ingest heroin, and 50 empty baggies commonly used to package drugs in smaller quantities for distribution.

In other District Court news, a New Jersey man pleaded guilty to possession of hallucinogenic mushrooms and was handed a 10-day jail term and a $300 fine.

Timothy Joseph Addams, 22, Cranford, was arrested by sheriff's deputies during an August traffic stop on I-68 at Amish Road, when a K-9 alert led to a search that located six bags of the mushrooms, two bags of suspected marijuana, and a smoking pipe bearing suspected burnt marijuana residue. Additional charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia were not prosecuted.

Joseph Alan Williams, 19, Swanton, pleaded "not guilty" to a charge of resisting arrest, but was nonetheless convicted and handed a 60-day sentence, all but seven days of which was suspended, fined $200, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

Williams was arrested by sheriff's deputies who responded to stop a fight at a Kitzmiller party in July. As they were restraining another individual, Williams allegedly approached the police officers several times in a threatening manner, then resisted as he was taken into custody himself. Williams was deemed "not guilty" of an additional charge of disorderly conduct.

Wayne Dallas Jacques, 34, Grantsville, received a "not guilty" verdict when the alleged victim of a reported domestic assault refused to take the stand to testify against him. Jacques had been arrested in January by state troopers who were summoned to the Accident-Bittinger Road residence of his estranged wife.

Nicholas Michael Oliverio, 23, Oakland, pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a probation before judgment (PBJ), meaning the probation ruling can be stricken, and a guilty verdict reimposed, at any point in the next 365 days if the state deems appropriate. Oliverio also received a 30-day sentence, all but two days of which was suspended, a $350 fine, and six months' supervised probation. His September arrest by Oakland police officers came during a Third Street traffic stop, when a search revealed two smoking devices bearing burnt marijuana residue.

Randall Jeffrey Frye, 34, Swanton, was handed a stet ruling on a second-degree assault charge, meaning the case can be recalled for trial at any point in the next 365 days if the state deems appropriate. Frye was jailed by sheriff's deputies in October after he had allegedly attacked a Vindex area man by leaning through the victim's car window and repeatedly punching him in the face. Frye then fled the Vindex location and was apprehended later that same night in the On The Rox tavern in Accident.

Charges of second-degree assault, perverted practice, and two counts of fourth-degree sex offense faced by Sean Nicholas Buckle, 19, Mtn. Lake Park, were all placed on the stet docket. Buckle was arrested in December following a Garrett Bureau of Investigation probe into allegations that he coerced a 15-year-old female into having sex with him in a parked car in Friendsville.

Silvie Sue Redman, 37, Friendsville, was handed stet rulings in connection with charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. Her May arrest by the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force followed a search of her home, where several smoking pipes bearing suspected burnt marijuana residue were located.

Victor Frank Gardea Sr., 49, Grantsville, was not prosecuted on charges of second-degree assault filed by state troopers following a December domestic altercation in Grantsville.

Curtis Bradley Ridder, 49, Oakland, was not prosecuted on a violation of ex parte charge filed by sheriff's deputies in November after he allegedly entered a Deep Creek Lake area home while the order was on file.

Stephen Thomas Doe, 49, West Creek, N.J.; Louis W. Santamore Jr., 49, Westbrook, Maine; and Stephen Marshall Brough, 34, Bangor, Maine, each faced charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia that were not prosecuted. The three men were arrested by state troopers after a search of their Comfort Inn motel room in McHenry, where the odor of suspected burnt marijuana had been noted by authorities.

DUI/DWI HEARINGS

Several driving while under the influence (DUI) and driving while impaired (DWI) cases were heard in traffic court recently.

David William Der, 48, W.Va., pleaded guilty to DUI and was handed a one-year sentence, all but three months of which was suspended, and was fined $755 and placed on two years of supervised probation.

Michael Paul Liller, 28, Md., pleaded guilty to DUI and was handed a six-month sentence, all but 30 days of which was suspended, and was fined $500 and placed on two years of supervised probation.

David Monroe Sisler Sr., 34, Md., pleaded guilty to DUI and was handed a 60-day sentence, all but seven days of which was suspended, and was fined $300 and placed on one year of supervised probation.

Daniel Lee Secrist, 23, Md., pleaded guilty to DUI and was handed a 30-day sentence, fined $400, and placed on two years' supervised probation.

Kandi Renee Wertz, 24, Md., pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a PBJ, along with a 30-day suspended sentence, a $455 fine, one year of unsupervised probation, and 30 hours of community service.

Michael Matthew Hall, 24, Md., pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a PBJ, along with a 30-day suspended sentence, a $355 fine, one year of supervised probation, and 30 hours of community service.

Sharon Sue Arnold, 52, Md., pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a PBJ, along with a 30-day suspended sentence, a $300 fine, one year of unsupervised probation, and 30 hours of community service.

SCHOOL BUS VIOLATION

Austin Huffman Gardner III, 26, Md., pleaded guilty to passing a stopped school bus operating its flashing red lights, and was fined $170 and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

The Importance of Mouth Guards

While the shopping list for children's sports may seem endless and costly, there is one inexpensive item that should not be overlooked. When picking out the proper baseball glove, soccer cleats, and apparel, make sure that your list includes an appropriate mouth guard.

A mouth guard is a flexible piece of plastic that fits over the upper teeth to protect them from injury when playing sports. An athlete is 60 times more likely to injure his/her teeth when not wearing a mouth guard. Mouth guards should be worn for any sports-related activities that may pose a risk of falls or contact with other players or equipment, which includes non-contact sports such as gymnastics and skateboarding.

Sixty percent of facial injuries occur during sports practice. Sports such as football, lacrosse, and hockey generally require players to wear a mouth guard. Surprisingly, the oral injury rate for football players is lower than for all other sports, including women's basketball, because the players are required to wear a mouth guard. Basketball and baseball account for nearly half of all sports-related mouth injuries.

There are three types of mouth guards to choose from. A stock mouth guard is sold in sporting goods stores in varying sizes and is held in place by simply biting down. The "boil-and-bite" mouth guards are the most common and can also be found in sporting goods stores. These are softened in boiling water and then formed to fit the mouth. Finally, a dentist can make a custom-made mouth guard; although these are the most expensive, they are also the best for preventing oral injury.

When choosing a mouth guard, make sure that it is flexible, durable, comfortable, and resistant to tears. It should fit properly, not obstruct breathing or speaking, and be odorless and tasteless. A good mouth guard should also be easy to clean.

Remember that a mouth guard is much less expensive and a lot less painful than repairing a broken tooth. More than 200,000 injuries are prevented each year by wearing appropriate mouth protection. If your child thinks that a mouth guard is not "cool," then remind him or her that neither is missing front teeth.

Farming On The Mountaintop

Maryland Farmers May Now Process Certain Food Goods

Courses Slated To Explain New Regulations

In an effort to provide Maryland farmers with more economic opportunities, Gov. Robert L. Ehrlich Jr. has announced that people whose primary income is from farming can be licensed to process certain foods on their farms.

"This provides another business opportunity for our Maryland farmers," said Ehrlich. "This is a significant step toward improving income potential for farmers, while also expanding the availability of fresh, locally-raised and -processed foods for consumers."

The University of Maryland Cooperative Extension – working in collaboration with the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (DHMH), the Maryland Department of Agriculture, and local agricultural organizations – will hold a series of licensing courses around the state in March to familiarize farmers with the revised on-farm processing regulations and expanded marketing opportunties. The new regulations, developed by DHMH, become effective in mid February.

"Adherence to the regulations will ensure that Maryland's very high food safety standards will be maintained," said DHMH Secretary S. Anthony McCann.

Before a license is approved, the applicant must complete one of the scheduled licensing courses to be held in Howard, Fredrick, Charles, and Queen Anne's counties. Issues such as sanitation, crosscontamination, and food security will be covered. After completing the course, participants may apply for a license with DHMH. There will also be a licensing fee which must be paid before the license is issued.

"Keeping food safe and preventing foodborne illnesses depend on following proper food handling and processing procedures, but education is key," said Dr. J. Scott Angle, interim associate director for the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension.

If a license is approved, the farmer is allowed to process in a domestic kitchen located on the individual's farm a limited selection of non-potentially hazardous foods for commercial sale and distribution. A farmer must also allow DHMH inspection at reasonable times of all areas and equipment used for processing.

"The farming community really benefits form this," said Agriculture Secretary Lewis R. Riley. "Farmers now have more options of what they can sell and where they can sell it."

Typical examples of foods include baked cakes, muffins, and cookies; fruit pies; canned acid foods; herbs in vinegar; honey and herb mixtures; and dried fruit and vegetables. Farmers who sell only at farmers markets may continue to operate under the old regulations and will not need a new license.

If a farm is used to raise animals commerically, the regulations also allow for limited packaging and sale of raw meat from those animals. There are similar provisions for fish farms with respect to the sale of raw finfish.

Course will run from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Worksop dates, locations, and registration deadlines are March 7, Howard County Fairgrounds, West Friendship, March 1 deadline; March 11, Winchester Hall, Frederick, March 4 deadline; March 21, Southern Maryland Electric Co-op, Hughesville, March 14 deadline; and March 29, Chesapeake College, Wye Mills, March 22 deadline.

All licensing course participants must register by the above deadlines. No registrations will be accepted at the door.

The course registration form and more information about the regulations, the licensing process, and a more extensive list of allowable products are available on the Internet at cha.state.md.us/ofpchs. Members of the farming community who have additional questions about the licensing requirements should contact the DHMH Division of Food Control at 410-767-8400. A complete text of the regulations is available at www.ruralforvm.state.md.us/News/dhmhregs.html.

The courses are being offered with the support of the agricultural marketing professionals in Carroll, Cecil, Frederick, Garrett, Harford, Howard, Montgomery, and St. Mary's counties; county offices of economic development; the Southern Maryland Agricultural Development Commission; Rural Maryland Council; Future Harvest; and Chesapeake Community College.

Crop Insurance Deadline Noted

The final date for Maryland farmers to apply for insurance on most spring-planted crops for the 2005 crop year is March 15, 2005, according to the Raleigh regional office, USDA Risk Management Agency.

Current policyholders also have until March 15 to make any changes to their existing contracts.

Crop insurance provides protection against losses in crop production due to natural perils such as drought, hail, wind damage, and excessive moisture.

Eligible crops with a March 15 sales closing date include corn, forage seeding, fresh market sweet corn, fresh market tomatoes, grain sorghum, oats, processing beans, processing sweet corn, processing tomatoes, soybeans, and tobacco.

Protection against a decline in crop prices is also available for corn, grain sorghum, and soybeans through the Crop Revenue Coverage or Indexed Income Protection plans.

Producers are strongly urged to contact a crop insurance agent as soon as possible for a premium quote and additional details. For a list of insurance agents, persons may contact the USDA Farm Service Agency office or log on to the following Risk Management Agency web site: www3.rma.usda.gov/tools/agents.

Maryland Grain Checkoff Grants Are Awarded

With the mission of increasing the profitability of Maryland grain production and improving public understanding of agriculture, the Maryland Grain Producers Utilization Board (MGPUB) recently held its yearly funding meeting to allocate checkoff funds to various grant seekers. Funds are provided in the form of grants to carry out research, education, and the market development of grain. This year, $109,008 was provided for research, $55,650 for education, and $169,611 for market development.

"Deciding which projects to fund and at what level is always a daunting task," stated Jason Scott, newly-elected chairman of MGPUB and grain farmer in Dorchester County. "Our checkoff dollars are based on how the grain crops fare each year. Bumper crops in 2004 eased the financial squeeze we felt during the last two years' funding meetings, but this year presented another problem — several new and exciting projects that showed value to our producers. The board deliberated for two nights, and we feel we have a great lineup of projects happening around the state this year."

Keeping consumers in the equation of the farmer's bottom line, a new project from Chesapeake Fields, Inc. may enable Maryland farmers to provide value-added identity-preserved corn snack foods to the market place. This snack food will be nutritionally balanced for optimum protein and starch content. It will be created and sampled to consumers and snack food vendors with the grant monies provided by MGPUB.

Another new project focusing on food products comes from Lucy Yu, a food scientist at the University of Maryland. Dr. Yu's grant will help determine the best varieties of wheat to grow in Maryland for quality and heath food products in order to enhance growers' ability to produce crops for value-added products and increase consumption of soft wheat. She will identify soft wheat varieties which are high in antioxidants, develop food products for home and bakeries using soft wheat, and produce educational materials on the health benefits of this wheat.

"As forward-thinking producers, we have to be conscious of what our consumer wants and needs in food products," said Charles Schaefer, a grain producer and board member from Carroll County. "Projects like these that look at enhancing and marketing Maryland-grown products is a real benefit to our industry and our communities. We are not only promoting healthy eating, but sustainable farming that adds dollars to a community's economy."

A top priority of MGPUB in 2004 was research that complimented farmers' ongoing commitment to the environment in which they farm. Two new projects will focus on nutrient applications to cropland. The first will look at improving the efficiency of surface applied broiler litter in no-till corn production, and the second will determine if a corn stalk nitrate test can predict nitrogen requirements in the fall, thereby reducing the amount of nutrient being applied during the winter months.

Schaefer added, "As farmers are being asked to insure increased effectiveness in managing nutrients on the farm, research of this nature helps us determine the best ways of accomplishing this task."

MGPUB will also continue to support increasing the number of fueling stations that offer E-85, a fuel for flexible-fuel vehicles made with ethanol, a domestically-produced renewable energy source made from corn.

At the end of the three-day meeting, 36 total grants were funded by MGPUB for a total of $334,419. Of those, nine will work toward market development, 13 will provide for educational programs, and 14 support research.

For a complete listing and summary of the grants funded, persons may visit the following web site: www.marylandagriculture.com.

Additional Crop Insurance Cost-Share Available

Maryland farmers who sign up for crop insurance by March 15 will benefit from an additional federal cost-share incentive, according to a recent announcement by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Risk Management Agency.

The federal funds will be used to pay 15 percent of the producers' net premium at the 70 to 85 percent coverage levels. Maryland farmers are urged to contact their crop insurance agents before March 15 to benefit from the cost-share.

Producers purchasing crop insurance that protects 60 to 65 percent of their average yields will receive a 10 percent cost-share on their crop insurance.

Those purchasing crop insurance to protect 50 to 55 percent of their crop yield will receive a 5 percent cost-share.

"The Ehrlich-Steele Administration recognizes the importance of crop insurance as a key risk management tool for our farms and sought to make this incentive available to Maryland farmers," said Secretary of Agriculture Lewis R. Riley. "The use of crop insurance has protected Maryland farmers from serious economic hardships that could have resulted from the near-record drought of 2002 and excess rainfall of 2003."

In 2004, Maryland farmers spent about $5.5 million on purchasing crop insurance, which is up from 2003, when they spent $3.3 million, according to the USDA.

The federal government offers a cost-share incentive on crop insurance to lower farmer premiums. Producers in the state have received more than $36.7 million in crop insurance indemnities from 2002 to 2004, according to the USDA.

Cattle Industry Convention Set For March 4 & 5

The Four Points Sheraton in Hagerstown will again be the site of the 2005 Maryland Cattle Industry Convention on March 4 and 5. The convention is sponsored by the Maryland Cattleman's Association and is designed for all individuals interested in beef cattle. The convention features educational activities covering practical and current issues that will help Marylanders produce better beef in the most efficient and cost-effective manner possible.

The convention will begin Friday, March 4, with three educational seminars throughout the afternoon. M. Samuel Smith III, EA Fiducial, will overview methods available to transfer farmland and a farm business operation to the next generation.

Dr. Dan Scruggs, DVM representing Pfizer Animal Health, will speak about reproductive herd health. Dr. Scruggs will discuss reasons for breeding failure and how to design an effective reproductive herd health program.

Dr. Gary Minish, dean and professor of animal science at Southern Illinois University, will speak about skeletal structure and function. He is known for his expertise in beef cattle evaluation. This workshop will address skeletal structure in beef cattle and the essential relationship between form and function.

A trade show featuring over 20 beef industry exhibitors will open at 1 p.m. Friday and continue through Saturday. On Friday at 6:30 p.m., the Cattleman's Association will hold the Cattle Industry Banquet, which will feature Greg Claassen, ventriloquist and comedian.

The second annual Livestock Skillathon will begin at 8:30 a.m. on Saturday, March 5. This event tests the knowledge of youth from ages 8 to 18 concerning livestock breeds, meat identification and judging, equipment identification, feed identification, and hay judging. A group of 14 4-H youth from Garrett County has been meeting weekly to prepare for the contest.

Dr. Minish will repeat his session at 10:30 a.m. on Saturday. Greg Risberg will be the keynote speaker for the Cattleman's luncheon at noon.

Special rates are available at the Four Points Hotel, and reservations for a room can be made by calling 301-790-3010. Registrations for the convention can be made by calling 301-405-1394.

The First Environmentalists In Maryland Were The Farmers

by Debra Spurrier
Maryland Dept. of Agriculture

The New Year is traditionally celebrated with bells and whistles marking the fresh beginning the turning of the calendar page brings to our lives. Many firsts will be realized. Resolutions will be made and broken, but one thing remains constant throughout the year and across the decades, linking generation to generation — Maryland farming.

Maryland farming has survived for centuries. Have you ever wondered how? Through good stewardship of the land Maryland farmers have increased the productivity of the land and preserved it for generations to come. Maryland's farmers were, and still are, the first environmentalists to care for your land. From the first turn of the soil centuries ago, agriculturalists have quietly worked to protect natural resources while providing a steady food supply for a growing population.

"I wake up each morning knowing that if my resources, including soil, water, and air, are not properly preserved and conserved, my livelihood and a family legacy is in jeopardy," explains Charles Schaefer, a Carroll County farmer. "I use a variety of environmentally-friendly farming practices to protect the land and water around my farming operation."

No-till farming has gained in popularity across the Free State in an effort to save energy and reduce soil and nutrient loss from growing crops. In fact, Maryland ranks second in the nation among farmers using no-till farming.

"I use no-till because it is a practical best management practice that is good for my farming operation and good for the environment," Schaefer says. "By planting my next crop without plowing the soil, I'm cutting down on air pollution from tractors, soil erosion from loosening the ground, and water pollution by keeping the nutrients locked under a protective cover. I'm also creating improved wildlife habitat around my land for all kinds of birds."

Studies have shown that today's farms may hold the key for reducing greenhouse gases, which contribute to global warming. Through a process called "carbon sequestration," cropland, when not tilled, acts like a sponge and sucks up harmful carbon dioxide gases. United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) scientists estimate that America's cropland could absorb 195 million metric tons of carbon a year — about 12 percent of the nation's annual emissions.

Farmers statewide are using a range of conservation tools designed to prevent soil erosion, control nutrient movement, and safeguard water quality in the Bay and its tributaries to ensure a healthy environment while providing for the food and fiber needs of the consumer.

No-till is not the lone practice. Maryland farmers assess the natural lay of the land and use it to choose environmentally-friendly farming practices. Many Western Maryland farmers choose hillside terracing or contour farming to control erosion by slowing the flow of rainwater runoff, while those near the Eastern Shore choose grassed waterways, or strips of grass along streambanks and ditches that serve as a filter for any nutrients leaving cropland.

Nutrient management plans are required on every farming operation for each field that is cultivated, showing the amount of nitrogen and phosphorus that is applied to a crop and removed with the crops harvest to insure farmers are accountable for the land. Consumer knowledge of these types of farming practices is a key in continued viability of farming as a profession in Maryland.

Informed consumers support agriculture in their community and across the state. Maryland's grain producers want to remind consumers that for each bowl of corn flakes that is poured for breakfast, and each slice of bread sandwiched for lunch, a farmer was hard at work providing and protecting for future generations.

Annual Agriculture Open House To Be Held In Annapolis

The Maryland Department of Agriculture's annual Open House will be held Saturday, March 19, from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. There is no admission fee for the event, which will be held rain or shine at the agency's headquarters at 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis.

Visitors at the open house will be able to milk a cow, see the department's insect collection, make slime in the state chemist's laboratory, enjoy a Maryland food and craft market, demonstrate their hog calling skills, take in a petting farm, ride a pony, and learn about the world of agriculture today through hands-on activities.
